At State Championship Show

Crawford Holstein notches repeat victory

BY DONNA TOMMELLEO

MEADVILLE — In front of a hometown ringside, a Crawford County Holstein bested more than 300 black and whites to become the Grand Champion Female of Pennsylvania for the second year in a row.

For several tense minutes, Parkacres Sun Ivy, owned by Ed Dobereiner of Jamestown and John Parks of Brookville, stood shoulder to shoulder with champions of two regional Championship Shows before judge Jimmie Eustace of Catlett, Virginia made the decision which brought the crowd to their feet.

"It is so very hard to separate them," Eustace conceded. He narrowed the field down to the Ivy cow, Singing Brook Astro Patty, champion of the Central Region Show and Killdee 1 Bubbler Delight, the South Central champ.

Finally, Eustace tagged Dobereiner and Parks' 95-point aged cow.

"Given the wear and tear of the old cow," Eustace pointed out, "her udder is still well above her hocks."

According to Dobereiner, the 8-year-old Ivanhoe Star daughter will finish this lactation with more than 40,000 pounds of milk to her credit.

Dobereiner of Queens Manor Holsteins became aquainted with the Ivy cow when she was a 3-year-old and carried an 86-point score for Jefferson County farmer John Parks, who was trying to sell the young cow.

"I showed her to a number of people for John Parks. I finally bought half interest in her, myself," Dobereiner recalled.

Parks admitted that part-ownership deals are not the exception but rather the rule with many of his Parkacres Holsteins.

"We don't have excellent facilities to give this type of cow the individual attention she deserves," Parks noted.

"But I do get satisfaction from breeding this type of cow," he added.

Parks recalled at the time of the Ivy deal he had two "real good" deep-pedigreed cows to choose from. Ivy's pedigree was backed by seven generations of Excellent or Very Good. Another black and white represented nine generations of the same. He sold the latter cow, retaining no partial interest and kept the typey Ivanhoe Star daughter.

Since coming to Queens Manor five years ago, Ivy has produced a

39th Farm Safety Week urges farm security

BY DEBBIE KOONTZ

LANCASTER — This year marks the 39th observance of National Farm Safety Week.

So important is this practice to the health and well-being of America's farmers that the president of the United States decided to play his part too. President Reagan has signed a proclamation making this week a time for nation-wide emphasis on farm safety activities.

Toward this same end, Lancaster Farming has dedicated this week's issue to the safety measures all conscientious farmers should practice to protect themselves and their loved ones on the farm. In brief, these practices are: obey safety rules, avoid short cuts, practice good housekeeping, be alert and wear protective clothing.

This year's theme, "Make it a safe harvest," reflects the goal as well as the season, because harvest season is the time when most accidents occur on the farm and the ranch.

So impressed were we with the effort the University of Maryland's Extension Farm and Home Safety department plays in the ag safety world, we decided to adopt and modify their logo from reading "Be safe, be alive, be alert," to the logo you see below, "Stay safe, stay alive, we need all of you." Look for this logo as you leaf through the pages of this week's issue, for everywhere you find one, you will also discover a little information that may save a life or limb someday.

Scattered amongst the news and the features, and tucked between the advertisements will be several small line drawings that can serve as reminders for safety if you wish to clip them out and hang them in your barn, your home, and in the machinery sheds.

In B Section, you will find a special page full of safety reminders, highlighted with pictures of what not to do on the farm — thanks to the help and posing ability of three Bedford County farmers who 'hammed it up' to help bring this message to you.

According to recent National Safety Council estimates, farm work accidents resulted in approximately 1,900 deaths and 190,000 disabling injuries in 1981 (including both farm and non-farm residents), a reduction of only five percent from 1980 figures. This makes a reduction of 11 percent from 1971.

While difficult jobs and adverse conditions are part of farming, they should not be used as an excuse for poor safety performance. We hope that through this week's special issue, if you even learn only

Philadelphia Eggs

Thursday, Sept. 16
Report supplied by USDA

MARKET COMMENT: Carton egg orders irregular with some dealers noting movement as fairly good with retail promotions keeping stocks in good balance. Other dealers noting slowdown in orders as on-hand stocks are fully adequate. All dealers in agreement that export orders have had firming effect on otherwise lacklustre market. Offerings are lighter; only mediums available in any degree. Undertone fair.

Prices to retailers: Sales to volume buyers, consumer grades white eggs in cartons delivered store door:

A Extra Large 66-73; A Large 65-68; A Medium 52-56.

Is Your Layer Program Meeting Today's Market Conditions?

At Pennfield, we have the program you need to meet those conditions, and to achieve the best return in a tough market. Because, unlike many feed companies, we design a total program specifically tailored to your birds' needs - a program that can improve your profits by reducing expenses, increasing production, or both.

For example, we can show you how using a higher density feed could mean using less feed with no loss in production. And that means more eggs for less money.

But we know there's a lot more to layer production than choosing the right feed. Factors like good sound financing. The right housing and equipment for your layers. Good healthy pullets. And expert on-farm management. Pennfield's program takes all these things into consideration.

Add to that our highly trained sales and service staff, our technical service department and local laboratory, our dependable delivery service - and you've got everything you need for top performance from your flock.

Pennfield's layer program will help you reduce expenses and maximize returns. In today's economy, that's more important than ever.

Both Crossbred & Purebred:

First, take a look at these aggressive Checker Boars

* BLACKLINE A Duroc x Hamp cross that's especially recommended for a herd which has already attained a high level of sow productivity. (Heavy York and/or Landrace breeding). These aggressive breeders give offspring ability to grow fast and yield good carcasses.
* WHITELINE A Duroc x York cross that gives extra breeding power when there's a lot of black or red in your herd. Particularly suited to providing gilt replacements with fast growth and excellent reproduction.
* M-LINE A York x Landrace cross that provides replacement gilts with the ability to farrow large litters, milk well and wean larger pigs.
* HAMPSHIRE Complements red and white breeding by maximizing offspring vigor, reducing backfat, and providing good muscle.
* DUROC Known for their ability to improve offspring growth rate and feed efficiency.
* YORK Passes along a maternal ability that can result in larger, stronger litters.
* LANDRACE A mother breed adapted to confinement that milks well and gives good pig survival.

"GO"-POWER WITH SAME

✱ BIG SAVINGS on FUEL

SAME's air-cooled direct-injection diesel engines operate at higher temp. to wring maximum power from every drop of fuel. Their superiority in fuel efficiency has been proven in competitive field demonstrations, in official tests*, and especially by farmers in everyday working conditions. On-the-farm fuel savings of up to 40% are commonly reported.

*Details on request

✱ BIG SAVINGS thru BETTER TRACTION

SAME's unique integral 4WD system and weight distribution make SAME perform as a balanced 4WD unit . . not as a 2WD with optional add-on power to front wheels SAME 4WD outworks 2WD in dry, soft or wet soils. More "go"-power, not "slip"-power. 4WD increases drawbar power for 15% to 24% more acres worked per hour on the same amount of fuel.

BIG SAVINGS in tires, time and fuel.

✱ BIG SAVINGS on MAINTENANCE COSTS

SAME diesel engines are famous for dependable, trouble-free service . . . a result of unexcelled engineering and quality control in manufacture. Ease of service, long-life interchangeable parts and elimination of liquid-cooling equipment slashes maintenance costs and down-time . . . keeps SAME on the job.

✱ BIG SAVINGS on INITIAL COST

SAME includes many, many features as standard that are extra cost options (if available) on other makes. This, plus our excellent dealer back-up and warranty, are additional reasons why farmers by the hundreds are switching and saving big with SAME.

Nothing to fear

Farming is, and always has been, a risky business — not only in the financial sense but physically as well.

Most of us can probably relate our share of horror stories based on farm-related mishaps and near catastrophies. But somehow, no matter how often we're reminded of the danger, we seem to think "those kinds of accidents can't happen to me."

I remember one story told to me during my earlier years that succeeded in giving me a profound respect for farm machinery, especially tractors, and the damage it can inflict on careless or unskilled operators. The story was about one of our neighbors who lost her mother in a freak accident; of how the tractor unexplainably went out of control as it was pulling a wagon out of the barn, rolled over the edge of the barn bank, and crushed its terrified driver.

What actually went wrong? No one ever found out. But, the accident most likely was the result of an extra hand being needed during haying time. Without the necessary instructions or training, a temporary driver was hoisted up onto the tractor seat, and by taking the wheel without questioning, took her life.

But gasoline-powered "workhorses" aren't the only culprits in the gruesome statistics of farm accidents. We also hear sad tales about deaths or injuries sustained when normally docile, lumbering equines unexpectedly bolt for the barn, trampling or impaling their teamsters.

These are morbid memories that come back to haunt and hopefully help us in realizing just how dangerous our occupations as farmers can be.

Even though farmers sometimes have a difficult time accepting or remembering the dangers we face each day, each time we climb into a waiting bull's pen or step on the first rung of the silo chute, the public doesn't share this disregard for safety on the farm.

Admittedly, their concern about farm safety comes from a selfish perspective. The nonfarm public is not so much concerned about the farmer's health and well-being as they are their own. They don't worry so much whether a farmer may develop health problems as a result of occupational hazards, but they are gravely concerned if various farm practices might pose potential hazards to them.

For example, let me share a story told by Arthur Hart of the National Agricultural Chemical Association to the assembled members of PennAg Industries this week. Although he could be accused of having a somewhat biased point of view, he pointed out some surprising and alarming results of a Philadelphia firm's survey.

What did the survey ask? According to Hart, a list of the 30 greatest health hazards was developed by experts in the field. After the list was made, the public was asked to take the list and put the substances they felt were most dangerous in descending order.

The results of the survey, which polled recent college graduates, business professionals, and homemakers, left no doubt as to how the public feels about pesticides.

You see, pesticides was one of the substances on the list. In actuality, they appeared at the very bottom of the danger list — being tied with three other hazards for twenty-sixth place. But in the survey groups' eyes, pesticides ranked fourth, tenth and fourteenth.

Although Hart could not recall all the substances on the "30-most-hazardous" list, the sum and substance of his tale was easy to understand. By telling his story, Hart was not attempting to exonerate pesticides from being labelled dangerous substances, which they can be if not handled properly. Instead, his point was aimed at the public's paranoia of pesticides and what this fear could ultimately do to farmers.

Hart explained that this unjustified alarm over agricultural pesticides has led to some states drafting legislation which would "handcuff" and shackle farmers' freedoms to operate. One bill was drawn up which would require farmers to notify adjacent landowners of their intent to spray prior to filling the tanks and heading for the field.

One state took this idea one idiotic step further and tried to require prenotification via registered mail. A farmer would have to send out certified letters to all parties and could not spray until all had responded with written permission to his request.

Why, an entire growing season could come and go before those farmers would be able to assemble the necessary paperwork. And, if just one die-hard environmentalist happens to be living next door, the farmer may as well nail up the "For Sale" sign and save the postage.

This week hearings continued in Washington D.C. on federal regulations covering the use and manufacture of pesticides, insecticides and the like, with farm lobbyists and their agribusiness counterparts pleading their cases to predominantly urban congressmen. Although the federal regulations do not seem to threaten farmers with the hand-tieing results of the state fiascos previously cited, the problem remains — "pestiphobia." If agriculture's future use of chemicals is to continue, much needs to be done to educate the public and some unthinking farmers on the safety factors built into a sound pesticide or insecticide program.

Next week is National Farm Safety Week. While you're busy filling silos, baling your last cutting of hay, or fixing the toaster, think safety. And keep Hart's warnings and predictions in mind so that next spring, when it's time to spray, you'll handle farm chemicals with both yourself and your neighbor in mind

Remember, a little courtesy goes a long way in clearing up the public's fears of pesticide drift.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE SAME, YET DIFFERENT
September 19, 1982

Background Scripture:
Genesis 27 through 28; 31 through 32.
Devotional Reading:
Genesis 35:1-15.

I did not really recognize Allen, although when we shook hands there was something vaguely familiar about both his name and his appearance. I dismissed this "odd feeling" until much later in our conversation a chance remark he made led us both to realize that we had met perhaps ten or more years ago under very different circumstances in a little New England town.

At that time I was visiting a facility for delinquent and troubled youth and Allen was a "graduate" of the program who decided to stay on to help as a lay therapist, working with teenagers who, like himself, had considerable emotional problems and had been in some kind of difficulties with the law. I remember looking at Allen and wondering just how rehabilitated he was. In his eyes there were still a lot of that cunning that had made him a despair to his parents and community.

"I Am Not Worthy"

And then I forgot Allen and he forgot me...until yesterday's chance meeting. (Was it really "chance!"? As I left the house to keep an appointment, I was surprised I had made, if Valere had asked me, "You aren't really interested in that proposal, why are you going?" I could not have satisfactory answered her. Was it the hand of God prodding me that led me to say "yes, I'll come"?)

Yesterday afternoon when at last Allen and I recognized each other, I couldn't help but wonder to myself: "Is he really as different as he appears?" Around the eyes and the mouth there seemed to linger some flickering traces of the old Allen. Yet, it was obvious that he was a vastly different Allen than the delinquent teenager who had been sent East by his desperate parents.

It is this same paradox that always strikes me when I read the story of Jacob. Obviously a rascal in the deepest sense—a person of both charm and cunning who uses and manipulates people to get what he wants—Jacob nevertheless returned to his homeland many years later as a man who had changed so much that God would give him a new name.

No More Be Called "Jacob"

The Jacob/Israel who returned to his homeland, however, was not just a new person in a familiar body, but the same personality that had been transformed by his encounters with God. The new Israel still had the old Jacob's charm, sly intelligence and "take charge" assertiveness. He was still as skillful as ever with his persuasive use of words. The essential ingredients of the old Jacob were still in the new Israel.

What made the old scoundrel a new patriarch was the driving force behind all those personal attributes and character traits. God took what Jacob gave him of himself and re-directed it in a new direction and for a new purpose.

And what he did in making Jacob Israel, he can do with you.

To Observe National Farm Safety Week

The proclamation of September 19-25 as National Farm Safety Week is very important during this busy corn harvest and fall grain planting season. Safety is something we should practice all the time, but we need a gentle reminder sometimes. Here are some safety rules that apply to everyone:

 Read and follow the operator's manual for each machine you're using.

 Make sure all workers are trained and competent to carry out their work safely.

 Keep all shielding in place. Stay away from unshielded moving parts.

 Always disengage and turn off the engine before unclogging, adjusting or servicing equipment.

 Watch where you are going.

 Keep extra riders off and away.

 Take work breaks with refreshments to maintain alertness and reduce fatigue.

Let's have a safe harvest season and a safe year.

To Be Aware of Century Farm Programs

The Century Farms Program is aimed at recognizing the efforts of Pennsylvania's farm families which have preserved the traditions and the rural heritage of the pioneer farm.

The program was initiated as part of the nation's bicentennial observance in 1976, but is being continued for its value in promoting the ideals of the family farm and the importance of farming to Pennsylvania's economy.

To be eligible for Certification as a Pennsylvania Century Farm, a farm must have been owned by the same family for at least 100 consecutive years, and a family member must currently reside on the land. In addition, the farm must consist of ten or more acres of the original holdings or gross at least $1,000 a year from the sale of agricultural products.

We encourage you to participate in this program that is administered by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

Applications are available at the County extension Offices.

To Mow Weedy Pastures

If your pasture is weedy, get out the mower. There are two good reasons for this; one it eliminates the production of weed seeds. Two, it removes mature forage which lets plants send out new and tender growth. But, before you mow, you should graze the pasture heavily. With grazing you can utilize all the available feed. The animals eat some weeds, but they also eat some of the tall grasses that would be wasted by mowing. If the dry weather is taking its toll, it is not a good idea to mow all your pastures at one time because of problems with poor regrowth. Under these conditions you should mow only one-third to one-half of the land about every two weeks. Remember to mow closely...2 to 3 inches. And instead of trashing the clippings, save them. Many farmers get enough hay from pasture mowings to winter their cattle.

To Check Water Supplies

Quality drinking water is a great asset on the farm as well as in the urban areas. Some farmers may be having trouble with high bacterial count or high nitrates in their well water supply. These are hard problems to correct. However, in many cases the trouble comes from surface water getting into the well.

We urge all rural residents to check their wells and be sure that surface water is diverted around the well area. This is especially true if the well is located downgrade from farm buildings or from where livestock wastes have been scattered.

Commercial laboratories are available to test the water for contaminants. Most importantly, keep surface water away from the well area at all times.

Omaha Cattle

Omaha
Thursday, Sept. 16, 1982
Report supplied by USDA

CATTLE 51: Compared to previous week's close, slaughter steers and heifers ended the week 1.50-2.50 lower. Cows 1.00-1.50 lower. Bulls steady. Fed. Cattle prices fell to their lowest levels since January of 1982; with the majority of the decline coming on Monday's enlarged receipts. A 1.00-3.00 drop in carcass beef realizations was the prime factor in the downturn; but pressure also attributable to more lilberal available numbers and an increased slaughter rate. Overall finish just fair, although some increase in numbers of yield grade 4 apparent in the receipts. Annual Audubon Iowa T-bone sale on Thursday accounted for 1200 cattle in week's total. Steers comprised 38 pct. of week's receipts; heifers 35 pct; cows 5 pct; feeders 21 pct. Four-day receipts 9890; last week 8715; year ago 11902.

STEERS: At the close, six loads Choice 2-3 1150-1325 lbs. 63.00. Choice 2-4 1050-1225 lbs. 61.00-62.50. Mixed Good and Choice 2-3 1000-1150 lbs. 60.00-61.00. Few good 59.00-60.00.

HEIFERS Choice 2-4 925-1025 lbs. 58.50-60.00. Mixed Good and Choice 2-3 900-1000 lbs. 57.50-58.50. Good 56.00-57.50. Average of LS-214 detailed quotations for Choice 900-1100 lb. steers 61.62; 1100-1300 lbs. 62.38. Three day average cost steers 61.29, average weight 1128 lbs., as compared 64.04 and 1116 lbs. A week ago. Three day average cost heifers 58.82, average weight 973 lbs., as compared 61.44 and 977 lbs. A week ago.

Play it safe in the broiler house

NEWARK, Del. — The more modern a poultry house, the more mechanized it becomes. And with increased mechanization, the potential for accidents goes up.

After a tragedy, it's too late — at least for the victim. A more positive approach is preventive action, says University of Delaware Extension poultry specialist George Chaloupka. He says poultry producers can take a number of precautions to lessen chances of an accident.

All houses now have mechanical feeding equipment which may move without warning. Do not let small children play around this equipment. Keep drive belt and auger shields in place. And before you work on the system, turn it off — preferably at the main entrance box.

Have all electrical systems well grounded and make connections properly. Keep covers in place on switch panels and junction boxes. Ideally they should be sealed from moisture and dust to help prevent shock on contact and also to lessen the possibility of arcing and fire.

Have help when working on an electrical system, in case of an emergency. Always remove the fuse or circuit breaker when servicing defective equipment, even if it only involves replacing a broken light bulb. "If you're working away from the control panel, leave an obvious sign to let others know what's happening," Chalouka advises.

It's imperative that all overhead wires be high enough for feed trucks, live-haul trucks and loading equipment to pass safely underneath.

Many poultry houses have bulk feed bins with ladders. These ladders and rungs should be secured to the bin, and constructed to permit a good foothold, the specialist says. There should be handholds at the top of the bin and the top cover should be easy to open. Other ladders — either metal or wood — should be in good repair and should be handled properly. Be careful with tall metal ladders around bare power lines, he cautions.

Periodically poultry houses are cleaned out with manure-handling equipment including tractors with front-end loaders, elevators, spreader trucks, manure spreaders and the like.

"This machinery should be operated only by qualified people who don't allow riders," Chaloupka says. "All power take-off guards and covers should be in place and operators should not wear loose clothing. Do not attempt to repair or unclog equipment while it is running."

When applying chemicals such as insecticides, disinfectants, herbicides or litter treatments, pay particular attention to directions and cautions on labels. If in doubt, seek help from proper authorities. Don't take charge! Dizziness can lead to death in 10 minutes.

Hands or fingers are occasionally cut badly or completely severed by unguarded ventilation fans. Wire guards should be securely in place at all times — particularly on fans hung in the center of a broiler house and used for summer ventilation. A momentary loss of balance near an unguarded 36-inch fan could result in tragedy.

"Everyone should accept responsibility for accident prevention," says Chaloupka. "Poultry growers should be most aware of this, since it's the grower who spends the most time in and around buildings. With help from their growout companies, growers should try to make their facilities and working condition as accident-proof as possible."

Pa. farmer continue tobacco, corn harvest

HARRISBURG — Statewide, six days were rated suitable for fieldwork during the week ending Sept. 12, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service. In the northern and central regions six days were rated suitable while in the southern region reporters rated five days suitable for fieldwork.

Field activities included baling straw; plowing; seeding alflafa; planting wheat and barley; making hay; clipping pastures; and harvesting tobacco, corn silage, apples, grapes, cantaloupes, potatoes, sweet corn and tomatoes.

Topsoil moisture in Pennsylvania was rated short by 61 percent of our reporters and adequate by 39 percent.

By the end of the week 32 percent of the corn crop was in dough, 61 percent was dented, and less than five percent was mature compared with 11 percent in dough stage, 54 percent dented, and 16 percent mature last year.

Statewide, 47 percent of the potato crop was harvested, about the same as last year. In the northern region 33 percent was harvested, in the central region 41 percent was harvested, and in the southern region 70 percent of the potato crop was harvested.

Harvesting of tobacco in the Commonwealth was 68 percent complete compared with 76 percent harvested at this time last year.

By the end of the week 23 percent of the barley crop was planted, about the same as last year. In the north 22 percent was planted, in the central region 23 percent was planted, and in the south 24 percent of the barley crop was planted. Wheat was 21 percent planted compared with 14 percent planted at this time last year. In the north 25 percent was planted, in the central region 17 percent was planted, and in the south 25 percent was planted.

Fall plowing was 54 percent complete, the same as last year at this time. In the northern region 37 percent was complete, in the central region 65 percent was complete, and in the southern region 55 percent was complete.

Third alfalfa was 69 percent harvested compared with 60 percent harvested last year. In the north 52 percent was harvested, in the central region 67 percent was harvested, and in the south 83 percent was harvested. Fourth crop alfalfa was 23 percent harvested, same as last year. In the north 15 percent was harvested, in the central region 26 percent was harvested, and in the south 27 percent was harvested.

Statewide, 93 percent of second crop clover-timothy was harvested compared with 88 percent last year. In the north harvest of the second crop was virtually complete, in the central region 92 percent was harvested, and in the south 90 percent was harvested.

The quality of hay made during the week was rated good by 62 percent of our reporters and fair by 38 percent. The amount of feed obtained from pastures was rated below average by 52 percent of our reporters, average by 44 percent, and above average by four percent.

40 years of proof

Since 1940, Gehl has been building field choppers and forage harvesters with one thought in mind ...performance. And, year after year, thousands of satisfied owners prove that we know how to use that specialized experience to build better machines. Today, Gehl concentrates those 40 years of chopping know-how into three fuel-efficient, high-capacity forage harvesters:

Capacity King 1250. The largest capacity pull-type harvester on the market. Gehl's exclusive 24" spinner delivery system keeps forage moving with no cross augers to plug. The giant, 9-knife, 25½" cylinder gives a quality cut. And the new cutterbar adjustment is the easiest anywhere. In-head hydraulic knife sharpener and electric controls are standard too.

New mid-range 1000 gives you the high capacity you'd expect from the big 21" cylinder and fast spinner delivery system. Like the 1250, standard features include the in-head hydraulic knife sharpener, adjustable axles, one-way shear bolt protection and attachment down-stop.

Fuel saver 750 tackles just about any chopping job. Uses less horsepower per ton chopped than many bigger harvesters. Uses less fuel. The 8-knife cutterhead is set into the blower compartment for smooth, continuous material flow. Add Gehl's patented in-head hydraulic knife sharpener for even more cutting efficiency.

Prove to yourself that there's no substitute for Gehl's 40 years of forage harvester experience. See your Gehl dealer soon.

SW 4-H dairy members compete at District show

By Donna McConaughey

DAYTON — Southwest District 4-H members paraded their project animals before judge Ralph Oakes of Jackson Center recently in hopes of being selected to proceed on to the Pennsylvania Dairy Show in Harrisburg.

Many 4-H'ers received the blue ribbon that indicates they may climb another step in the ladder of competition. Particularly proud were the six who also received the purple rosette designating them as owners of Grand Champions.

Walking away with Grand Champion honors in Holstein competition was four-year-old Spring-Lane Conductor Betsy owned by Brian W. Kelly of Blair County. The prize-winning daughter of Wapa Atlinda Conductor was bred by Thomas W. Kelly.

Berkline Rora Prestige Connie won Reserve Champion Holstein honors for Nancy E. Berkley of Somerset county.

The Guernsey competition was topped by Brent Snider of Bedford County with his aged cow. The seven year old, bred by Bernard Snider, was sired by Sniders Arcos Butch.

The Reserve Champion Guernsey was a four year old shown by Ethel Coleman of Indiana County.

Roger A. Brant of Huntingdon County showed both the Grand and Reserve Grand Champion Ayrshires. The champion was six-year-old Androssan Kal's Everly. Reserve Champion honors went to Black Log Mountain Farm Annette 2nd, bred by Brant.

Jersey competition found homebred Golden Faithful daughters on top. The grand champion was High Spring Farm Rachel Rusty, bred and owned by James W. Heeter. The Reserve Champion trophy went to Golden Advancer Sleeper B, shown by Darlene M. McConaughey of Indiana County.

Blair County took home another championship in the Brown Swiss competition with Burket Falls Pat Donella, bred and owned by John S. Burket. The Reserve Champion Brown Swiss was an aged cow also bred by the exhibitor, Susan Houser of Armstrong County.

Elaine L. Benson of Blair County captured both Champion and Reserve Champion honors in the Milking shorthorn show with her senior and junior calves, both bred by James A. Scott.

Store pesticides wisely

LANCASTER — Good organization and planning are important for safe pesticide storage and handling. Donald R. Daum, Penn State Extension agricultural engineer, has these suggestions to keep in mind while hauling, handling, or storing pesticides:

—Make certain plenty of soap and water are available so that any person can immediately wash off spilled pesticide poisons.

—Take extra precautions to watch for leaky containers, damp spots on the floor, and loose caps. Correct any of these dangerous conditions immediately.

—Keep supplies of common household detergents, lime, and sawdust handy for cleaning up or containing spills.

—Triple rinse and dispose of empty pesticide containers properly. Don't keep them lying around.

—Keep protective clothing and safety equipment, such as waterproof gloves, rubber boots, jackets, trousers, aprons, hats, goggles, and respirators, handy to use for cleanup and emergency situations involving pesticides.

—Keep storage building clean, in good order, with a place for everything, and locked.

Crossleys' conservation efforts are highlights of Berks tour

By Laurel Schaeffer

LEESPORT — Construction of a sod waterway and diversion terrace were highlighted during the annual Berks County Conservation tour last week. The tour which started at the Berks County Agricultural Center, progressed to the Gruber Wagon Works, followed by the Energy Fest and Woodburners Expo being held at the Kutztown Fairgrounds, before winding up at Crossley Brothers, Barto, where the sod waterway was being constructed.

At the Crossley Brothers farm located in the Perkiomen watershed, John Crossley showed visitors the construction which was underway for a sod waterway. The site being drained by the waterway was previously an old orchard which has been turned into field crop production.

A combination of terraces and waterways were being built on the ground encompassing approximately 150 acres to slow water runoff and divert it away from a roadway to the back of the property where a natural waterway exists.

Prior to the conservation work, a driveway leading up to the fields was impossible to maintain do to washing, explained Crossley.

The conservation work, which includes countour strips, will slow the loss of soil due to the runoff and will help retain the water. Crossley stated he remembers an agronomist telling a group of farmers not to let water leave the farm whenever possible.

The Crossleys began conservation farming with recommendations from the Soil Conservation Service in 1950 — the fifth farm in the county to have signed up in the conservation program. All of their farms, consisting of 400 acres are in conservation practices, including three miles of terraces and three miles of tiled waterways.

"We were always picking rocks and stones," John Crossley explained, "when we first thought of joining the conservation program. After joining, the soil loss was much less, as was their fertilizer and machinery repair bills."

"The water was washing all the soil away, leaving more rocks exposed, each year, Crossley explained. He also noted the conservation practices incorporated into his farming operations have cut down fuel consumption. The terraces have leveled his steepest land, reducing the danger of tip overs.

The Crossleys raise 200 acres of alfalfa and put the rest of their farmland into corn and small grain production. They also have 40 acres of buckwheat planted as a double crop. The farm is run by John Crossley and his brother Harry with the help of four employees.

The Crossleys milk 170 grade Holsteins using a double-six herringbone milking parlor installed seventeen years ago with a gravity flow pipeline. Manure is stored in tanks and hauled out four times per year.

They have also built a four-acre pond and stocked it with fish. The pond was primarily built to help the local fire company, Crossley explained.

Henry Bohn, director of the Berks County ASCS office told the tour participants that cost shares were still available from his office for conservation practices. He urged any farmer interested in doing conservation work on a farm to contact his office as soon as possible. Explaining that the next county committee meeting for cost share approval will be held September 24th.

Bad backs are keeping them down on the farm

LANCASTER — As a farmer, you should stand a good chance of escaping one of the most common disorders of the human race: lower back pain.

Clinical studies show that four out of five times, back pain can be traced to insufficient exercise. Increasingly sedentary occupations have been blamed for the soaring numbers of back sufferers in our midst.

So surely farmers should be immune from this particular malady.

Unfortunately, that's not the case. Studies show that lower-back pain is an important health problem for farmers. In one study up to 50% of the farmers complained of fatigue in the lower back and shoulders.

While farmers may be in better physical shape than most urban workers, they also subject their backs to more severe stresses. And faced with a minor back injury, the average farmer will keep right on working because "Somebody's got to do the chores." Soon a minor back injury has become a major back problem.

One Iowa farmer injured his back when he jumped off a tractor. He took a flying leap off the tractor and jarred his back so badly that he couldn't walk for two days. Other farmers injure their backs by using poor body mechanics. Using a straight back and a pitch fork to move a heavy, solid product around the farm is a sure way to ruin a good back.

It's no wonder that farmers are well-represented among the 75 million people suffering from back problems in the U.S. today.

How can you avoid a back injury? The following tips should help.

—Be especially careful when you are lifting. Don't bend at the waist and reach over to pick up something heavy, for example, a 100-pound sack on the ground. Instead, squat down, grasp the object and rise, making your leg muscles do the work.

Back injuries often occur when farmers work in cramped quarters and try to do heavy lifting. This kind of lifting should be done with a hydraulic lift, not the human back.

—It's also important to avoid twisting and lifting at the same time. Torsion puts added strain on back muscles.

—Avoid "tractor back" which is caused by jolting for hours with inadequate back support in the seat of a tractor or other vehicle. If you feel back strain when you are riding your tractor, truck, or car, install special back supports in those vehicles.

—Watch your weight. A well-rounded abdomen can be a major cause of back strain all by itself; every 10 pounds of extra fat in front exerts 100 pounds of extra pressure on the back.

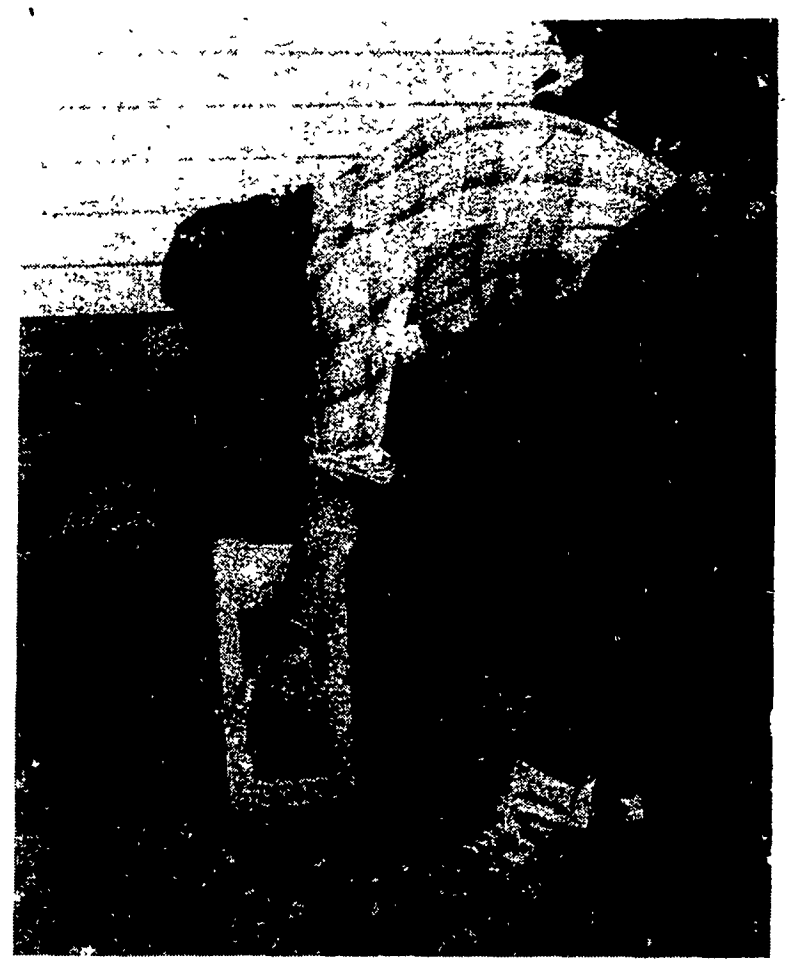
Maintain good posture. Pull in your stomach and walk tall instead of slumping; you will reduce the inward curve of your lower spine and alleviate strain on it.

—Stay in shape. The physical work you do has undoubtedly endowed you with some well-developed muscles. However, for the back to be properly supported it is necessary for all the muscles which support it to be strong and in balance with each other.

If you should suddenly develop acute back pain and have trouble walking and moving about, you will require medical treatment. The sooner you seek it, the better. X-rays are necessary to determine whether or not a compression fracture of the spine (as caused by a fall) could have occurred.

After some time and a good deal of rest, most severe back pain does subside. For you as a farmer, however, days or weeks flat on your back in bed could be highly inconvenient.

So prevent the whole process by taking care of your back now. Remember: it's one of the most valuable pieces of machinery you own.



Bad backs are keeping farmers down on the farm, sometimes for indefinite periods of time. Never bend over from the waist to pick up somthing. Instead, lift with your leg muscles.

Solanco beef champ seeks meat cutter job

Aftrer eight years of competition, Tom Herr, R2 Quarryville, stands in the grand championship winner's circle at the Solanco Fair Beef Show on Thursday night.

QUARRYVILLE — Already at 18, Tom Herr has been a champion in two phases of the meat industry.

Now, he'd like to get into a third.

Thursday night, his 1145-pound Limousin-Angus steer was crowned grand champion of the beef show at the Solanco Fair.

During his FFA career at Solanco High School, Tom's many achievements included a gold medal in livestock judging in statewide competition held on the Penn State campus.

Now, as a graduate of Solanco, he'd like to get into meat cutting.

(Are there any butchers or store owners out there interested in a young man who, not only has the eye for a good animal, but can raise one, too?)

Judge Conrad Grove, of the Devereux-Soleil Farms Angus operation, slapped the rump of the husky, meaty red steer and picked it over the 4-H champion, shown by 12-year-old Tracey Landis, of R2 Quarryville.

And Herr, who served as president of the Solanco FFA Chapter last year as well as county secretary, had his first grand champion in eight years of showing.

His best previous showing had been a lightweight class champion.

This year's champ came after the Herr family moved off the farm, too. The farm, owned by his grandfather, was sold during the past year and Tom boarded "Red" at neighbor, Lester Ranck.

The meaty red steer was purchased from the York County operation of Donny Walters at a sale held last November at Fite's sales arena. It likely came out of the hills of West Virginia.

Results of the FFA show:

Lightweight -- 1, Brett Holzhauer; 2, Mike Miller; 3, Steve Aument; 4, Robert Findley; 5, Wayne Shubert.

Middleweight – 1, Tom Herr; 2, Fritz Frey; 3, Ken Trout; 4, Tom Herr; 5, Jamie Frey.

Heavyweight – 1, Ernie Frey; 2, Tim Hanks; 3, Fritz Frey; 4, Jack Heidelbaugh; 5, Jim Strawser.

FFA champion, Tom Herr; reserve, Brett Holzhauer.

Lightweight – 1, John Frey; 2, Rita Frey; 3, Ernie Frey; 4, Fritz Frey; 5, Andy Herr.

WHY AeroDry™ COMPUTERIZED GRAIN MANAGEMENT ?

1. Tremendous Energy Savings
Because of its high energy efficiency, savings over heat drying are 15¢ to 20¢ a bushel.

2. Reduced Shrink Loss
Because test weights are so high, you end up with more corn.

3. Better Gain Quality
About 10% better feed conversion. Nutrients aren't cooked away by high heat

4. Tax Benefits
Aero Dry qualifies for a 10% investment credit and 15% energy credit — taken right off your tax bill.

Mr. & Mrs. Art Hershey
(Mr. Hershey is the Republican Candidate for State Legislature 13th District)

"The elevator told us our corn had the highest recorded test weight of 1980. Our cost to dry was 6¢ a bushel. We're starting on our third season now. Already this year, three farmers asked me if I'd buy it all over again. I said yes to all three. We've been happy with our system."

Peach Bottom families sweep Solanco dairy shows

BY DONNA TOMMELLEO

QUARRYVILLE — Although this year's Solanco Fair dairy show will not go down in the record books as one of the fair's largest, those exhibitors present on Wednesday and Thursday went after the blue ribbon with no less enthusiasm.

The number of entries had been steadily increasing since the completion of the fairground barns in 1976 and 1977. However, fair officials estimated there were about 40 less animals, this year than in past contests.

A Peach Bottom father and son duo teamed up for top honors in the Holstein competition.

Paul and Mark Welk exhibited the grand and reserve grand champion black and whites, respectively. Paul's champ Welk-Crest Mohawk Skokie was elected grand champ in this her first tanbark outing. The 3-year-old Woodbine Chief Mohawk daughter has records to 18,000 pounds of milk and 731 of fat for a 4.0 percent test.

Welk's son Mark took the Reserve Champion spot with Yankeeland Milestone Sherry. No stranger to the winner's circle, the 2-year-old Poverty Hollow Milestone daughter was grand champ in Lancaster County 4-H competition this summer.

George and Doris Hough of Peach Bottom went all the way, this year, with their 6-year-old Jersey dry cow entry. Since she was a calf, the Hough's Milk-N-Honey Generals Tinsel has been entered in the Solanco contest. According to Doris, the champ always won her class, but this year marked the first as grand champion.

Another Peach Bottom family, swept the Ayrshire competition. Warren Schmuck, who exhibited last year's Solanco champ, must be a believer in the adage, "like mother like daughter." Schmuck's grand champ Spruce Villa S. Letty is the 4-year-old daughter of his 1981 winner. The Oak Ridge Commander Star daughter is projected at 15,800 pounds of milk and 648 pounds of fat. Her full sister notched the Reserve Grand Champion spot.

Cedar-Fringe Ingrid Anna wrapped up the Guernsey competition for owner Robert Kirk of Peach Bottom. The 3-year-old Deacon daughter, who was reserve grand champion last year, is projected at more than 14,000 pounds of milk.

Brian Eckman, 12, collected the junior division champion showman and fitter titles with senior calf "Asta." Brian's sister, Melissa Eckman, 14, bested a field of seniors to gain top showing and fitting honors in the senior division with her 2-year-old "Molly." Brian and Melissa are the children of Don and Faye Eckman, Peach Bottom.

For the color breeds, Steve Wagner, 10, nailed down the junior division showing and fitting title with "Anne," his Guernsey senior yearling. Steve is the son of Bob and Joyce Wagner, Quarryville.

Ayrshire exhibitor, Kris Esbenshade, 16, collected senior showing and fitting honors with senior yearling "Daisy." Kris is the daughter of Fred and Nancy Esbenshade, Quarryville.

Ambler exhibits to Solanco sheep title

QUARRYVILLE — This year's Solanco Fair sheep champs took most of the ribbons back to Chester County, more specifically Cochranville.

Denise Ambler, 16, of Cochranville collected the senior division showing and fitting titles and went on to claim the Grand Champion Fitter and Showman ribbons.

Ambler was joined in the winner's circle by Cochranville 4-H'er Ernie Barrett, 16, who earned the Reserve Grand Champion Showman title and Monica Esh of Kinzer, the Reserve Champion Fitter.

Ten-year-old Kurt Barrett of Cochranville was awarded the Champion Junior Showman and Fitter titles.

In market lamb competition, Scott Mylin of Manheim exhibited the lightweight champion while West Grove 4-H'er Macy Myers claimed heavyweight honors.

Kurt Barrett, 10, foreground, was this year's junior showman and fitter during the Solanco Sheep Show. Denise Ambler, 16, bested the senior competition to take top fitting and showing honors. Both 4-H'ers hail from Cochranville, Chester County.

Oxford exhibitors, the Holmes family swept the Dorsett division, including champion ewe.

While the Hampshire classes included several exhibitors, Michelle Mylin, 13, took both champion and reserve champion ewe with her ewe lamb and yearling, respectively.

Additional results of the Solanco 4-H and FFA Sheep Show follow:

Fond Matt son which sold to Italy, an 87-point Elevation daughter, still milking for Doberiener and a Kingpin daughter, which was sold. Additionally, a recent flush to Leadfield Columbus-ET, the breed's highest bull for predicted difference in pounds of milk at 2,717, produced 15 embryos. She is scheduled for another flush this week, said Doberiener.

Earlier in the show, the Crawford County dairyman collected Reserve Junior Champion honors with Conrid Astrostar Lynn, sired by Leadfield Stardom-ET. The senior yearling writes a two-generation excellent pedigree with high test. Her dam, an Excllent Astronaut has butterfat records to 1,000 pounds while second dam, a 93-point Apollo produced as much as 1,500 pounds.

Doberiener made several trips to the winner's circle, including his last when he accepted the Premier Exhibitor banner for his efforts.

He was joined by Obie Snider of Imler, who earned the Premier Breeder banner. Snider's cow, Singing Brook Astro Patty finished a strong second behind the Ivy cow and became Judge Eustace's choice for Reserve Grand Champion. The 4-year-old Astronaut daughter completed her last lactation above the 20,000-pound mark, said Snider. Snider's champ posted a big win, earlier this summer, when she was named grand champion of the Central Region.

A Lancaster County black and white, Killdee I Bubbler Delight, owned by Fultonway Farms of Willow Street, topped her 3-year-old class and later went on to become a member of the "tremendous trio," which produced much deliberation from Eustace in the championship class.

Cochranton 4-H'er Cinda Oakes nailed down the Junior Champion spot in both the open and junior show with her Marvex daughter Vel-Rus Marvex Penstate Maria.

Chester County 4-H'er Duane N. Stoltzfus took a champion back to eastern Pennsylvania with his junior division Reserve Grand Champion Pennwood Magnet Gem, sired by Mowry Astronaut Samson.

Parkacres Sun Ivy, jointly owned by Ed Doberiener and John Parks of Brookville will once again reign as Pennsylvania's Champion Holstein. The 95-point Ivanhoe Star daughter is projected at more than 40,000 pounds of milk. She finished her previous lactation at 31,933 pounds of milk and 1,385 pounds of fat for a 4.3 percent test. The champion will have a Count Crystan yearling heifer selling in the upcoming Shady Lane Invitational Sale in Quarryville on September 24.

Shippensburg dairyman Jeff Reasner latches on to the Grand Champion Bull, Dyar-Acres Magic Kan-Dew. Sired by Romandale Magic, the junior yearling male is owned and bred by Reasner's father-in-law, Paul Dyarman of Shippensburg.

Shippensburg dairyman Paul Dyarman didn't go home empty-handed. His junior yearling bull, Dyar-Acres Magic Kan-Dew, a Romandale Magic son, bested the male competition and claimed the Champion Bull title.

An S-W-D Valiant son, unbeaten in his 1982 tanbark appearances notched the Reserve Champion Bull spot. Half-n-Half Christopher was the junior bull calf entry of Bryan and Carol McCurdy of Cochranton.

This year's State Championship Show attracted more than 80 exhibitors, statewide. Previous state outings were held in Bloomsburg, but according to Bill

Schuylkill growers to meet

SCHUYLKILL HAVEN - A twilight vegetable meeting sponsored by the Schuylkill County Cooperative Extension Service will be held on Tuesday, Sept. 21 starting at 6 p.m. at Barry and Rick Hetherington's farm, Ringtown.

Farm Safety

one safety rule, it is the one which saves you from disablement or death someday.

Remember, just as with crops that need devotion and constant attention, safe work habits need cultivation too.

National Farm Safety Week, 1982

By the President of the United States of America

A Proclamation

Agriculture, America's oldest and most important industry, once required much of the time of most of our people. No more. Now each farm or ranch worker provides enough food and fiber for himself and 77 others here and around the world.

We are blessed with abundance, but we have no guarantees for the future. If we are to be ready to meet expanding markets and world needs for the products of our agricultural bounty, we must search for still better farming methods. We must find ways to control such factors as accidents that erode our productive capacity in agriculture.

Last year nearly 400,000 farm and ranch residents were injured—many of them fatally—in accidents. The cost in dollars was substantial and, in human suffering, incalculable.

While difficult jobs and adverse conditions are a part of farming, accidents need not be. Most farm accidents and occupational illnesses can be prevented or reduced through safe work practices, use of protective equipment, and attention to safety in the rural home, in transportation, and in recreation.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, RONALD REAGAN, President of the United States of America, do hereby designate the week of September 19 through September 25, 1982, as National Farm Safety Week. I call upon those who live and work on the nation's farms and ranches to commit themselves to the safe conduct of all their activities, both on and off the job. Also, I urge the people and organizations allied with agriculture to help turn this commitment into reality by supporting personal, group, and community safety efforts in every possible way.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this 16th day of April in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and eighty-two, and of the Independence of the United States of America the two hundred and sixth.

Ronald Reagan

Dietz to represent USDA in Rome

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block has appointed George J. Dietz to represent the U.S. Department of Agriculture at the U.S. Mission in Rome. The Mission is the U.S. liaison with the United Nation's food and agricultural organizations which are headquartered in Rome.

The U.N. organizations include the Food and Agricultural Organization, World Food Council, World Food Program and the International Fund for Agricultural Development.

Dietz succeeds Avram Guroff, who has been named a White House Fellow.

In addition to representing USDA, Dietz also will be responsible for commodity and food security activities of the Food and Agricultural Organization and the World Food Council. He also will provide USDA's Office of the General Sales Manager with information about World Food Program activities related to the U.S. P.L. 480 program.

Dietz, a career member of the senior foreign service, has served as agricultural counselor at the U.S. Embassy in Venezuela where his duties included reporting on agrucultural activities not only in Venezuela but also the southern Caribbean area. He also has served as agricultural attache in Madrid (1976-78), The Hague (1953-54) and Oslo (1952-53), and as assistant agricultural attache in Buenos Aires (1948-51).

Dietz was vice president of the Export-Import Bank from 1969 to 1976, overseeing the bank's special projects and export expansion and was the European representative. He was director of market development for Continental Grain Co. (1960-69), director of the Farm Bureau Trade Development Corp. in Rotterdam (1958-60) and director of international affairs for the American Farm Bureau Federation in Washington (1954-58).

A native of St. Louis, Mo., Dietz received a bachelor's degree from The Principia College, Elsah, Ill., and a bachelor of foreign trade degree from the American Graduate School for International Management, Pheonix, Ariz.

Raising cows is dangerous

LANCASTER — Dairy cows may look harmless but raising them is dangerous. In fact, dairy operations are the most hazardous of all cattle enterprises. One reason is that dairymen spend more time with their animals...dairy cows are handled twice every day. This increases the chances of being stepped on, pushed, even crushed.

PFA hosts congressional staffers on farm tour

WASHINGTON BORO — David H. Frey, of R1 Washington Boro, gave a gathering of Congressional eyes and ears a quick financial farm lesson on Monday.

The legislative contingent, which included staff members from the offices of some 10 U.S. senators and representatives, was brought to the Commonwealth for an on-farm tour by the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association.

"We're showing them different types of farming operations so that they can become familiar with farming practices in Pennsylvania," explained Ed Taczanowski, director of local affairs for PFA.

Included in the tours were farms in Adams and Lancaster counties, featuring fruit, poultry, beef, grain, hog, tobacco and dairy operations.

One of the stops was the Frey farm, about three miles southwest of Millersville, where David Frey and his wife, Norma, took a brief pause in tobacco harvesting to escort the group around the diversified operation, which also includes cash grain, steer and hog finishing.

Among the financial aspects that Frey stressed to the group:

—Owners of the farm for only the past three years, the Freys purchased the 145-acre operation when farm real estate values were at their peak and they've been slipping gradually ever since.

"Now, when I go to my banker to borrow money for operating, he tells me it's not worth as much as it was then and that's not very encouraging.

—The spiraling interest rates and higher costs of money also forced the Freys to revise their hog finishing operation.

"We first put hogs into the new building in 1980," Frey told the visitors.

"Then interest rates keep rising and when they reached 18 to 20 percent, it was just too expensive for the market at that time.

Tobacco growing and marketing is explained during tour of Adams and Lancaster farms hosted by Pennsylvania Farmers' Association.

Visiting group of federal legislative staff watches tobacco being speared on David Frey farm, R1 Washington Boro.

The ups and downs of finishing hogs are covered by David and Norma Frey, R1 Washington Boro, center in shorts, to staff members from offices of senators and members of House of Representatives.

Dick Trostle, left, Adams County orchardist, and Al Myers, of PFA, discuss dangers of weather damage in dwarf apple section with visiting group of Congressional aides.

"So, we switched to a contract for this year and now the market is at record high levels.

"Where, we were probably losing $25 a head in the past, now there's that much profit in the marke this year. We just must get our timing right."

Frey explained he is paid on the basis of feed conversion — how efficiently the hogs produce weight gain per unit of feed consumed. His best conversion rate thus far has been 2.8 lbs. of feed per pound of weight gain.

"Our future goal is to eventually have a farrowing operation so that we can produce our own feeder pigs and then cut back on the tobacco acreage," Frey said.

"I'd much rather be on my own but last year broke us for awhile."

And the Frey operation does lean rather heavily on tobacco as a cash crop. There are 40 acres out this year and the total is down about eight or so from last year.

The legislative visitors got a firsthand look at the tough manual labor involved in harvesting a tobacco crop beneath an unusually warm September sun that sent temperatures well into the humid 80's.

And a few even tried their hand at using the long-handled cutters to gnaw through the woody stems that reached thickness of a man's wrist.

They watched the spearing and loading onto wagons and marveled as they gazed up into lofty heights of the shed, questioning the difficulty of balancing on the narrow rafters while hefting the laden lathes upward.

The Frey lathes are heavy this year too — heavier than usual. The harvesting crew was cutting Penn

(Most competative units have transport widths in excess of 14' With wings folded, this harrow can easily pass through a 11' gate. (This applies to all model variations of the Flex 90.)

Heavy Duty Wing Carriers The heavily reinforced 2"x3" tubular steel wing carriers provide full support for folded wings. During transport, wings rest securely in ½"x4" forged steel saddles.

Spring Mounted Bearing Hangers To achieve maximum flexibility, the Flex 90 features heavy duty 1"x2" 5160 manganese alloy steel bearing hangers (the same material used for our chisel plow tines). The hangers are attached to trunion mounts which provide perfect alignment for the guadraseal.

A RHINO IS LONGER LIFE

And RHINO guarantees it... Two Full years.

That's how confident RHINO is that the double-row, square bore, Timken, tapered roller bearings, with quadraseal protection, will stay with you through those tough jobs. These quadraseal bearings are guaranteed to roll, and keep on rolling for two years! And here's why: Quadrasealed double-row bearings offer many more times the capacity than standard ball bearings for the same axle size. With this extra capacity, the probability of overloading is virtually eliminated, even when discing at maximum gang angles. To protect these heavy duty bearings, RHINO offers quadraseal - similar to RHINO'S famous quadraseal wheel hubs which include: a heavy steel seal protecting washer that prevents wire and trash from damaging the seal elements and a triple-lip seal, that runs on a hardened and microfinished surface. This combination provides maximum seal life and efficiency and vastly increases bearing life. Between the steel washer and the seal is a cavity that is filled with grease, that is an additional sealing element against dirt. Seals cannot be hurt by over-lubrication. Computer calculated - set right - snap ring grooves and precision snap rings provide permanent and precise bearing adjustment. The bearing and seals are mounted into a rugged cast iron housing, which is then installed into a steel trunnion. As the trunnion housing pivots, the bearings and axles remain in perfect alignment, and the gangs roll freely.

RHINO equipment has long been known for ruggedness and long life. Now, you get guaranteed long life and assurance of less downtime with the RHINO double row square bore, tapered roller bearings. RHINO quadraseal bearings are now available on tandem and offset disc harrows with spring or rigid mountings. See your authorized RHINO dealer - he has all the facts.

State Holstein Show

Nichol, executive secretary for the Pennsylvania Holstein Association, the annual event will be moved around each year.

"We wanted to move it to different areas so the same people would not have to make the long trip each year," Nichol explained.

"The ringside will change and people all over the state will have an opportunity to see the best Holsteins in the state," he added.

But PHA members, more than 6,000 strong, will return to northwestern Pennsylvania on February 24 through the 26 for their organization's annual meeting at the Hilton Inn, Erie.

What are the best dressed Holstein exhibitors wearing these days? Bruce Snider of Imler models one of several vests donated by western Pennsylvania breeder Robert Freyermuth. The vests were worn by participants in the open Championship Class toward the close of the State Show.

Singing Brook Astro Patty finished in the Reserve Grand Champion spot for owner Obie Snider, at halter. The 4-year-old Astronaut daughter, out of Singing Brook ML Peter, entered the State Show with a Grand Champion Central Region win to her credit.

And although Erie ordinance prohibits cattle within the city boundaries, rumor has it the mayor of Pennsylvania's third largest city will lead the first Holstein into the ring to kick off the Convention Sale.

"I should have gone golfing," laments PHA executive secretary Bill Nichol. It seems the PHA chief, at a recent staff picnic, joined in a softball game. When "Mighty Casey" came to bat he promptly hit a one-bagger. Nichol safely crossed first base but tore his Achilles tendon in the process.

Penn Gate Holstein is champ

BY GINGER SECRIST MYERS
Staff Correspondent

ARENDTSVILLE — Penn Gate Astronaut Betty proved to be a real beauty in the judge's eye for her owner Robert Gitt, Penn Gate Farm, as she collected the Senior and Grand Champion rosettes as well as the Best Udder award at the Adams County Holstein Show held last Friday at the South Mountain Fair.

For his Reserve and the second Best Udder award, judge James Burdett, Mercersburg, went to his second-place aged cow, Glenn-Jen Trader Lucky Linda, shown by Glenn Libby, Jr.

Durboraw's heifer moved up to the Junior Champion slot in the youth show while Brown Valley Dalha Royal, also a junior yearling, was named Reserve Junior Champion for her owner, David Maring.

Seeds' Jersey notches South Moutain win

ARENDTSVILLE — Three-year-old Top-O-Hill Milestone Tempty notched her sixth Jersey Grand Championship of the show season for owner Mildred Seeds during the Jersey Show at the South Mountain Fair. The former Farm Show Champion has been milking for almost a year, but still exhibited the stretch and style needed to carry her over the reserve grand champion, an aged cow, KEK Lavender Denise, shown by Douglas Martin.

Top-O-Hill bred Jerseys also captured the Junior Championship rosettes. First place senior yearlings, Top-O-Hill Golden Touch, owned by Anna Uhlman was Junior Champion while her stablemate, the second-place senior yearling, Top-O-Hill Milestone Glitter, owned by Bruce Heller, was Reserve Junior Champion.

In the Jersey youth show, KLH Silver Soldier Sandys Susy, owned by Kathy Reever was named Grand Champion. And Stilesrite Fascinator Let took Reserve honors for owner Carol Hobaugh.

In the Guernsey breed, John and Ginger Myers, Green Manor Farm, took Grand Champion and Junior Champion titles while Mr. Murren Guernseys, Terry, Pat, Peggy, and Sue Murren, had both Reserve Champions.

Grand Champion Guernsey was a dry three year old, Sunnydell Jupiter Clarissa, and Junior Champion was Green Manor Deacons, Vida, a senior calf.

Sue Murren led her two year old, Mt. Murren Noble Cindy for Reserve Grand Champion as well as her intermediate calf, Mt. Murren Noble, who was named Reserve Junior Champion.

For the Guernsey youth division, Sue Murren's two year old moved up to the Champion slot with Peggy Murren's four year old, Mt. Murren Jills Tex Jenny, capturing the Reserve ribbon.

Dawn Meyer swept both the open and youth champions for Brown Swiss. Mey Maple Barton Jenny, a senior yearling, was named Grand Champion, and Mey Maple Improver Jackie, a senior calf was Reserve Champion.

Judge for the evening was Ruth Benedict John, field representative for the Pennsylvania Guernsey Breeders' Association. — GSM

Berks holds workshop

LEESPORT — The Berks County Cooperative Extension Service is sponsoring a workshop on hedging Tuesday, Sept. 28 from 9:30 a.m. until 2:30 p.m. at the Dinner Bell Restaurant, located north of Boyertown along Route 100.

"In today's economic climate, farmers need to understand and utilize all potential marketing tools," comments Clyde Myers, Extension agent. "Hedging, the marketing tool least understood by farmers, offers an alternative to the unpredictable daily markets."

Providing the expertise at this workshop will be Penn State economist H. Louis Moore and Robert Schlitcher, commodity account executive with Merrill Lynch. Participating on a panel of sharing their experiences with hedging will be Morris Brown of F.M. Brown and Sons, Inc.; John Meyer, Jr. of J.A. Meyer Co.; and Roy Christman, Ro-Ria Farms.

"Today agricultural lending institutions are encouraging, sometimes insisting, that farmers use hedging," points out Myers. "Through hedging, farmers are able to look in a selling price. By determining production costs, a farmer can sell part of his production at a profitable level months before his product is ready for market.

"Whether selling corn, soybeans or swine or buying corn, or soybean meal, all farmers could utilize hedging," he concludes.

PFA tour

Joy, the new Penn State variety. Some of the lathes were running 60 to 65 pounds of tobacco.

"If it weighs like Pennsylvania tobacco and sells like Maryland, we should be in pretty good shape," Frey said.

"It's heavy and this is the best it has looked in the field in a number of years. Now, if it cures out well."

In addition to 20 acres of the Penn Joy, Frey has 10 acres of other Maryland tobacco and 10 acres of Pennsylvania.

"We cut back some eight acres this year, but with this big tobacco we may be down only 2,000 or so lathes from last year.

"I rent shed space and there's not much around this area this year. I just wonder how much tobacco acreage has been cut back this year."

In addition to the Frey farm, the group also visited the James A. Hess dairy operation, near Quarryville.

Included in the Adams County portion of the tour was a visit to the Dick Trostle orchard operation. The operation covers 275 acres, including 130 in apples.

In keeping with the modern trend toward more efficient care and harvesting, Trostle has 12 acres of dwarf trees, which grow across trellises and receive trickle irrigation.

During the tour, Trostle explained the importance of the swing to dwarf trees, which bear fruit earlier and can be more easily sprayed, cared for and harvested.

He also emphasized the vital role that weather plays in a season in which one minute of hail can cause $40,000 in losses. And four minutes of hail can ruin a crop.

The group took a walking tour of the orchards, the packing house and the cold storage area. Trostle presented a bag of tree-ripened apples, pears and peaches to each of the congressional aides.

The operation now features a fifth generation of involvement of the Trostle family in the Adams County fruit industry.

CCC drops interest rate

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Commodity and farm storage loans disbursed in September by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Commodity Credit Corporation will carry a 12 percent interest rate, according to CCC Executive Vice President Everet Rank.

The new rate, down from 14 percent, reflects the interest rate charged CCC by the U.S. Treasury in September, Rank said.

MODEL 643 BOBCAT SKID-STEER LOADER
LIQUID COOLED KUBOTA DIESEL
- Good Cold Weather Starter
- High Wheel Torque For Better Loading And Maneuverability
- Diesel Economy
- High Engine Torque For Greater Response In Heavy Loads
- Featuring The Exclusive "Seat Bar" For Operator Safety & Comfort

"We tried to work our cattle/hog operation with a tractor loader and just couldn't manage it. Our place is 'designed for a Bobcat.' No troubles. No breakdowns."
DEAN HANENBURG
Dairy Farmer
Foley, MN

"My 643 diesel uses about ⅓ less fuel than my other gas machine...and it does the work of three extra men. Runs so reasonable it's unbelieveable."
RICHARD OLSON
Dairy Farmer
Ellendale, ND

"Our 643 diesel starts like gas, runs like gas...but we don't have 'wet' engine problems in humid working conditions. We eliminated downtime. It's a slick rig."
JERRY BEUNING

Store grain wet, capture the bounty.

A lot of grain was planted late this year—and will be late maturing. It takes several October or November days to remove as much moisture as one good sunny September day. Maybe this is the year to store your wet grain (22% to 28%) in a Harvestore® high moisture grain system...and capture the bounty of benefits.

You'll get better quality, more efficient feed with more palatability, too! Wet grain is easy to feed and livestock like it. And, that means less labor and better production.

There are even more benefits! By buying or leasing a Harvestore high moisture grain system you can combine one to three weeks early, reduce field losses, eliminate drying costs and have peace-of-mind during the harvest season.

Store grain wet and capture the bounty of benefits. Call your Harvestore systems dealer or representative and get your late-planted grain out early. And, have a Happy Harvest.

Lancaster Countian says...

What's a fair without funnel cake?

BY SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

No Lancaster County fair is complete without funnel cakes, and Kathryn Wagner, 410 Quarry Place, Quarryville, has become a familiar face selling those famous Pennsylvania Dutch treats.

Kathryn first got into the funnel cake business with her Farm Women, Society 15, and enjoyed it so much she now goes out on her own, in a custom made trailer. The clean and neat Kitchen in the trailer would be any homemaker's joy, although Kathryn is still rearranging and adding after three years.

In addition to funnel cakes, she also makes elephant ears and sells cider, coffee and, occasionally, hot dogs.

At this week's Solanco Fair, Kathryn was there with Society 15, beginning each day at 9 a.m. and continuing until midnight, serving up the freshly made delicacies.

Last year they served over 2500 funnel cakes and elephant ears, with elephant ears accounting for just about 400 of the total. Kathryn is hopeful that this year elephant ears will be better known and therefore will sell better.

Society 15 began making funnel cakes six years ago during the county's bicentennial celebration in the county park. After that they did it for other fundraising events, and Kathryn recalls, "I always handled supplies. I borrowed burners and carried skillets."

That was a lot of work so she and her husband Emory decided to invest in a custom made trailer, with a kitchen designed to meet their every need as they produced and sold funnel cakes. The kitchen would be any homemaker's joy, although Kathryn is still arranging and adding, after three years.

The kitchen also has a certificate from the Department of Environmental Resources, a must for public eating places.

Kathryn says she doesn't know the origin of funnel cakes, but says she discovered them first at the Kutztown Folk Festival. She added that it has been within the last 10 years that their popularity has grown in this county.

Elephant ears are an even newer item, and again Katie doesn't know where they get their name. In other places she has visited they are called, simply, fried dough.

To help the uninitiated, Kathryn often displays a sign explaining the two foods.

Funnel cakes are "a sweet batter dropped through a funnel and fried in deep fat, served with confectioners sugar." Elephant ears, according to her sign, are "sweet bread dough fried in deep fat and sprinkled with cinnamon and sugar." They are also brushed with a butter dressing, adding a delicious flavor to the ears.

To make elephant ears, she lets the dough rise once, then breaks it off in small portions, putting it through a pasta machine to flatten it. She then rolls the dough with a "roller-docker," which is a rolling pin with long pins coming out from the center. The pins put small holes in the dough and for some reason it adds to the flavor of the ears. Before she found the roller docker, Kathryn said she always told her helpers not to worry if the dough had small holes in it from handling.

The dough is then dropped into hot fat. The small holes puff and the result is delicious. This year the Wagners had a custom rack built to sit on the cooker and drain the elephant ears before serving. While still warm, they are put on a paper plate, covered with butter dressing, sprinkled with cinnamon and sugar and offered for sale.

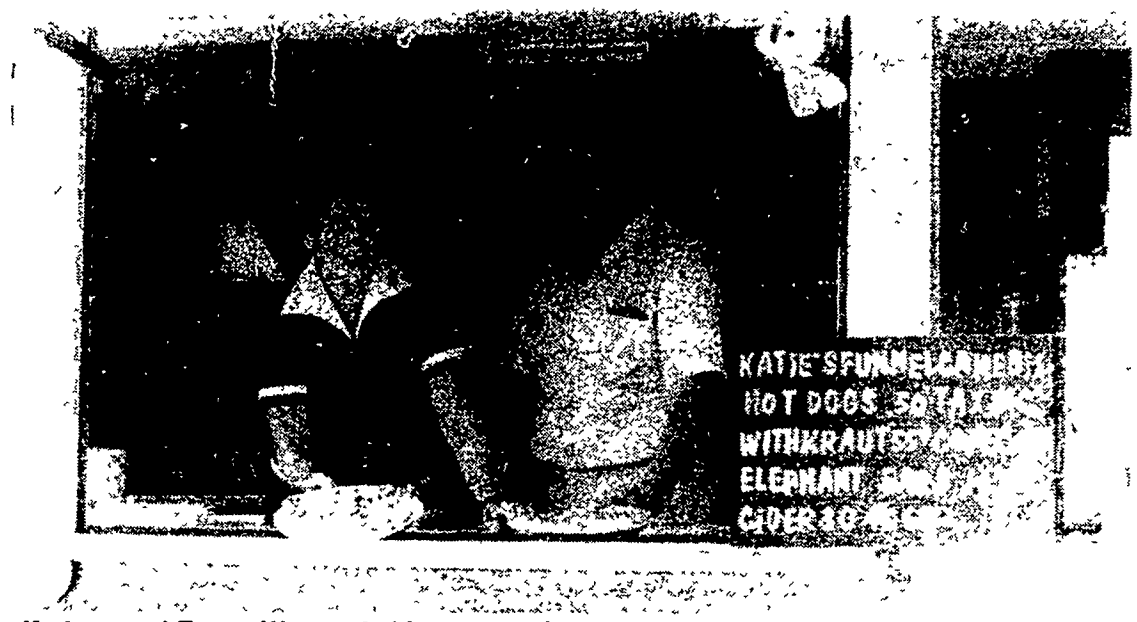
Neither funnel cakes nor elephant ears can be made ahead, but they are made quickly so the waiting time is short.

Kathryn says one man at the Elizabethtown Fair told her he felt elephant ears were the "cadillac of funnel cakes."

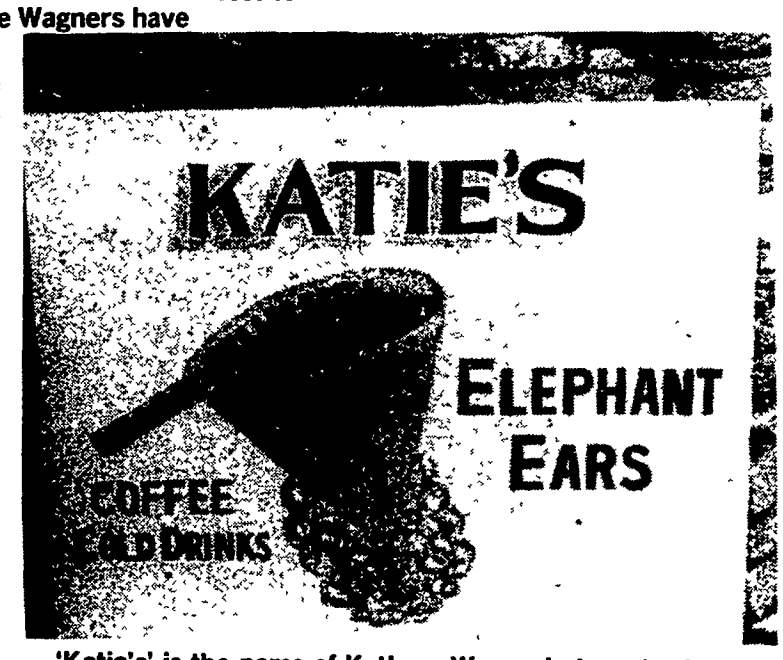
Another asked what she does with the rest of the elephant after she cooks its ears. She replied with a chuckle. "I tell them I cook them into hot dogs."

"I like elephant ears the best. I like them both, but I prefer elephant ears," Kathryn states. Her husband agrees that elephant ears are his favorite, too.

Both the elephant ears and funnel cakes are baked in vegetable oil and Kathryn remarked that elephant ears leave the oil cleaner than funnel cakes since there are no small pieces of dough breaking off. Cleaning and filtering the oil is one job to be done each evening after the cooking is finished.



Kathryn and Emory Wagner hold up some of their delicious treats to sell from their custom built trailer. The trailer and the Wagners have become a familiar sight at many local fairs and festivals.



'Katie's' is the name of Kathryn Wagner's funnel cake and elephant ear business. If you've seen this sign, you've probably been tempted to taste one of her treats, either funnel cakes or elephant ears.

When mixing the batters, Kathryn does use recipes, but says, "I know when it is the right consistency." She noted that different flours affect the consistency of the dough.

To a great extent the batter can be mixed before she goes to a festival or a fair, and in the case of the Solanco Fair, two members of her Society go to her home on Monday and they mix all the dry ingredients for the Wednesday start of the fair.

The elephant ear dough can also be refrigerated, although once when Kathryn arrived at the trailer the dough had risen enough overnight to push open the refrigerator door!

Of course, just like the story of the shoemaker, a visitor to the Wagner home during the winter would be hard pressed to find evidence of a funnel cake. In fact, even the grandchildren are not treated to them at home except at an occasional family picnic.

Her husband Emory is a vital part of her business, which she calls "Katie's." "I couldn't get there without him. He is a big part of it. He kind of enjoys it and helps in the evenings." He makes sure the trailer is in place and ready to go at each fair.

Another Farm Women friend, Emily Reath and her husband Bob, help make the cakes when Kathryn is on her own.

Part of the joy of selling funnel cakes is meeting new people. Kathryn says, "I like to be out with people. Some people come back every night of the fair. I enjoy talking with them." But what she likes best she asserts is "making the cakes, I like to do it."

A member of Farm Women for 43 years, Kathryn served as president two years ago and is now chairman of their "tripping committee." This is no small job since this year the annual trip is to the World's Fair in Knoxville and last year it was to the Grand Ole Opry. Kathryn says these trips have been successful because they include the husbands.

Kathryn also hosts from 35-40 members of TOPS (Take Off Pounds Sensibly) every Tuesday morning in the basement of her spacious home. "I started it 13 years ago," she says. "It is more or less group therapy. A lot have lost weight. We have discussion, and exercises and set goals for ourselves."

She said they also count calories and no refreshments, except coffee, are served.

When questioned about the apparent inconsistency with baking up delicious calorie-laden funnel cakes and elephant ears and taking off pounds sensibly, Kathryn smiles and says, "I tell them everybody deserves a break at the Fair. It is a special occasion. I also tell people we've taken out the calories."

This past week most of Kathryn's attention was focusted on the Solanco Fair, one of which she is very proud. "We've always kept out rides and games and gambling. It is really a hometown fair and there's a good feeling about it. I never cook during fair week. Our days are spent there."

Her schedule revolves around the Fairs and other fundraisers in various communities. She often displays a sign asking those interested to call her for their own fundraiser. She says, "We don't want to be out every week, but we are busy in the Spring and Fall. We get the trailer out in April and clean it out."

While she loves working with funnel cakes she admits. "I like January and February. They are the most relaxing months of the year."

Part of her enjoyment of being with people must stem from her early years of marriage when she worked in a grocery store in Kirkwood which her husband and his brother purchased.

In addition to funnel cakes, Farm Women Society 15 also sells food at farm sales. They spend much of their money on youth

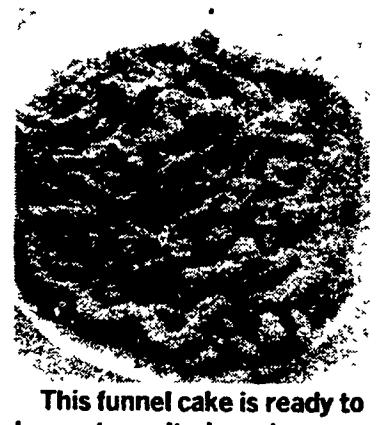
Homestead Notes

Kathryn Wagner puts some dough through the pasta machine,working it to make it into a circle, the first step of making a delicious "elephant ear." After rolling, the dough will be deep fat fried, brushed with butter dressing and cinnamon sugar.

Kathryn drops the dough for an elephant ear into hot fat. After browning on both sides, it will be drained and served.



This funnel cake is ready to be eaten. It has become standard eating at most Lancaster County fairs, and makes a delicious treat for an outing at the fair.

"It's a fact. I don't pay a dime to dry my corn."

"For this farm, ear corn picking is still the most economical way to harvest corn. I don't pay a dime to dry my corn, and I can harvest my crop even when the moisture's high.

"A few years ago, we got more than our share of rain. The harvest was way late—mid-January—and I had to pick some corn and crib it at 36% moisture.

"Frankly, I worried about spoilage. But when the crib was emptied, there wasn't two wheelbarrow loads of spoiled corn.

"I'm really sold on ear corn drying in the crib. And as for my New Idea two-row picker, it's hard to beat. I've owned three of them over the past 17 or 18 years. All those years the worst problem I had was a broken conveyor chain, and Avco New Idea made that good—no charge! You can't beat that!"

Lavern Wolters

Fact: Drying costs are higher than ever and going up. More and more farmers are taking another look at crib drying.

Fact: Our two-row Superpicker is available in two models to accommodate narrow-row and wide-row picking.

Fact: Avco New Idea also offers a one-row picker with a husking bed and a one-row "Snapper" for husk-on picking.

Fact: If you need to have shelled corn, just attach an Avco New Idea sheller to our two-row Superpicker.

Fact: Avco New Idea invented the very first, successful, PTO-driven, pull-type corn picker in 1928. Today, more farmers own Avco New Idea pickers than any other brand. That's why Coldwater is known as the "Corn Picker Capital of the World." We made them first. And, we make them last.

Fact: Avco New Idea's Superpickers let you pick for less and dry for free. That means more profit per acre. You really should see them at your Avco New Idea dealer soon.

Child safety seats save lives

NEWARK, Del. — State legislatures recently passed a law requiring young children to travel in auto safety restraint seats. So many of these seats are on the market, some parents may have trouble knowing which to choose. They may also question the need for such restraints.

"Parents and grandparents like to hold infants," says University of Delaware Extension home economist Debbie Amsden. "This is fine when you're at home. But holding the child in a moving car can be deadly. In a collision at only 20 miles an hour, a 15-pound baby will be thrown with a force equal to 300 pounds. Arms are not strong enough to protect a baby in a moving vehicle."

Instead, she recommends buying a cradle-type seat that holds the infant in a semi-reclining position, allowing it to nestle inside the harness.

"Children are likely to be thrown during an accident," she says. "Unless their bodies are secured, they may take off like rockets. Child safety restraint seats can reduce the chances of death in an accident by over 90 percent."

Several styles of seats are suitable for toddlers — a safety harness, a protective shield, or a conventional car seat. The safety harness has shoulder, lap and crotch straps. It allows more freedom of movement but lacks side protection.

The protective shield fits in front of the seated child. It is designed to catch and cushion the youngster in a crash. This type of seat also fails to offer side protection. And many children discover that they can slip underneath the shield, so parents must be more alert when this type of safety restraint is used.

A conventional car seat for a child has a harness with two shoulder straps and a crotch strap. It is secured by the car's seat belt. This type of restraint holds the child's shoulders in place and provides protection from all sides.

"Legislating that children must be in safety seats and getting a child to sit in one are two different things," says Amsden. "Children feel constrained in the seats, and sitting still is no fun. However, youngsters who use safety seats from birth grow up accepting them as normal.

"Those who are introduced to the seats at age two or three may resist. For them, what a parent does is more important than what is said." Children should sit in the safety seat every time they are in the car, she says.

For more information about safety seats for children, write Mail Room, Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware, Newark, DE 19711. Ask for the fact sheet, "Children are Fragile — Handle with Care."

Fairs and funnel cake recreation, one of their earliest goals. Kathryn recalls, "We helped put electricity in the one room schools and bought playground equipment for them. Now we aim to help out with a park in Kirkwood."

Kathryn is very open about her funnel cake business and points out, "I'm not afraid of too many people making them."

With Solanco Fair over, Kathryn is looking forward to the other fairs during the remaining weeks of fall before she and her husband clean up the trailer and close it for the winter.

When the first festival of Spring comes, she'll be ready, with her quick smile and her delicious funnel cakes and elephant ears. It is a lot of hard work, but it is work with many rewards for Kathryn.

Read pesticide labels carefully

LANCASTER — You wouldn't bake a cake without consulting the recipe. Likewise, don't use a pesticide or medication without first reading the label.

Youngsters aren't the only ones who accidentally contact harmful substances or the wrong stuff due to mistaken identity. Always check the label to make sure you have the right product or medication. Turn on a good light or go to a door or window, if necessary to see clearly.

Never transfer a potentially toxic product into an unlabeled container or one made for a different product. Many people have suffered serious illnesses and even death because they mistakenly inhaled pesticides and other chemical products that had been put into food or drink containers.

Murphy says that a frequent reason for such transfer is to conserve storage space by pouring leftover materials from large containers into smaller ones. Store all products in original containers until completely used. If they might not be used up, dispose of them. And if you find an unmarked or unlabeled container, don't guess at its contents. Throw it away.

Let the label be your guide. Read it carefully before using any product and follow the directions. If you have any questions, consult the dealer or an authority.

Warn family and workers to read and follow label directions when applying pesticides and using chemical products. Discuss instructions with inexperienced workers and those who might not understand the printed words.

Be careful not to damage labels when handling and storing products. Keep containers clean and in a dry place to make it easy to read the label for future use.

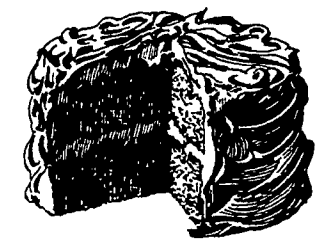
Home On The Range



"What's to eat, Mom?"

When the kitchen door slams shut and the crashing of lunch pails sounds upon the counter, you know the youngsters are home from school and they're going to be hungry.

The next time this question filters through the house, be ready with a delicious snack and a cold glass of milk.

Following are recipes — some of them packed with calories, some famous for protein content and others you will declare are "good for you" when you serve them. Take your pick and make your youngsters happy.

MICROWAVE CARAMEL CORN

7 large marshmallows OR 2 T. light corn syrup
1 stick butter
1/2 c. brown sugar
1/4 t. baking soda

Combine marshmallows or corn syrup, butter, and brown sugar in mixing bowl. Cook on 100 percent power for 3 minutes. Add baking soda and stir. Cook additional 30 seconds on 100 percent power or until marshmallows are melted.

Stir immediately and pour over 3 to 4 quarts of popped corn, stirring to coat evenly with caramel.

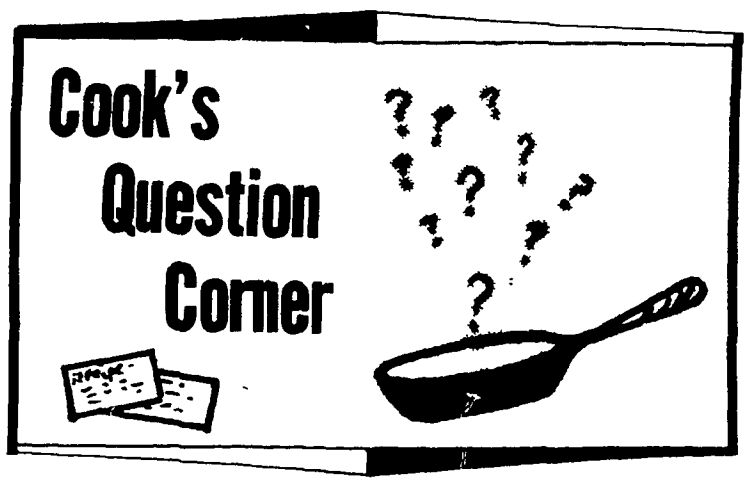
Pour coated corn onto wax paper and let it cool or chill.

GRAPE SNACK CUPS

1 lb. seedless green or red grapes, stemmed
1 pint vanilla ice cream, softened
1/4 c. cookie crumbs
9 or 10 paper muffin baking cups

Reserve about 30 grapes for garnish; mix remaining grapes with ice cream. Place paper baking cups in muffin pan; sprinkle half the cookie crumbs into cups. Spoon grape mixture over crumbs. Top with reserved grapes and remaining crumbs. Freeze several hours or until firm. Remove from freezer about 5 minutes before serving to thaw slightly.

For an after school snack that's filled with nutrition and packed with vitamins, try this egg sandwich. Simply fry the eggs, add bacon and tomatoes, and serve with milk. The youngsters will love it.



QUESTION - I would like a recipe for canning vegetable soup in quantity. Can anyone help me?

Mrs. Leo Barsnica
Neshanic, NJ

ANSWER - For Lois Miller from New Freedom who requested a fruit pie filling is the following recipe from Evelyn Hissong of Greencastle. Another recipe appears at the end of the recipe section this week.

APPLE PIE FILLING

4½ c. sugar
1 c. cornstarch
2 t. cinnamon
3 T. lemon juice
2 or 3 drops yellow food coloring

In large sauce pan, blend first 3 ingredients and add 1 t. salt. Stir in 10 c. water. Cook and stir until thick and bubbling. Take off heat, add lemon juice and food coloring.

Slice raw applies in quart jars. Pour hot syrup over apples until full. Hot water bath 20 minutes. Makes approximately 7 quarts.

CHOCOLATE SAUERKRAUT CAKE

2 1/4 c. flour
1 t. baking soda
1 t. baking powder
1 1/2 c. sugar
2/3 c. shortening
3 eggs
1 1/4 t. vanilla
1/4 t. salt
1/2 c. unsweetened cocoa
1 c. water
1 c. sauerkraut, rinsed, drained and chopped

Sift together flour, baking soda and baking powder; set aside. Cream sugar and shortening, add eggs, mix well, then add vanilla, salt and cocoa. Mix well. Alternately add flour mixture and water. Add sauerkraut. Bake in greased and floured pan, 8-inch square pan, 325 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes or angel food cake pan at 375 degrees for 45 to 50 minutes.

For a secial effect for the kids, spread 1 can of cherry pie filling over the top or drizzle powdered sugar glaze.

MATRIMONIALS

1 1/4 c. flour
1 c. brown sugar
1 1/4 c. rolled oats
1/2 t. salt
3/4 c. butter
3/4 c. jam

In a medium bowl, mix first five ingredients. Cut mixture together with a fork to crumb-like consistency. Place 1/2 mixture in shallow 8x8 inch pan. Cover with jam. Sprinkle remaining crumbs on top and press firmly. Bake at 350 degrees for 40 to 45 minutes.

NOTHING RUNS LIKE A DEERE

Mow it, bag it. One-step lawn care with John Deere Lawn Tractors

Take care of your mowing and bagging chores in one operation with a John Deere lawn tractor and optional 6½ bushel rear bagger.

John Deere lawn tractors are available in four models — the 8-hp 108 with 30-inch mower; the 11-hp 111 and 111H Hydrostatic with 38-inch mower; and the 16-hp 116 with 38- or 46-inch mower. All feature color-coded controls and roomy operator's area.

A new two-hamper, rear-mounted bagger holds 62 percent more than the former one-hamper type. It has two 3¼-bushel hampers that can be lined with trash bags for quick disposal. It fits on the 68 Rider and John Deere lawn tractors with 30- or 38-inch mowers.

Stop in. We'll show you a John Deere lawn tractor and new rear bagger — a combination that can't be beat.

CHOCOLATE RIPPLE CAKE

1 c. soft butter
2 c. sugar
3 eggs
1 1/2 t. vanilla
3 c. sifted flour
2 t. baking powder
1/2 t. salt
1 c. milk
3/4 c. chocolate syrup
1/4 t. baking soda

Cream butter and sugar together till light and fluffy. Add eggs one at a time, beating well after each addition. Add vanilla. Sift dry ingredients together, add alternately with milk, beat until smooth. Pour 2/3 of batter into greased and floured tube pan.

Combine chocolate syrup and soda, lightly blend with remaining batter. Pour over batter in pan, do not mix. Bake 45 minutes at 350 degrees; then place aluminum foil over top of pan. Bake 25 minutes longer. Cool completely before removing from pan. Do not invert.

Naomi Blank, Kinzers

Following are three recipes submitted for Cook's Question Corner. Two are delicious-sounding recipes for pumpkin cakes and the other is a fruit pie filling.

PUMPKIN CAKE

3 c. all-purpose flour
1 1/2 c. sugar
1 1/4 c. salad oil
3 1/2 t. cinnamon
2 t. baking soda
2 t. baking powder
1 t. salt
4 eggs
one 16-oz. can pumpkin
1 c. chopped nuts

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. In large bowl, measure all ingredients except nuts. With mixer at low speed beat ingredients until just mixed. Increase speed to high and beat 5 minutes, occasionally scraping bowl with rubber spatula. Stir in nuts. Pour batter into 10-inch tube pan.

Bake one hour or until toothpick inserted in center of cake comes out clean. Cool cake in pan on wire rack 10 minutes. Remove from pan and cool completely. Frost cake with cream cheese frosting which is a smooth compliment to this cinnamon spiced cake. It is easily mixed and keeps well.

Eleanor Soulagnet

PUMPKIN CAKE

3 c. flour
3 c. granulated sugar
2 c. cooked pumpkin
1 1/2 c. salad oil
2 t. baking soda
2 . baking powder
2 t. cinnamon
4 eggs
3/4 c. walnuts or raisins

Mix sugar and oil. Sift dry ingredients together. Add sugar and oil mixture. Mix well. Add eggs and mix well. Add pumpkin, walnuts.

Bake in loaf pan at 350 degrees for 35 to 60 minutes or until it is done.

Mrs. Charles Biehl

FRESH FRUIT PIE FILLING

1/2 c. granulated sugar
1/2 c. water
1/4 t. salt
1 t. lemon juice
1/4 c. clear jell
1/2 c. water
1/2 c. light syrup
3 c. fruit

Heat sugar, 1/2 c. water, salt, and lemon juice. Remove from heat. Make a paste with the clear jell and 1/2 c. water. Stir into heated mixture and bring to a boil. Mixture will be very thick. Remove from heat and stir in syrup. Cool and add 3 c. fresh or frozen fruit. For sour cherries add 1/4 c. more sugar and add 1/2 t. red food coloring. Makes 1 quart pie filling. May also be canned by cold packing in jars for 20 minutes.

After being canned a few months, the clear jell will divide itself, but after being heated or baked in the pie it will turn out new again.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

One of the interesting places that my husband and I visited in Iowa this summer was the Amana Colonies. There were seven villages in close proximity.

This group of people came from Germany in 1842 and settled near Buffalo, N.Y., having broken away from the Lutheran Church. They believed that God could communicate to his followers through an individual the same as he did in the days of the prophets. As their community grew and the price of land soared, they felt a need to move west in order to remain apart from "worldly" influences.

Thus it came about that they eventually purchased 26,000 acres in Iowa. They lived a communal life and worked the fields and all ate at a common table.

In order to sell their products and meet the needs of the community, they established woolen mills, flour mills, lumber and brick yards and a calico works. Each village had their own tinsmith, cobbler, tailor, carpenter, harness-maker, furniture-maker, butcher, baker and basket-maker. These crafts were passed down from one generation to another.

The women worked and prepared three meals and two lunches each day for the community members. The children attended the village school six days a week all year-round.

Than something happened in 1932. Due to the depression and dissatisfaction among members, they abandoned their communal lifestyle and formed a profit-sharing corporation. They now received wages and owned their own homes and ate in their own family kitchens. Their products are accepted as excellent and today they sell woolens, furniture, smoked meats, and also major appliances such as food freezers, refrigerators and air conditioners.

They no longer attend church services 11 times a week, although they still wear dark suits and the traditional black cap, shawl and apron to services each Sunday morning.

On being a farm wife -And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Keeping my eyes on the cow in the ring before me, I reached up again to scratch that doggone ear. Maybe it was the hat, or a touch of poison ivy, but for some reason it felt itchy.

"Sold!" barked the auctioneer, "to the lady on the end of the front row."

Glancing around to see who the buyer was, I figured that I'd heard him wrong. There were no women on the end of any front row.

Uh oh. Yes there was.

Me.

Overcome with horror-stricken shock, I watched the slip runner approach in my direction with that floating detachment they use to depict dreams in the movies.

"But, but, but....I didn't bid on that cow," I stammered and shook my head, as the runner handed me the buyer card for a signature. The figure on the card was $20,000.

"I was just scratching my ear!"

And then I woke up. That dream — no, nightmare — always ends at the same place.

Attending pedigreed Holstein sales is a mixed-business-and-pleasure activity that our whole family enjoys. Or at least I enjoy it until those occasions when the guy with the gavel is looking in our direction for a reason.

Luckily, the bids when we've bought were never even faintly close to that figure. Of course, such a price isn't really uncommon, and many outstanding individuals bring far more than that, some running into the six-figure amounts.

In spite of the continuing depressed farm economy, top quality breeding stock, be it dairy or beef cattle, hogs, sheep, or whatever, remains among the best selling of farm commodities. (Maybe the fact that the government hasn't figured how to regulate that yet has something to do with it.)

While attending such sales, we enjoy sitting near the sales ring, where we can really see the cattle being offered. One recent cow-sale front seat experience, though, left a particularly lasting impression on all four of us.

Maybe it was the excitement of the sales ring, or the unfamiliar smells of fresh sawdust and strange people, or the echoing sounds of the microphone that unnerved one large cow offered near the beginning of the dispersal.

As the exit gate opened, this bewildered bovine charged the haven of home in the safe familiar barn, kicking up her heels behind her like a mule with revenge on its mind.

Lined up across that front row on the same side our family, all four of us, caught the full force of the flying sawdust, about a good barn scoop-shovel's worth.

Every squirming moment through the rest of the sale worked the sticky, damp "confetti" farther down in hair and clothing. In fact, after awhile, the stuff got downright itchy. And you have to be so careful about scratching in the middle of a bidding chant.

I've always known it, but have never seen one sale fact so vividly demonstrated: you sit in the front row at sales at your own risk.

But at least that was one sale that left us with fuller pockets when we left for home than when we arrived.

Refueling tractors can be risky

LANCASTER — Refueling tractors is almost a daily job on most farms. This chore can be rather risky or suitably safe, depending on how it's done.

Turn off the engine and if hot, allow it to cool some before refueling. This reduces the amount of vapors given off and the likelihood of them igniting. Diesel fuel is less flammable than gasoline or an alcohol blend, but that doesn't mean you needn not observe these precautions with diesel equipment.

Do not smoke; it could ignite any vapors or splashes.

Filling a big tractor can take a while, so take a comfortable position as you'll want to do the job without fatiguing or contorting your body.

Remove the tank cap slowly, allowing any pressure to escape before taking it all the way off. Check that the cap venting or pressure release valve is clean and working as it should.

Watch what you are doing. Make sure the nozzle is well inside the filler neck and start fuel flow slowly to avoid regurgitation. When the tank is nearing capacity, back off on the flow and top the tank with care to avoid overfilling. Let the nozzle drip a few moments before removing it. Wipe up any spills and let residue dry before restarting the engine. Lock the fuel pump or storage tank before driving off to prevent theft or tampering.

If you are doused with fuel, quickly get away from an ignition source. Remove fuel-soaked clothing and wash affected skin areas with soap and water.

Kid's Korner

Farewell Mr. Blacksmith

"Under the spreading chestnut tree
the village smithy stands the smith a mighty man is he with large and sinewy hands."

If you've ever had to memorize this poem in school, you've probably wondered just what it is a blacksmith of yesteryear did besides hammer metal over hot coals.

Kids, just for you, we are featuring the true story of a genuine ol'time blacksmith.

The story will run several weeks, so watch future issues for more looks inside a blacksmith shop.

This story was written by Ralph Ratcliff and was submitted by his son Bruce Ratcliff of California. Ratcliff tells us his father graduated from Purdue in 1932 in mechanical engineering, and pioneered in the design of many improvements of today including the chisel plow, deep tillage moldboard plow and the lay-over disk plow.

Now on with the story:

I think the blacksmith shop is an integral part of United States history. This is a review concerning some of my experiences, observations and conclusions during my blacksmith years in Kingman, Indiana. The personal concepts are more to give a clearer perspective of the time than to write an autobiography. In relating this, the smith (blacksmith), his shop and the draft horse are inseparable.

In 1920, when I was 10 years old, I became a smith's helper. Some of my first work consisted of preparing (dressing) the horses' hooves to receive the shoe. This consisted of cleaning, snipping, rasping and shaping. Horses loved this.

One day in the spring of 1922, Charlie, the man I worked for had more horses to be shod than he could do that day. Rather than have some people leave and come back later, he asked me if I wanted to try and shoe one horse's hind feet while he shod the teammate's front feet. It would have been easy to decline but harder to tell Mama I was afraid to try. Before dark we completed the work.

Walking home the one mile through the fields that evening I realized I was a smith. Mama was pleased but not surprised. We three children, Ross, then 1, and Doris, may have relied more on Mama than did children who had both parents; our father died the day I was 20 months old. Ross was the only one of us who had the pleasure of remembering him.

It may have been a month before I shod all fours on a horse. Charlie had been giving me a big advantage. It is much easier to shoe the back than front feet of a horse. You and the horse are in a bind while shoeing a front foot. With the back foot, it is free wheeling.

Charlie was so quiet he was considered anti-social, never using two words when one would suffice. He would reduce a long speech to a short sentence and always spoke in a soft monotone, never raising his voice. In teaching, he was a pantomime artist. He kept liniment, medicated salve and an antiseptic for horses. Our customers frequently made personal use of these. Horses liked Charlie. So did I.

Children were never permitted to roam in a blacksmith shop. The chances of getting hurt were too great. One time when Charlie needed two more hands, I offered to assist. What seemed like a kindness was the beginning of a career. He never did hire me or discuss an agreement. We just seemed to complement each other.

A blacksmith shop was always tidy and clean. There was a place for everything and everything was in place. The bulk of a smith's work involved the forge. Hot iron gets cold rather suddenly. The smith could not waste time selecting or hunting for a tool. His heat treating facilities consisted of his forge and two wooden tubs. One tub was filled with water, the other with oil. Some steels were quenched in water and others in oil.

Among the first things I made in the blacksmith shop were horseshoe nail finger rings and screw drivers to be carried on a key ring. The screw drivers were suggested by my brother. The finger rings are probably nearly as old as horseshoe nails. Boys could select their ring size from the assortment I had. Some of the rings were tailored for a few special girls. This seemed to make good sense at the time. Mama wore the one I made for her for a few weeks just to please me. When she passed away at 90 in 1970 we found her ring in a box among other things she chose to keep. She had kept it for fifty years.

The last time I saw my honored friend and relative Dr. Eldo E. Ewbank, we were visiting with some friends and he took from his pocket his key ring and keys and called our attention to a shiny screw driver on the key ring and remarked that little boy made it for him nearly fifty years ago and that he had probably used it a few thousand times. Many things are long remembered, and popular among these are simple kindnesses. On the basis that "You have it made if you can count five friends who would risk their lives to save yours if the chance of saving yours was equal to losing their own." Doc was in my five as long as he lived.

When I started working with Charlie we did not have electricity in our town. It was major improvement when we acquired a sickle sharpener and steel saw powered with gas engines. Electric power came to our town in the early 1920's. The pole truck used by the construction people had two-horse power. A bay and a gray. We shod them and repaired the equipment for the construction company.

The price for shoeing horses regardless of shoe size was $4 for a team, $2 for a single horse and $1 for the front feet only on one horse. The work consisted of about 25% each for shoeing draft horses, setting steel tires on wagon wheels, pointing plow-shares and miscellaneous.

Setting tires consisted of removing the tire from the rim of the wheel, heating a section of it and reducing its circumference in a tire bender (also called a shrinker or upsetter), then expanding the tire with heat and placing it over the rim and shrinking it by applying water as fast as possible. Pointing a plowshare consisted of replacing and shaping the point after it had been worn away by plowing.

Unscramble some safety measures

Kids, it's National Farm Safety Week, and it's time to do your share. You can help Mom and Dad observe this special week by obeying their orders, reminding them to be safe, and by staying away from the following potentially harmful farming necessities. You'll have to unscramble them.

Noise on the farm - is it a health hazard?

LANCASTER — Farmers work in a very noisy environment. Can this noise jeopardize their health?

Most definitely, says University of Delaware Extension farm safety specialist Ron Jester. "Many of our farmers are suffering from impaired hearing and are not aware of it. Many more will find that they have hearing losses as the years go by."

There is increasing evidence that noise also affects man's non-hearing systems and psychological well-being, says Jester. Exposure to moderately loud noise over a long period of time may be just as hazardous as a very loud noise for a short time, he says.

"The best way to check your hearing is to have a complete hearing test by a competent hearing specialist," Jester says. "If this is done annually, you may be able to determine that you have loss before more extensive damage occurs."

There are two ways to combat the problem of noise-induced hearing loss: 1 eliminate excessive noise at its source; 2 keep the noise from reaching the delicate inner ear by use of shielding devices or hearing protectors.

New Zealand IFYE is 4-H, farm ambassador

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Having grown up on a 752-acre sheep and crop farm in New Zealand, with a breeding flock of 1,800 ewes, it was appropriate that Josephine Duncan, Maryland's latest International 4-H Youth Exchange representative, was introduced to her first host family in this state last month at the sheep show at the Howard County fair.

She arrived in central Maryland on the day of the 4-H sheep show, Aug. 17 at the West Friendship fairground, and she made plans to watch the 4-H sheep show at the Maryland State Fair in Timonium.

Miss Duncan's interest is spurred by the fact that Rebecca A. Pfefferkorn, 14, youngest member of her host family, and a Howard County 4-H member, exhibited sheep at both the county and state fairs. Becky's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James W. Pfefferkorn, live on a 40-acre farm near West Friendship.

Josephine Duncan, a 25-year-old native of the Canterbury plains on New Zealand's south island, doesn't brag about comparative sheep numbers. But she did mention in an interview that her country has 70 million sheep and 3.2 million people in an area of 104,000 square miles.

By comparison, the state of Maryland has 19,000 sheep and 4.2 million people in an area less than one tenth the size of New Zealand.

On a smaller scale, the sheep population on Miss Duncan's home farm is approximately equal to the number of sheep in any of the top three sheep-producing counties in Maryland; namely, Frederick, Harford or Carroll.

Warming up to her topic, the New Zealand IFYE noted that the sheep on her home farm are Romney-Border Leister crossbreds. Often called Coopworth in New Zealand, the Border Leister is regarded as an easy-care meat and wool breed.

This dual-purpose breeding emphasis gives New Zealand sheepmen more marketing flexibility than their Australian counterparts, who still depend primarily on the world fine-wool market to earn a living.

Miss Duncan reported that Iran and England comprise the largest markets for New Zealand chilled lamb—not frozen—and Russia is the biggest market for New Zealand mutton. California and Canada have been targeted for building up sales of New Zealand chilled lamb on the North American continent.

The big Iranian market for New Zealand lamb has developed only within the past five years, she said. In deference, many New Zealand slaughter floors now face toward Josephine Duncan, right, an International 4-H Youth Exchange representative from New Zealand, shows that she is no stranger to sheep as she paid a recent visit to the University of Maryland livestock barns. Miss Duncan is holding "Wilson," a crossbred Hampshire ram in the university flock. Holding "Wilson's" pal, also a Hampshire ram, is Walter Baumgarner III, livestock herdsmen at the College Park campus. An agricutural economics transfer student from Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, Bumgarner is a native of Mechanicsburg, Ohio.

Lazarus captures several hog awards

ALLENTOWN — Leslie Lazarus, of Whitehall, member of the Lehigh County FFA, exhibited the champion market hog in the vo-ag show held at the Allentown Fair.

In addition, Lazarus had two class champions, the reserve champion pair and was named champion showman.

In the lightweight division, Lazarus' first-place entry was followed by those of Terry Adams, Kutztown Chapter, in second and third. Lazarus had the top middleweight. Among the heavyweights, top finishers were Kirk Fisher, Oley, first and forth; Bonnie Wessner, Lehigh, second and third; and Todd Bennecoff, Lehigh, fifth.

Fisher's heavyweight was named reserve champion. In pairs competition, Bonnie Wessner was first and champion, followed by Lazarus, Fisher, Bennecoff and Adams.

In fitting, the order of finishers included Bennecoff, champion; Adams, reserve; followed by Wessner, Fisher and Lazarus. In showing, Lazarus as champion and Bennecoff as reserve were followed by Wessner, Fisher and Adams.

Breeding swine results:

Berkshire: March gilt, 1, Todd Bennecoff; February gilt, 1, Todd Bennecoff; champion, Bennecoff.

Duroc: January gilt and champion, Terry Adams.

Poland: January, March and April gilts and champion, Bonnie Wessner.

Spotted Poland: January, February, March and April gilts and champion, Leslie Lazarus.

Landrace: February gilt and champion, Wessner.

Wessner wins supreme champion at Allentown hog show

ALLENTOWN — The swine show at the Allentown Fair was held Sept. 1 with 18 exhibitors parading pigs, from six different breeds before Judge Matthew Parsons, Penn State swine extension specialist.

The Supreme Champion title sow went to Harland Wessner's Landrace hog. Wessner owns a swine operation of 200 to 300 pigs. He raises Landrace, Poland China and some crossbreds for farrow to finish operation. He also raises some stock for breeding and show purposes and sells feeder pigs on occasion.

Supreme Barrow title went to the Duroc owned by Seth Gruber of New Tripoli.

Supreme champion boar honors went to the Spotted Poland China owned by Leslie Lazarus of Whitehall.

FFA teams win judging contest

ALLENTOWN — The Lehigh FFA team finished in first place in the vo-ag livestock judging competition and the Hamburg FFA team won the dairy judging contest at the Allentown Fair.

The Lehigh team was composed of Bonnie Wessner, who finished second in the livestock judging; Leslie Lazarus, third; and Joshua Grim, tied for tenth.

The Kutztown team of Joel Burkholder, Mark Latshaw and Karen Rabenold finished second in the livestock judging and the Hamburg team of Harold Dietrich, Greg Stricker and Mark Rohrbach was third.

More than 60 contestants took part in the livestock judging.

The winning dairy judging team from Hamburg FFA was composed of Charles Seidel, Carol Dreisbach and Jan Adam. The Twin Valley team of Lisa Yoder, Glenn Stoltzfus and Pam Trostle scored a like number of points. The third-place team from Oley Valley was made up of Kevin Schlegel, Jill Jesiolowski and Shawn Sparks.

The top ten livestock judges in order include Joel Burkholder, Kutztown; Bonnie Wessner, Lehigh; Leslie Lazarus, Lehigh; Harold Dietrich, Hamburg; Gwen Hower, Bethlehem; Mark Latshaw, Kutztown; Bert Lerr, Twin Valley; Rod Stoltzfus, Twin Valley; Greg Stricker, Hamburg; and Jim Heffner, Oley Valley.

The top ten dairy judgers in order of finish include Lisa Yoder, Twin Valley; Kevin Schlegel, Oley Valley; Glenn Stoltzfus, Twin Valley; Stacey Myers, Kutztown; Jan Adams, Hamburg; Jill Jesiolowski, Oley Valley; Pam Trostle, Twin Valley; Clark Schnable, Twin Valley; Shawn Ink, Twin Valley; Troy Mest, Western Montgomery.

Lehigh FFA wins chapter award

ALLENTOWN — The Lehigh County FFA Chapter was honored as the outstanding participating Future Farmers of America group at the Allentown Fair.

The Kutztown FFA finished in second place and the Upper Bucks FFA was third in the competition based on the total number of points for placings in the various vo-ag FFA categories of competition.

The competition is sponsored by the Lehigh County Agricultural Society.

In the fair, a total of 11 chapters had a record 812 entries in competition for sheep, dairy, swine vegetables, flowers and arrangements, grains, hay, straw school exhibits and displays.

Ford Tractors Equipment

Know the causes of tractor overturns - then avoid them!

LANCASTER — There are four major causes of overturns when driving a tractor or any other type of farm machinery, says Dennis Murphy, Extension safety specialist. Read them and memorize them, so you can avoid fatal accidents.

1. One major cause of overturns is raising a load higher than the center of gravity of the equipment. To avoid this, there are four precautions that can be taken. Use wide front ends, and keep your attachments low when using them. Always use proper weights and ballasts, and remove the attachments when they are not being used.

2. Centrifugal force is a second cause of overturns. This occurs when a sharp turn is made at a high speed and the tires become pivot points, causing the vehicle to turn over. Murphy recommends idling down before making sharp turns and keeping brakes evenly adjusted.

3. Overturns also occur when a vehicle is being used to pull a stationary object, such as a log or tree stump. This "rear axle torque" results in a backward flip. Operators can avoid this accident by not blocking the wheels when stuck and always backing out of holes. Another precaution is to avoid popping the clutch and sudden starts.

4. Improper hitching can also cause overturns. When a heavy load is hitched, the front end can be lifted off of the ground and the vehicle can flip backwards. To prevent this, remember to keep the drawbar at the recommended level, hitch only to the drawbar, and use the proper ballasts and weights.

Murphy reminds tractor operators that the few minutes needed to take safety precautions may save valuable time, energy, and human resources in the long run.

New Zealand IFYE

Mecca. And Iran has sent 100 slaughtermen to New Zealand to butcher the lambs for that market in accordance with Muslim ceremony.

Chief importer for New Zealand wool is now mainland China, with Great Britain and Russia also big buyers.

Medium crossbred wool is the most dominant variety produced in New Zealand. It is used mostly for carpets, home furnishings and the coarser, heavier garments such as coats and jerseys.

Although she has been working for the past four years as a primary teacher in the public schools at Waipukurau (A Maori tribal name) on New Zealand's north island, Miss Duncan maintains an active interest in rural affairs. She is a four-year member of the Young Farmers Avon Club, and she serves as vice-chairman in the East Coast region for the New Zealand Federation of Young Farmers Clubs.

Young Farmers is the New Zealand counterpart of 4-H clubs in the United States, Josephine explained. However, the organization aims at young adults in the 15 to 30 age group. By contrast, 4-H clubs maintain membership eligibility for 9 to 19-year-olds.

One reason that Young Farmers groups in New Zealand succeed in an age bracket where U.S. teenagers are dropping out of 4-H clubs is that very few New Zealand teenagers are in the work force.

They have to work harder in high school than their U.S. counterparts, Miss Duncan believes, since they are required to pass proficiency examinations in both the third and fourth years of high school.

They must pass the third-year exam to be promoted. And mastery of the fourth-year exam is necessary in order to enter a state university. Success in both examinations is considered a prerequisite to obtaining a "decent" job, the New Zealand IFYE commented.

As a prime example of the New Zealand educational system, Miss Duncan was a Dunsmuir scholar in 1980. In addition to her current duties as a public school teacher, she does private tutoring in speech and drama. Her leisure interests cover a wide range—sports, sewing and drama.

The New Zealand IFYE is scheduled to stay with the Pfefferkorn family in Howard County through Sept. 8. Then she will be hosted for successive three-week periods by the John D. Reinhold family at Starkey Corner, north of Centreville, and the Richard F. Smith family at Glen Burnie.

The Reinholds are dairy farmers, while both Mr. and Mrs. Smith are suburbanites who work for the U.S. Department of Defense.

Miss Duncan is receiving financial assistance as a IFYE representative from the National 4-H Council and the Ford Motor Company Fund. Before coming to Maryland, she spent three months as a IFYE representative in Montana.

Farmers need head protection, too

We need all of you

LANCASTER — A third of all accident fatalities are caused by head injuries, and an even higher proportion of deaths from home falls and traffic accidents can be blamed on such topside trauma, according to William D. Hanford, manager of the National Safety Council's farm department.

"Farmers and ranchers suffer their share of head hurts, too," says Hanford, "ranging from bumps while working in close quarters to massive impacts dealt by falling objects and overturning tractors. Of all farm work injuries reported in the Council's state farm accident surveys, nearly one in ten involved the head."

Head injuries would not be as alarming if, like most other body cells, brain cells could be repaired or regenerated. A broken leg or arm will usually heal, leaving little lasting impairment. And with the recently developed techniques of micro-surgery, severed body members can often be successfully reattached.

But brain damage is irreversible. Even if a victim can be retrained so that an undamaged section of his brain can take over functions that were performed by the injured portion, it is a slow, tedious, expensive process and the victim is seldom as good as before.

What can one do? Hamford says, "Avoiding accidents is your first line of defense. If you don't ram that car ahead, you won't fly into the windshield. If you watch where you are going, you won't crack your head on that low overhead obstruction. However, when farm or ranch hazards are such that avoidance isn't enough, protective headgear becomes your next line of defense."

Protective headgear has been used for many years by workers in a number of industries, and of course by soldiers, racing drivers, football players, motorcyclists and others whose activities expose them to the risk of head injury. It is credited for saving many lives, reducing the number and severity of head injuries and conserving countless millions of dollars.

But protective headgear has yet to enjoy wide use on the nation's farms, though Hamford and other farm safety leaders are trying to change this.

Md. farm under observation due to rabid skunk

ANNAPOLIS — The Maryland Department of Agriculture's Animal Health Section has placed the livestock on an Allegany County farm in the Cumberland area under observation for a period of 30 days following the owner's discovery last week of a skunk in a pen with several feeder pigs.

The skunk was killed and submitted to the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene laboratory and found infected with rabies. It is not known if any of the farm animals were bitten by the rabid skunk.

There has been an increasing incidence of rabies in the Allegany County area of Maryland during the past year, according to MDA.

Any questions regarding unusual activities of wild animals should be directed to the Office of the State Veterinarian (301) 454-3831.

LET SBM SUNNYPIGS DO FOR YOU WHAT THEY DID FOR DON.

"I could see it worked well and would last," says Don. "I compared SBM to 600 watt electric heaters using pigs the same age: pigs under SBM reached 40 lbs. when my other pigs were still at 35 lbs... with the exact same amount of feed. The SUNNYPIG hogs were cleaner on concrete and looked healthier. Even when they were on the truck, you could tell which hogs had been under SBM." Don goes on, "Since then I've bought 20 more SUNNYPIGS. Boy, do they put out heat!"

Loaders disrupt machine stability

When working with front loaders, the object is to keep the bucket as low to the ground as possible, not in the air as this farmer is doing.

Keeping the bucket low allows for a lower center of gravity producing a potentially safer, more stable unit.

LANCASTER — Of the five major factors involved in agricultural accidents, farm machinery and motor vehicles rank number one and two, respectively. Together, they account for nearly one-third of all mishaps.

We need all of you

One of the most common hazards related to these two categories is machine stability or more specifically, overturns.

Basic design is usually the first faulty factor. Today the majority of all farm equipment is designed and constructed to be used primarily in row crop operations. Because they are designed to provide higher crop clearances, they may be inherently less stable in utility situations as secondary use tools.

In the case of front loaders, the ideal situation is to keep the bucket as low to the ground as possible. Keeping it low allows for a lower center of gravity producing a potentially safer, more stable unit.

Today, most farm machinery is designed by expert engineers, field-tested and built for a specific job. Each model has its own individual design capabilities. When human judgment or error forces equipment beyond its design limits, two things can happen.

—First, the operator exposes himself to a potentially hazardous situation because the machine won't function properly.

—Secondly, improper use can lead to equipment damage.

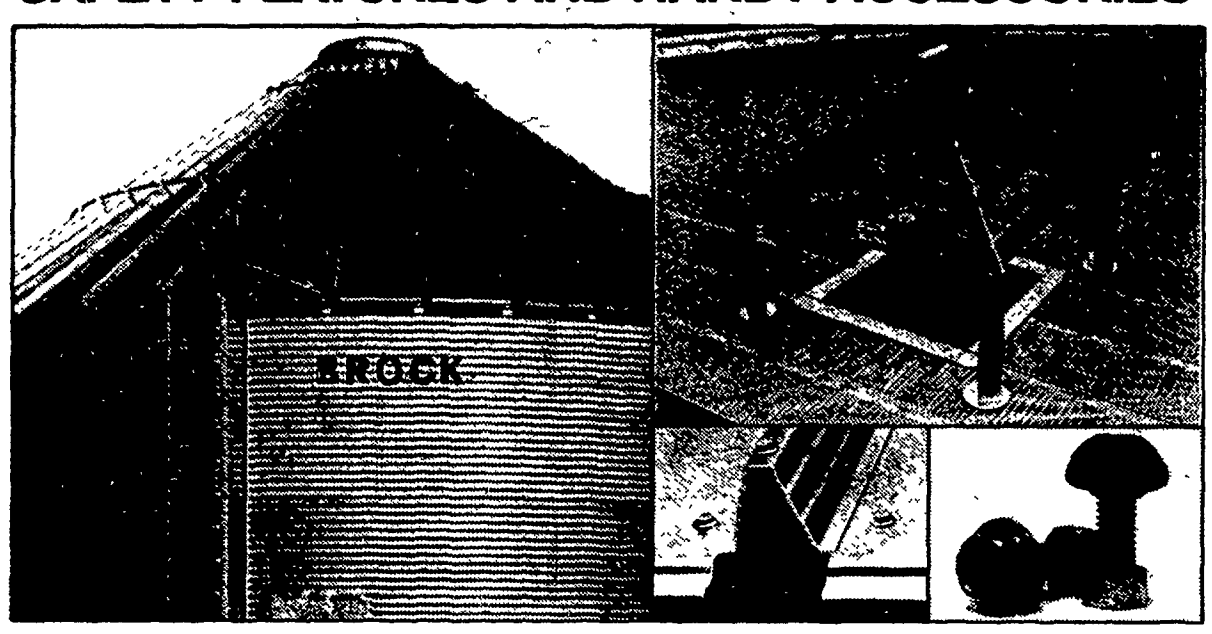
Both can be extremely costly.

Here are some tips to follow when working with your loader:

1. Operate at low ground speed.
2. Keep bucket low when traveling over rough ground or on inclines. This maintains a lower, stable center of gravity.
3. Never carry riders in loader bucket.
4. Never use loader as portable scaffold.
5. Brace irregular loads such as large rocks to prevent shifting to outer edge and causing tractor to overturn.
6. Never work under raised loader without safety supports.
7. Be alert for ditches, rocks or holes that may cause the tractor to overturn.—DK

BROCK - FIRST

...IN GRAIN BIN LONG-LIFE, CONVENIENCE, SAFETY FEATURES AND HANDY ACCESSORIES



Considering grain storage? Then it makes sense to consider what you're getting for your money.

With BROCK, you get more. More long-life features, more convenience features, more safety features, and BROCK offers more handy accessories that add versatility to your new bin.

LONG-LIFE features like High-rise roof ribs and adjustable roof stiffener rings to protect your investment (and your grain) years longer.

CONVENIENCE features like exclusive Cam-Lock door that needs no tools to open, giant fill hole and positive-control lid hinges.

SAFETY features like real ladder tubing on the roof, not just angle cross bars, bolted to the ribs. This eliminates sharp edges.

York Co. schedules tour

YORK - The 1982 Annual Fall Farm Tour, sponsored by the York ASCS Office, the York County Conservation District, Soil Conservation Service and County Extension Service, will be held Oct. 12th.

The bus tour will leave from the North Mall at 8:30 a.m. and return by 3:30 p.m. Included in this year's tour of the southwestern portion of the county is: a stop in West Manchester Township to view stormwater management practices; the James Bailey farm where visitors will see an animal waste management facility for this poultry farm; human waste disposal/utilization will be highlighted on a tour of Penn Township's Sewage Treatment Plant with a demonstration of sewage sludge injection to follow; a visit to the Utz Potato Chip Factory; a hot lunch at the West Manheim Township Fire Hall; a stop at the Wilson Nace farm to see soil and water conservation practices on the land; and rounding out the trip will be a tour of the Lana Lobel Horse Farm.

The cost of the tour is $10 per person and includes lunch and a snack.

Finale daughter tops Garrett Holstein sale

OAKLAND — The recent Garrett County Holstein Production Sale ended with a very impressive sale average of $2,271.00 on 46 head, on the day following an announcement that milk prices will be going down in October.

The highest price of $6,500 came on the second animal in the ring, Md Maple Manor Finale Marie, her sire Wintherur Finale, an Excellent-92 with Excellent mammary, just bred to Elevation. When the bidding was over Norman Yutsy of Timberville, Va. was the new owner. Marie was consigned by the Paul Yoder family of Oakland, Md.

Yutsy also paid $4,100 for an Excellent 4-year-old CH-LO-MA May Apple, sired by P-A-Longview Big Apple and bred to S-S-F Gay Ideal Bubbler. May finished her lactation with 21,874 milk, 4.0 test, 865 fat. Charles Mason consigned the big Apple daughter.

J. Kenneth Brubaker offered $6,100 for his choice of twin heifers sired by Carlin-M Ivanhoe Bell, Northview Farms, Berlin. The dam of these twins was the first national leader in milk and 3rd national leader for fat. The dam is sired by P-A-Longview Big Apple and scored excellent.

A Paclamar Bootmaker daughter Oakview Ridge Sara Santa with dams records of 28,260 milk, 3.5 test, 1,001 fat, sold for $4,700 to William Hunsberger. Carl Bender of Accident consigned the high-producing black and white.

the sale featured a heifer carrying an embryo transfer calf sired by Roybrook Tempo, the dam of this E.T. Cove-Run Astro Grace Tempo VG-87, sold in the 1980 Garrett County sale for $10,500. The young heifer consigned by Walter Brown, Connellsville brought $4,000 from Daniel and Irene Yoder.

J. Kenneth Brubaker, left, is all smiles after purchasing this heifer out of a state and national leader for fat and milk. Brubaker paid $6,100 for his choice of twins sired by Carlin-M Ivanhoe Bell and out of a Big Apple daughter with records to 30,200 pounds of milk, 1,526 pounds of fat for a 5.1 percent test.

Champion steer tops Cambria Jr. Livestock Sale

By Donna McConaughey

EBENSBURG — The Cambria County Junior Livestock Sale was topped by a 1390-pound grand champion steer shown by D. Scott Templeton of Ebensburg. The animal sold for $11,120 or $8 a pound to Charles Cooney of Cooney Brothers Coal Company of Cresson.

The Grand Champion Market Hog was a home-bred Duroc-Spot crossbred shown by Mike Niebauer of R1 Ebensburg.

The Cambria County reserve champion market hog was shown by Cindy Findley. The Duroc gilt was bred by Clyde McConaughey of Indiana County.

The Chianina-Angus crossbred steer was purchased at the Timonium Club Calf Sale and is the third Cambria County champion for Scott. The ten-year 4-H veteran will find the profits from his steer helpful as he begins his freshment year at Penn State's Altoona campus as an ag engineering major.

The reserve champion steer, shown by John McKotch, sold for $2.23 a pound to West End Markets of Cresson and Ebensburg. Also a Chianina-Angus cross, John's steer previously won championship honors at the Northeast Chianina Field Day and was purchased from the Rocking J Ranch in Nebraska.

The grand champion market lamb sold for $8.35 a pound to Gee-Bee Supermarket of Johnstown. Shown by Margie Hughes of Portage, the prize-winner was a Hampshire lamb bred by Donald Witt of Champion.

Todd Niebauer of R1 Ebensburg sold his reserve champion market lamb for $3.30 a pound to James Black Cadillac of Ebensburg. Todd's lamb, also a Hampshire, was bred by Dirk Wise of Centre County.

The grand champion hog, shown by Mike Niebauer of Ebensburg, was purchased by Gee-Bee Supermarket for $3.85 a pound. The Duroc-Spot crossbred gilt was bred by the 13-year-old 4-H'er as part of his swine project.

The reserve champion market hog was shown by Cindy Findley of the Jackson Township 4-H Club and sold to W. Donald Templeton of Ebensburg for $2.15 a pound. The meaty Duroc gilt was purchased at the McConaughey-Winebark Feeder Pig Sale.

The grand champion veal, shown by Lori Niebauer of Ebernsburg, sold for $3.31 a pound to Weyandt's Meat Market. The reserve champion veal was purchased from Jennifer Myers of R1 Ashville by Larry Weyandt of Morrison Cove and Indiana Livestock Auctions for $1.90 a pound.

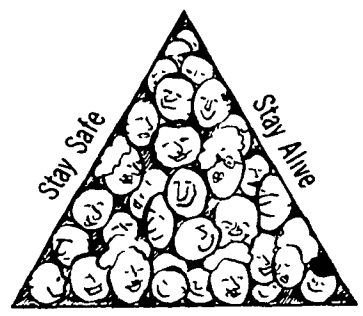
Think tractor safety

LANCASTER — Tractors should be driven no faster than conditions will allow, because speed reduces the stability of tractors. Be alert to hazards in your path such as rocks, holes, or other conditions and make your turns cautiously and at reduced speeds.

Proper braking of the tractor also reduces the chance of upset. Before driving at transport speeds, lock the brake pedals together to insure even braking pressure (brakes must be evenly adjusted). Braking only one pedal at higher speeds can force your vehicle to swerve abruptly and roll over. When travelling downhill, shift to a lower speed before you begin to descend and let the engine do most of the braking. This will help avoid the possibility of a runway tractor which could flip over.

The safety-minded operator will avoid crossing steep slopes with his tractor if at all possible. Tractors are less stable on hillsides and can be easily overturned. If you must work on slopes, however, use tractors as far apart as possible. Watch for bumps or depressions and cross the slope slowly, keeping any side-mounted equipment on the uphill side of the tractor.

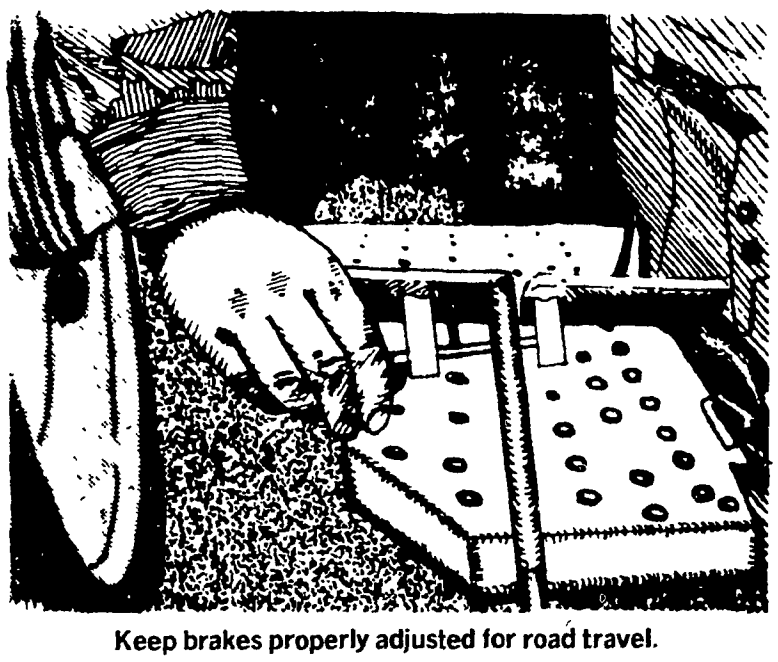
Together with safe operation of the tractor, it is a good idea to safeguard youself with the extra protection provided by a roll-over protective structure. Roll-over protective structures are either protective frames or protective enclosures which, when mounted on the tractor, will limit most upsets to 90 degrees as well as protect the operator, particularly if the operator is wearing a seatbelt.



We need all of you

The safety oriented operator must always be concerned about maintaining his tractor in a stable position. By applying these five safety precautions the chances for turning your tractor over on its side will be greatly reduced:

1. Remember to keep the tractor's center of gravity as low to the ground as possible.
2. Drive no faster than conditions will permit.
3. Lock your brakes before travelling at transport speed and, if possible, use the engine as a braking mechanism when going downhill.
4. Avoid crossing steep slopes. If you must, drive slowly and position side-mounted equipment on the uphill side of the tractor.
5. Guard your life by installing roll-over protective structures on your tractor and use the seatbelt.



Keep brakes properly adjusted for road travel.

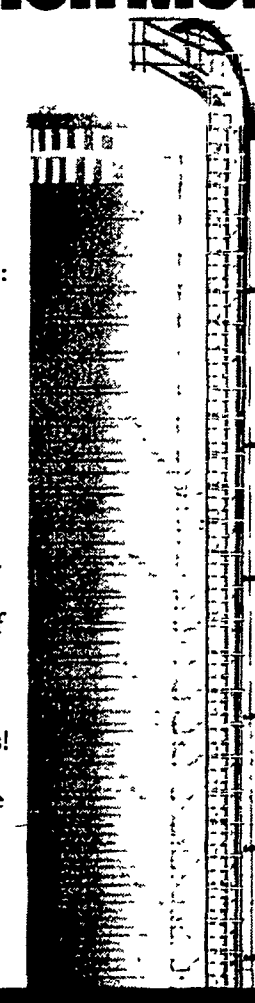
THERE'S NO BETTER WAY TO HANDLE HIGH MOISTURE CORN.

AND WE CAN PROVE IT TO YOU.

The many benefits of high moisture corn are all well known these days: No dryer costs, reduced shrinkage, less labor, less grain damage, fewer field losses, fewer bad weather problems—and a great feed!

And the only way to process high-moisture corn most effectively is with a Madison Grain-O-Matic® Here's why:

The light gray color of the Vibra-Cor® staves reflect direct sun ray heat 2½ times better than the dark color used by others! These thicker truss-beam design staves also provide superior insulation value.



Thus gases in the Grain-O-Matic® structure expand and contract much less than in a steel structure. Inside pressure is regulated by a precision vacuum and pressure valve. Every structure is air-pressure tested by experienced Madison crews. Result: Better feed and no breather bags, so you can fill clear to the top of the structure with nutrition packed high-moisture grain. And you also get the Madison/Laidig bottom unloader that provides fast, positive delivery day after day for a long, long time.

Penn National Show Scheduled

HARRISBURG — The 37th annual Pennsylvania National Horse Show opens at the State Farm Show Arena on Thursday, Oct. 14 and continues through Saturday, October 23.

According to James W. Hagar, show president, the world-famous Royal Canadian Mounted Police "Musical Ride" will be one of the premier attractions. They will present two shows daily during their three-day visit, Monday through Wednesday.

In addition, over 1,000 of the nation's top riders will compete for more than $70,000 in prize money and trophies. Other exciting events include a polo exhibition, ladies' barrel racing, the U.S. Park Police Horsemounted Drill Team and the Valley Forge Military Academy Marching Band.

Jumping competition will be held nightly with the Grand Prix de Penn National closing the show Saturday, Oct. 23. This event is a qualifier for the "World Cup" international competition.

The Pennsylvania Nationa horse Show is a benefit for the Kiwanis Youth Foundation, Inc. Tickets are available by calling 717/233-1335.

Use common sense around manure pits

LANCASTER — The very same manure storage pit that saves a farmer time, fuel and money becomes a serious health hazard when improperly ventilated.

The prime time for most human and animal deaths and illnesses resulting from the enclosed storages occurs during pit agitation, Extension safety specialist Dennis Murphy says.

Farmers should provide as much ventilation as possible and all persons and animals should clear the pit and building during agitation.

The ventilation system should contain a warning system in the event of a ventilation failure which may produce a build-up of carbon dioxide and other gases. Humans and animals can asphyxiate due to lack of oxygen. Such conditions usually occur when the system shuts down during a power failure.

Murphy warns against entering a manure pit at any time, because even an empty pit may contain high concentrations of toxic gases and consequently very little oxygen.

The ever-present threat of explosions exist because of possible methane build-ups. Therefore smoking and other fire sources should be prohibited in the vicinity of a manure pit.

Because animals may lie on slats directly above a pit, Murphy suggests keeping at least one foot of space between the highest manure level and the slats to prevent the inhalation of toxic gases that may accumulate at the pit surface.

Be a part of agriculture's future - think safety

BY DEBBIE KOONTZ

LANCASTER — Many a farmer has vowed that without agriculture he would practically cease to exist. So ingrained has this way of life become in his existence, that if it were taken away, he would find it difficult to function in his now adulterated life.

But let's flip the coin and read the side that makes 'cents' — without you and other dedicated individuals, agriculture would cease to exist. We need you to stay a part of farming's future by thinking safety.

Don't allow yourself to rationalize that you don't have to be careful because you'll go when your time is up. Not all accidents end in death. Some can leave you so maimed and paralyzed that death could easily become a blessing. Instead you become dependent on loved ones for your daily existence — an especially hard task for the farmer, the caretaker of Mother Earth.

Most of us have heard the familiar quotation, "You made your bed, now you have to lie in it. . ." in other words, our actions will lead to the consequences and you have no one to blame except yourself.

The tremendous technical advances of the past few decades in the world of farming have certainly improved the quantity and quality of the harvest and also have lifted much of the drudgery associated with it. But despite this progress, people still suffer needlessly from mishaps.

Most farmers, as well as any citizen, tend to ignore safety rules and precautions. How many safety stories did you skip over in this week's issue before you reached this page? When was the last time you read an owner's manual? Why are people so careful to read the proper instructions on a new stereo, oven, or heater, but not on machinery or automobiles?

Many lives can be saved by just reading and following instructions, using common sense, and slowing the pace when you realize that you're rushing to finish and that you're cutting corners.

Always be ready for the unexpected. In late August a barn was destroyed by fire in Latrobe, Pa. after a piece of farm machinery struck a piece of metal, setting off a spark. Damages to the barn exceeded $250,000.

The owner of the farm sustained burns to his arms and face when trying to lead 25 cattle to safety. The farm hand sustained cuts and bruises. The owner lost two wagons, a hay loader, several motors, all his oats, wheat, hay and straw.

Another tragic accident within the last month involved an 18-month-old Amish boy from Lancaster County who died when he was run over by a tobacco wagon. The boy was the fourth countian to die in a farm-related accident this year.

On the same day the boy's death was reported, a Loretto, Pa. man was killed and two other men were injured when the tractor they were driving overturned in a field.

Of course hindsight is always easier than foresight and it's all conjecturing as to whether these accidents could have been avoided, but with careful consideration for yourself and for others and by staying alert and cautious, you might avoid the same mishaps someday.

On this page are pictures of what not to do when working with machinery. Take a glance around the page and determine how many of the same mistakes you are guilty of. Then test yourself on the following safety checklist prepared by the University of Maryland Extension. If you finish the quiz with 3 or more 'no' answers, then it's time to revamp your farming methods and habits.

Be a part of agriculture's future — think safety.

Safety Checklist

—Is all farm machinery operated and maintained according to instruction manual recommendations?

—Are safe operating rules known and observed by everyone?

—Does every member of the family know how to turn off the machines?

—Are shields and guards always in place when machinery is being operated?

—Are defective or worn parts repaired or replaced as soon as possible?

—Is the power turned off before adjusting, unclogging or servicing a power-driven machine?

—Are children and non-workers kept off and away from machinery and wagons?

—Are tractors equipped with rollover protection, either cabs or frames?

—Are protective clothing and equipment appropriate for the chemical worn by sprayer operators and loaders?

—Are wagons used to haul heavy loads equipped with brakes?

—Are tires inspected and properly inflated?

—Do sprayer operators change clothes daily and wash before eating or touching their faces?

—Are movable components blocked before repair or adjustment?

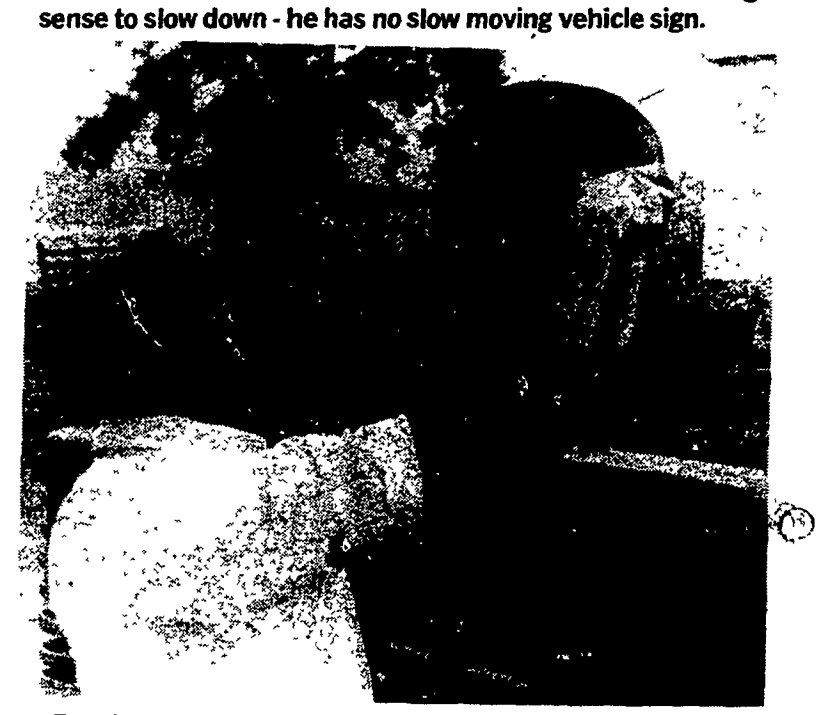
—Are hitches sturdy and safety chains used when on public roads?

This farmer looks perfectly safe, alone on the tractor driving down a deserted country road. But what does he do if a car comes up from behind? He can't depend on a rear view mirror. And he can't assume that the driver will have enough sense to slow down - he has no slow moving vehicle sign.

Human mistakes cause most agricultural accidents

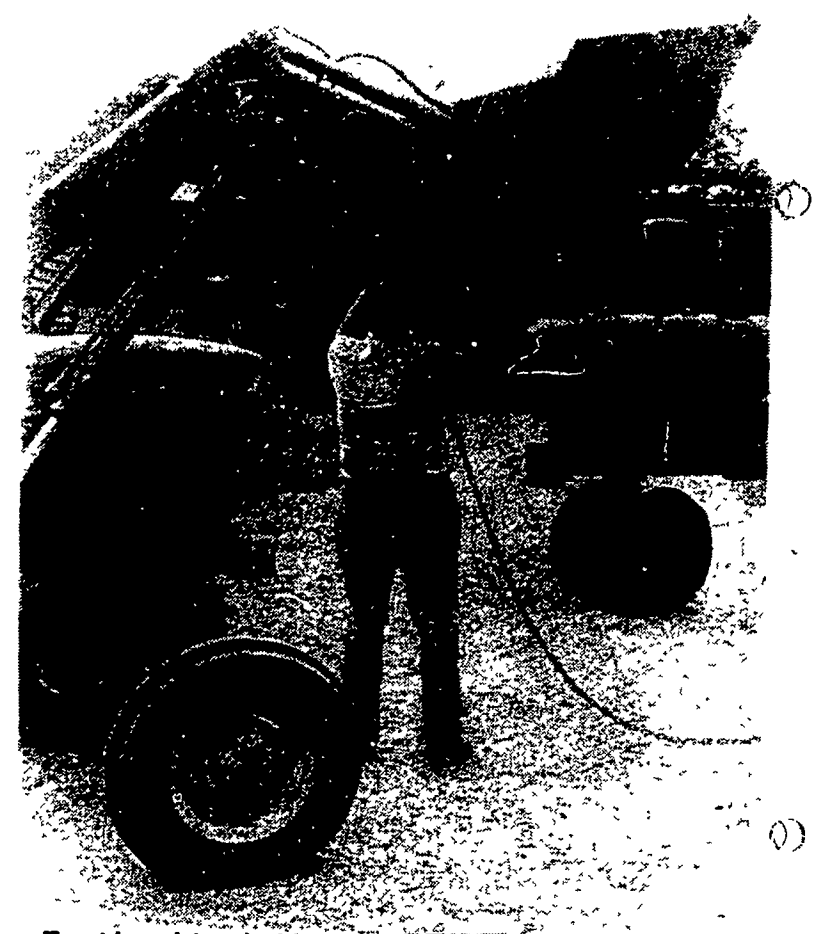
LANCASTER — The reason for most farm accidents is people...not machinery, not animals, not the weather...but human error. Farm workers perform a variety of jobs under a wide range of conditions. Sometimes they do not take the time to properly learn all those jobs. Accidents sometimes happen because a worker never learned how to do the job the correct way. Proper instruction will reduce the number of human mistakes which will reduce the number of accidents.

Filling silo is a dangerous job; too many machines, too much to handle, and too little time. Don't try to beat the clock by sticking your hands into the machines, unless they are turned off completely - both the tractor and the loader.



Pouring gasoline into the tractor while it's running is high on the list of "don'ts." Another "don't" is smoking while working with gas. Lucky for this farmer the cigarette wasn't lit, and the gas can was empty, and the whole situation was staged for the camera.

Here's a good way to lose a foot or hand. You may be in a hurry and the cows may be waiting to be milked, but this is a fast shortcut that may slow you down permanently. Don't hurry. Take your time and untangle the problem with all your limbs outside of the machine.



Trust is a virtue, but trust in machinery is foolish. Always be ready for the unexpected. Don't stand under a raised loader unless it's supported by objects other than just the tractor.

Record beef show highlights South Mountain Fair

GINGER SECRIST MYERS
Staff Correspondent

ARENDTSVILLE — The largest number of beef ever to be shown at the recent South Mountain Fair paraded before judge Donald Kniffen, Livestock Specialist, Rutgers University. The 57-head in the show hailed from four surrounding counties and neighboring Maryland.

The polled Hereford class drew the tighest competition. Kniffen pinned DRS Royal Vic 10, winner of the summer yearling bull class shown by David R. Schultz, Carlisle, as the Champion bull. For the Reserve Champion, Kniffen chose the 2-year-old bull, GBF Lancer, shown by Duane Glessner, Waynesboro.

Mike Cummings, Westminister, Maryland, nabbed both the Champion and Reserve Champion heifer ribbons in Polled Hereford competition. His two junior yearling heifers, winners in the largest class of the evening with 10 head competing, received praise from the judge for their balance and length of quarter. The Champion Heifer was WSF Maiden 10G and Reserve Champion went to FLF Miss Hurrah.

Matt Young proves that hard work pays off. The Gettysburg youth was selected as Reserve Champion Showman at the South Mountain Fair 4-H Beef Show.

In the Black Angus division, Hoffman's Angus of Dover, swept the championship titles for both the bulls and the heifers. Grand Champion bull was a junior bull calf, DJH Elmer 01H and Reserve went to the junior yearling bull, TJH Power Play 02. For the Champion females, Hoffman's pair of winning junior yearling heifers went the distance with Summitcrest Burgess NO65 taking the Champion title and Summitcrest Heiress N261 placing in the Reserve slot.

Competition in the Charolais breed was limited to one exhibitor, Ray and Mary Grimes, South Mountain Farm, McKnightstown. There were no bulls exhibited in the breed. Their junior yearling Miss Joan, claimed the Champion heifer title, while a second junior yearling, Miss Marin, finished as Reserve champ.

Other champion breed exhibitors included Dr. Carl Brothers, Lake View Farm, East Berlin, who exhibited the Champion Bull, a senior Chianina calf, LVF Momulus, and also the Reserve Champion Bull, a summer yearling, LVF Paterno. Paul Quanbeck won the Grand Champion Heifer rosette with his Santa Gertrudis junior yearling, Ribeye Red.

Heidi Quanbeck went all the way in the 4-H Sheep Show at the South Mountain Fair. The Fairfield young collected Grand Champion Market Lamb honors as well as Champion Fitting and Showing titles.

Kevin Diehl of Fairfield scored triple honors at the recent South Mountain Fair in the 4-H beef show. His 1,069 pound steer was named Grand Champion and Kevin was selected as Champion Fitter and Showman.

Paul Quanbeck's well-groomed steer earned the Fairfield 4-H'er the Reserve Champion Fitter title at the South Mountain Fair.

Allentown Fair crowns 4-H dairy champs

By Martha Gehringer

ALLENTOWN — Although the skies held a constant threat of rain, the enthusiasm of the youth exhibitors was not dampened as they prepared to compete in the 4-H Dairy Show held at the Allentown Fair on Wednesday.

Capturing the Grand Champion rosette for the Holsteins was Cathleen Ohlinger of Mohrsville with her aged cow Creek Bluff Elevation Mae. Cathy's parents own a farm of about 100 head. Cathy's duties on the farm involve milking and caring for the calves.

Reserve Grand Champion honors went to Cathy's sister, Constance Ohlinger, and her 2-year-old Reu Hel Farm Milestone Susie. Constance acquired this reserve champion as a senior yearling from Cathy in exchange for a riding saddle.

Brian was in the winner's circle several times before the end of the day's competition, earning Reserve Champion Showman and the Neba award for Lehigh County's Best of Show.

The Jersey breed was topped by Anna Uhlman from West Chester and her senior yearling, Top-O-Hill Golden Touch. Reserve honors went to Elizabeth Jenkins of Toughkenamon with her junior calf, Dusty Star of Clearview.

Ayrshire competition, while not stiff, was quality, with the champions being the same as the recent 4-H District Show. Grand and Senior Champion honors went to Kathleen Kopistecki's aged cow, Tower View Kellys S Minerva. The Reserve Grand and Junior Champion rosettes belonged to John Deevy showing his junior calf, May Blossom.

The Brown Swiss champion was no surprise, as Kathleen Kopistecki showing her aged cow DN Delegate Dainty was tagged as Grand and Senior Champion. Reserve Champion honors went to Earning the coveted titles of Champion and Reserve Champion Showmen were Constance Ohlinger and Brian Dietrich, respectively. Constance also earned Reserve Champion in the Holstein breed with 2-year-old Reu-Hel Farm Milestone Susie, while Brian earned the Neba award for Lehigh County's Best of Show.

Dennis Flickinger of Gettysburg is at the halter of his Reserve Grand Champion 4-H Steer.

ARENDTSVILLE — More than 100 head of Landrace, Duroc, Chester White, Poland China, Spotted, and Crossbred hogs were judged last week at the 60th South Mountain Fair by judge Donald Kniffen, Livestock Specialist, Rutgers University.

Charles and Denton Griest, Abbottstown, dominated the Chester White and Crossbred shows, capturing all the sow classes, the March and April boar classes and all the group classes in Chester Whites. The Griests also swept the Crossbred classes and had the Champion Crossbred barrow. Rodger Bankert, Hanover, won the remaining January and February barrow classes in the Chester Whites.

Denton Griest continued his winning ways in the Poland China and Spotted hog classes capturing all the blues in both those breeds.

Rodger Bankert swept the Duroc show winning the boar, sow, group, and barrow classes as well as taking home a purple rosette for his champion Duroc barrow.

The Preston-Bankert family combined their forces to capture all first places in Landrace, Yorkshires, and Hampshires contests. They also took home the Champion ribbon for their top Landrace barrow.

Champion Fitter was Gayle Urmy and Reserve Fitter was James Younkers. Champion Showman was Constance Ohlinger.

Superior cooling, automatic washing, and free hot water are only three of the reasons you should put a Mueller HiPerForm Milk Cooler to work for you!

FARMTRONIX®

Here's proof DAIRY-TRONIC Computerized Feeding System has paid for itself for

SPRING LAWN FARMS

Dave, Joe and Fred Garber
Rt. 6, Lancaster, PA

Comments from the Garber brothers on the value of the DAIRY-TRONIC System:

- Just in feed savings the computer will about pay for itself in 1 year.
- We installed 5 feeders for the milk cows and one for the dry cows. The dry cows are freshening in better condition.
- This will help cows come closer to milking their genetic potential. If you don't feed cows according to production, you don't get production. It's that simple!
- The feedsystem allows us to control feed intake. The computer gives us the opportunity to be better managers.
- We have already been able to save at least one cows from dying by spotting on the printout she didn't eat her full ration of feed.
- We look at the tape every afternoon before milking. The cows that have stars (alarm cows) we check them out when we milk; temperature & mastitis
- The unit is very easy to operate, we spend 5-10 minutes a day making feeding adjustments & checking individual cow's feed consumption.
- The installation provides a comfortable feeding environment. The cows have confidence when they go to the feeders.
- Local service is extremely important, our FARMTRONIX dealer has done an excellent job servicing our unit.

WAYNE 38% DARI-BLEN

THE FEED FOR EXCELLENCE

Milkyhill Crystal Jewel Angel — she's classified "excellent" at 91 points. Good breeding, good management and Wayne® 38% Dari-Blen concentrate produced these results:

2-8	363	19,860	4.4%	901
3-10	365	23,356	4.5%	1053

38% Dari-Blen is formulated from as many as six natural protein sources, each having different digestive rates. This provides more protein and extends the milk-making process between feedings. Many herds report 20% greater production. Angel and her herdmates had a lactation average of 18,234 lbs. and 693 lbs. of fat in early 1979. Take a tip from Milkyhill Crystal Jewel Angel. Wayne 38% Dari-Blen makes more milk. Call us.

THE INCREDIBLE WU

This fuel efficient vehicle will operate a normal 8 hour work day on approximately 2 gallons of gas. Capable of hauling a one ton payload with ease, the powercart goes where your pickup truck or large farm tractor can't. Four wheel drive and hydraulic dump bed are standard equipment.

There are numerous applications for the use of this versatile hauler:
- landscapes
- nurseries
- golf courses
- country clubs
- estates
- farms
- construction
- horse stables
- campuses
- recreational parks

IH SUPER SAVING TIME

SAVE 20%

ON QUALITY IH LUBRICANTS

Lubrication prices have you over the barrel? Now, you can pay less and still get the best protection possible. We've slashed 20% off the regular IH suggested list prices on top quality IH lubricants. Save on 5 qt., 5 gal., and 55 gal. quantities.

Engine Oil
The right formulation for every need: IH No. 1®, IH Low Ash, and IH InterSeason 10W-40.

Hydraulic-Transmission Fluid
International® Hy-Tran® — best on the market for protection against wear, corrosion, and sludge.

Gear Lube
IH 135-H EP gear lubricant, well known for protection against extreme pressure and shock load conditions.

TORQUE AMPLIFIER, CLUTCH & TRANSMISSION PARTS & SERVICE

NEW ITEMS
Complete new 3 pt. hitch assemblies for 06, 56, 66, 86 IH tractors. Will economically replace 2 pt. or worn out 3 pt. hitches. Call for prices. Easy shift hydraulic trans. brake control for 06, 56, 66, 86 & 2+2 model IH tractors. Eliminates grinding, eases hard shifting & reduces shift linkage & gear wear

Complete TA assemblies for 706-1586 are prices at $595 and come with a Dana Co. Heavy Duty Sprag instead of the usual IH sprag. The Dana sprag is guaranteed for 2 yrs. against failure. Sprag kits (includes sprag gear, Dana sprag & piston carrier) and all items for rebuilding your own TA assembly are available to qualified persons. Ramps and carriers for older style TA's (as in SMTA-340-560) are priced at $150 each and carry a 90 day guarantee. We have parts needed for TA repair in stock at prices which will save you money. Shop is available for complete TA installation or split the tractor yourself and send the center housing to us. Complete rebuilt center housing available for installation in tractors which did not have TA from factory.

Now buying tractors for our used parts dept. Let us bid on your damaged tractors

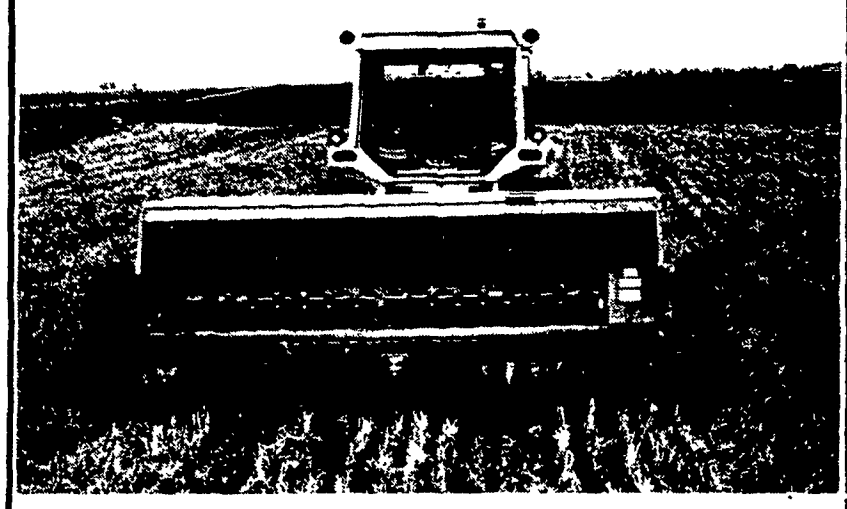
NO-TILL GRAIN DRILL



For Heavy Stubble and Hard Soils

The new Lilliston 9680 No-Till Grain Drill will operate in maximum severe conditions, where uniform penetration of heavy stubble and hard soils is required. Unlike some of the so-called "no-till" drills available today, which are actually conventional drills with front coulters added, the Lilliston is designed, from the ground up, for one purpose: No-till seeding.

Some Special Features

- Maximum empty weight of 7,160 lbs. transfers 390 lbs. of down pressure to each of the 18 openers on 7 inch spacings.
- Heavy duty 14 inch cutting coulters and double disc openers, spring-loaded scrapers and center rib gauge wheels.
- Three hydraulic cylinders regulate pressure on openers for precision depth control.
- Patented double-chambered feed cups which maintain even seed flow to the feed wheels.
- Cluster gear boxes for easy selection of 27 application speeds of seed and fertilizer.

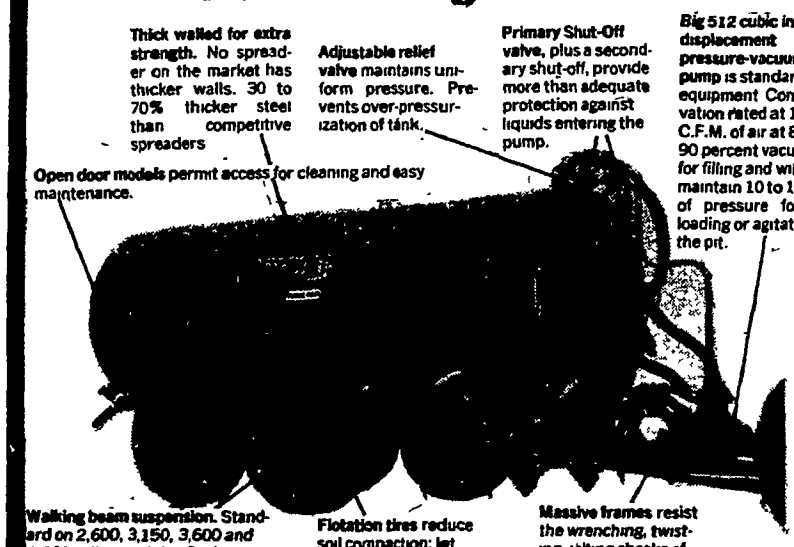
Outstanding Features



Thick walled for extra strength. No spreader on the market has thicker walls. 30 to 70% thicker steel than competitive spreaders
Adjustable relief valve maintains uniform pressure. Prevents over-pressurization of tank.
Primary Shut-Off valve, plus a secondary shut-off, provide more than adequate protection against liquids entering the pump.
Big 512 cubic inch displacement pressure-vacuum pump is standard equipment Conservation rated at 135 C.F.M. of air at 85 to 90 percent vacuum for filling and will maintain 10 to 15 lbs. of pressure for unloading or agitation in the pit.
Open door models permit access for cleaning and easy maintenance.
Walking beam suspension. Standard on 2,600, 3,150, 3,600 and 4600 gallon models. (Optional on 1,500 & 2,100 gallon models). Front & rear wheels on each beam follow contour of the ground, provides a smooth level ride.
Flotation tires reduce soil compaction; let you spread on soft ground early in season.
Massive frames resist the wrenching, twisting, jolting shocks of hard field usage, year after year.

Sizes - 800 gal. thru 4600 gal.
Both vacuum & augermatic spreaders for truck mount or trailer type

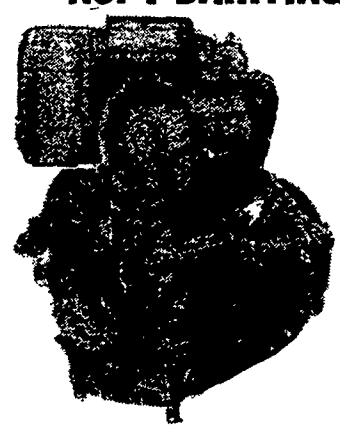
NO. 1 DAIRYING DIESEL



Since 1968 F2L-912 diesels have earned the reputation as the most reliable diesel. Don't settle for less.

2 Cyl. F2L-912 (New Style)

EASIER STARTING: Heavy flywheel provides easy starting. No electric heater plugs.
QUIETER: Runs quieter than most water cooled diesels. Very quiet exhaust.
F2L-912 SPECS: 22 Hp @ 1500 RPM
27 Hp @ 1800 RPM
34 Hp @ 2300 RPM

It has direct injection, lube oil cooling, and oil cooled pistons. This engine has proven to survive the extreme heat of a heavy load in a small engine house better than any other engine.

Put Profit Back Where It Belongs: In Your Pocket!
ENERGY-PAK forage and slurry management systems have gained national reputation for improved efficiency and increased farm profits. We offer complete technical assistance in planning for your present and future agricultural needs with a full line of oxygen-limited bottom unloading silos and slurry storage units. We're committed to serving you!

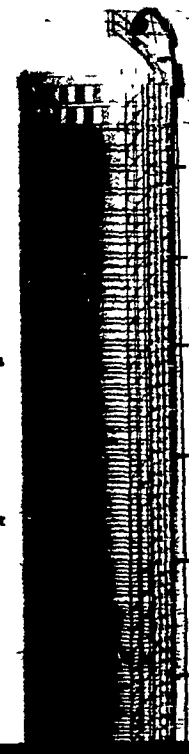
THIS IS THE BEST WAY TO PUT UP YOUR FORAGE CROP—HERE'S WHY:



1 Better light reflectivity. The light gray Madison Vibra-Cor® staves reflect light 2½ times better than dark blue—and better than any other stave. Result: Less temperature fluctuation in the structure.

2 Better insulation value. Concrete is a much better insulation material than steel! And the unique Vibra-Cor® design makes a Madison stave better than any other concrete stave. Result: Your Madison provides lowest possible temperature variations.

3 Less expansion and contraction. The real key to top quality haylage. Less heat transfer. Less "breathing." A better atmosphere for a perfect feed—no matter how much the weather fluctuates.

4 The best unloader. Laidig. Madison helped develop it and knows it inside and out. So your new Nutri-Matic® was designed to make the most of this remarkable unloader that's been called "the best there is"!

5 Greater capacity. Because a Madison Nutri-Matic® doesn't require space-robbing breather bags, you get a bonus of extra capacity! Up to four feet of valuable extra room.

6 Better service. Ask a Madison owner. For 65 years, Madison service people have been building a reputation that can't be beat.

GUNITE
Silo Relining & Repairs

Extensive tests have been conducted on Gunite. Below are some of the properties of Gunite:
1. Excellent bonding
2. High Density
3. Extreme strength and hardness
4. High resistance to absorption

The excellent physical properties of the material are due to the water content being only the amount needed to satisfy chemical hydration.

Reseal and re-strengthen your silo with Gunite.

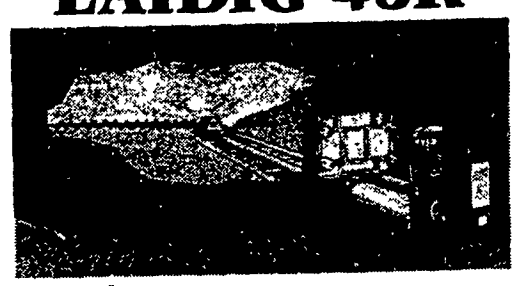
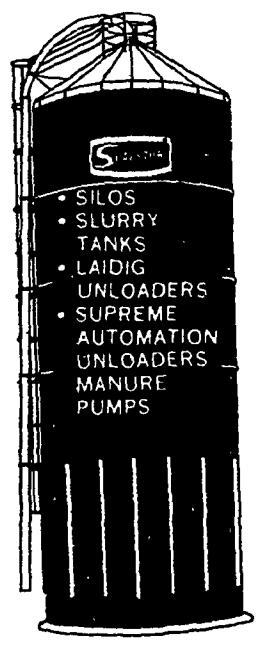
LAIDIG 43R





NOW YOU CAN UNLOAD WITH THE BEST
Shelled Or Ground Ear Corn

Storing high moisture grain can cause problems unless you have the right unloader. If you're bothered by high maintenance costs, poor feed delivery or a "free flow" system that fails, then you should consider the new Laidig 43R grain unloader.

It's designed for use in existing, oxygen-controlled storage units. And it can be installed in a single day WITHOUT ALTERATIONS TO YOUR STRUCTURE!

The Laidig 43R Power Sweep Auger replaces those Gravity Feed Sweep Augers. It's a heavy-duty machine engineered for day-in, day-out operation...the same high quality and peak performance that operators expect from a leader...from Laidig!

LAIDIG Boot name in BOTTOM UNLOADERS 3 Year Warranty

43R IS A COMPLETE CONVERSION PACKAGE FOR OXYGEN-CONTROLLED GRAIN STRUCTURES.
For metal structures up to 20' in diameter

Replace Your Gravity Flow Unloader With A new LAIDIG NOW!
We will trade in your old unloader

Are Your Calves Worth Saving? Do They Get The Best?

Certainly the major reasons for hutches are their value to calf health and survival of young calves. However, now we would like to share with you the advantages of our shelters over home built structures.

Plywood hutches are often heavy and awkward to move. Shell Valley calf shelters only weigh about 110 lbs. and can be moved easily. Their structure allows nesting while transporting and storing.

The initial investment of plywood shelters is somewhat less, but often not considered in this cost are labor, maintenance, and replacement costs. Wooden hutches usually need to be painted every two to three years. Our boat-like construction is virtually maintenance free. A good plywood shelter will last 6 to 10 years. There is no reason our shelter will not last 4 to 6 times as long, being fire resistant and 100% repairable.

Not only is our unit easy to clean, transport, and store; fiberglass is a natural insulator. It's white gelcoat finish keeps calves cool during the hot summer and warm through the winter.

We hope you will share our conclusion, as many do, that fiberglass shelters are long-lasting, more economical, and offer the best prospects for good health and survival of young calves.

Even though our customers have found Jacques hybrids they can rely on, it's still impossible being able to wait until after harvest to make their definite buying decisions.

56 big reasons for not having to buy until after you harvest.

Why buy a hybrid again today that may not move out from fall in your fields—or in the farmer-run yield trials next fall?

We keep trying to interest our competitors in not selling early. But each year the rascals keep running around pestering farmers with pleas to buy early.

We keep asking them what's your hurry? Why not wait until fall when farmers like you have their yields in so they really know where they're at?

All the yield trials in the box on the right are that many reasons for waiting to buy. Each of those trials will produce valuable evidence on the new hybrids that have proven themselves so well the last few years. And they'll provide concrete facts on the new hybrids we're just starting to sell.

How else can you get up-to-the-minute information on exactly why waiting to buy? And where else can you get that information from farmers like you? Except from Jacques. We're going great shape on seed for '82. We've got 2,000 acres of seed production in the ground over six states.

So tell those other seed salesmen that you believe in not buying early, too. Your Jacques dealer will be around to see you when your corn is in the bin and the fall results are ready to see. Send in the coupon for a copy of the 1982 Yieldbook so you can see why so many people are waiting to buy.

Come and see 1982 Yield Trial locations.

Poust parts with "cream" of Mun-Cre crop

By Joyce Bupp
Staff Correspondent

MUNCY — Come Tuesday morning, Lester Poust will part with a large chunk of his life's work.

Poust, of R4 Muncy, Lycoming County, is a registered Holstein breeder, one of those individuals his peers might label a "breeder's breeder." Based on three foundation brood cows he purchased some years ago, Poust has bred his Mun-Cre Holsteins into pedigree perfection spreading the herd's genetic influence around the world.

But overcrowded facilities, along with that plague of so many dairyfarmers — aching knees — have combined to nudge Poust to skim the best from his herd of deep-pedigreed high milk and fat producers and offer them to buyers at his Sept. 21 "Cream of Mun-Cre" sale.

"We wanted to have a quality sale when we decided to do it," Poust reflects, looking back to the months of weighing pros and cons of selling. That long-pondered decision becomes final Tuesday, when a large portion of the milkers and young stock from the BAA 107.6 herd, which includes 14 Excellents, 25 Very Goods, and 14 Good Plus animals, of the 105 offered, only one lone animal is not home bred.

Like so many success stories, Poust's has seen tragic moments. He lost his father as a youngster, but the family continued dairying with a herd of about a dozen Milking Shorthorns.

Along came the Pennsylvania Brucellosis testing program and the family lost all but two of the herd.

"It was common for people to lose animals at that time, he says of the now-routine testing program. "It was hard at the time, but the best thing that could have happened."

Later, Poust would return to the dairy business, milking a mix of grade black and whites, and Guernseys.

It was his acquisition of Maggie at a sale at Columbia Countian Chris Wolff's Pen-Col farm that marked the turning point in Mun-Cre herd history.

Pen-Col Ivanhoe Maggie, a daughter of the now-legendary Osborndale Ivanhoe, went to Poust for a final bid of $800.

One cattle dealer, learning that Poust had bid what then considered a rather steep figure, reckoned the young dairyman could have brought two good cows for that price.

Poust turned around and bid again, paying $300 for a calf, Maggie's Woodbourne Inka Reflector daughter, Pen-Col Reflector Misty.

Mun-Cre Farm, named for the Muncy Creek that meanders through the scenic Lycoming County valley, is home for one of the country's outstanding Holstein herds. A partial dispersal on Tuesday will be a first in Mun-Cre history.

The Mun-Cre "M" family was off and running. Maggie would eventually score VG-87, and make lifetime records of more than 175,000 pounds milk, with a 4.0 percent test.

Mun-Cre Betty Medley, a great-grandaughter of Maggie, is a tribute to Poust's breeding philosophy over the years, and a favorite young four year old he figures may be the first across the sale ring.

Scored EX at four, the young Milu Betty Ivanhoe Chief daughter carries the Ivanhoe, Chief and ABC Reflection Sovereign bloodlines and Poust has combined in his pedigree program, and packs an ancestry whallop seldom seen. Her dam by Elevation is 2E-93, grandam by Standout 3E-92, and great-granddam, an own daughter of Maggie by Citation Chambric Marshall, is also 3E-92.

Maggie's Misty calf matured into a fine cow in her own right, scored VG-88, and mothered another branch of the "M's". Her Citation R daughter went Excellent with lifetime credits over 123,000 pounds gave Poust two more Excellent daughters.

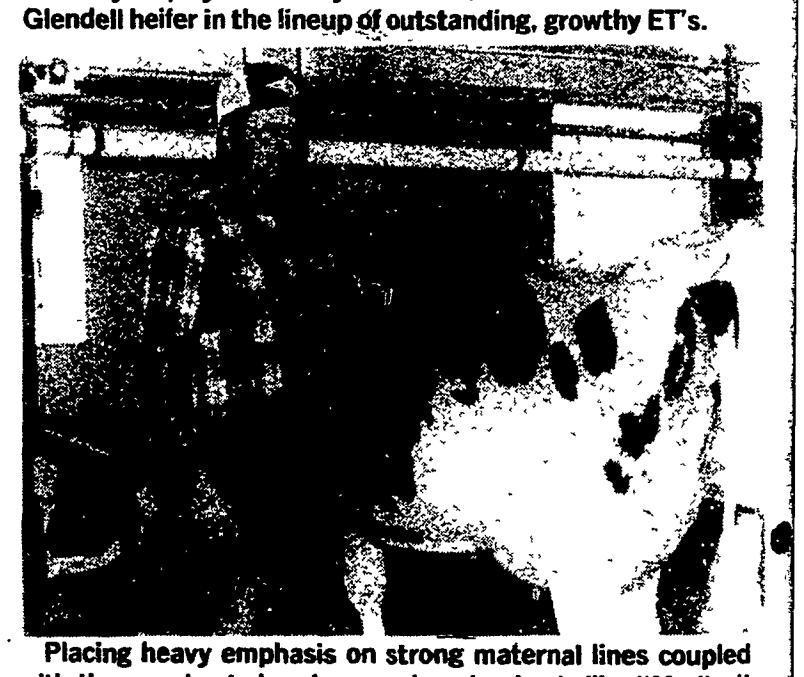
"The old Ivanhoe's were the best brood cows we've ever had," insists Poust. He credits the tall dairyness to the Ivanhoe influence, adding the stretch was exactly what the breed needed at the time to counter the smaller genetic traits of then-predominant Burke bloodlines.

(Turn to Page D4)

Lasso: "Grand dame" of the Mun-Cre her until her untimely death earlier this year, Mun-Cre Elevation Lasso, 2E-95, had a five-year-old record over 30,000 milk and 1200 fat. Her sons are in use in both Japan and France.

Merchandising at Mun-Cre is a vital part of the purebred business. Poust houses his ET's in part of his machine shed, where each is separately tied, can receive individual attention and be easily viewed by the several hundred visitors that annually stop by the Muncy herd. Lester and Diane check on a Glendell heifer in the lineup of outstanding, growthy ET's.

Medley: Mun-Cre Betty Medley epitomizes Poust's philosophy of crossing great proven breed bloodlines like Ivanhoe, Chief, ABC Reflection Sovereign and the more recent Elevation influence. Scored EX at four-years-old, Medley's from an Elevation dam that was 2E-93, and the next two dams were both 3E-92.

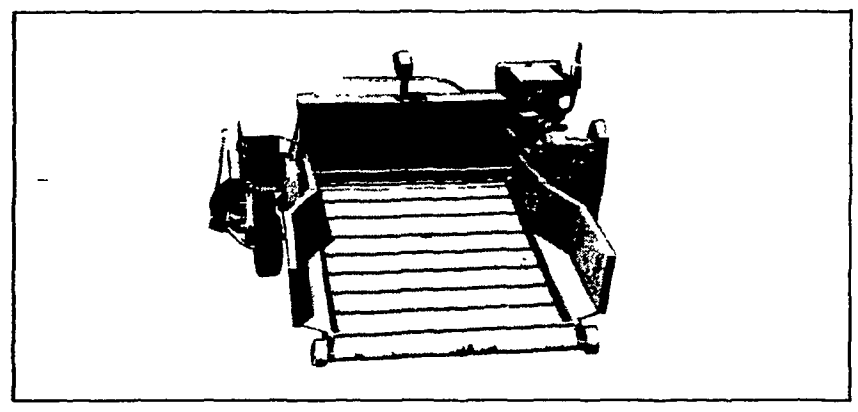


Placing heavy emphasis on strong maternal lines coupled with the very best sires has produced animals like "Medley" an EX four-year-old, and a favorite of Lester's that he'll likely choose to open his sale.

MORE FOR LESS.

The Storage System for the future. Here Now!

THE AG-BAG SYSTEM



MORE FEED. MORE STORAGE. MORE HIGH QUALITY TDN & PROTEIN.

Select from three models of AG-BAG Machines. Motorized, Hydraulic, and Gear-Driven. AG-BAG lets you match the machine to your job. Big or small. Whether you're DAIRY or BEEF AG-BAG will store More For Less. The AG-BAG System. Air-tight storage with more versatility than any other system. Just look at these AG-BAG ADVANTAGES:

1. UNLIMITED oxygen-limiting storage
2. Storage for ALL forages & grain
3. Transportable
4. Easy to use and little maintenance
5. NO dangerous silo gases
6. Silo fires WON'T occur
7. Higher moisture forage
8. NO unloader to break down
9. Extra income and potential from custom bagging
10. THE Forage System for the 80's

JUST LISTEN TO WHAT THESE AG-BAG BELIEVERS HAVE TO SAY:

Kenneth Popham of Floresville, Texas

Kenneth runs a 465 cow Dairy and said this about AG-BAG: "At today's interest rates you can't afford any other type of storage... Even with the yearly cost of bags it's still inexpensive storage... a whole lot cheaper than building barns and hiring help. I put up 13 bags last year and after seeing the results, I'll put up 25 bags this year. The bags are a good thing."

Don Carter of Parkdale, Oregon

"The best move I ever made"... says Don Carter in reference to his switch to bagging silage on his dairy near Parkdale, Oregon.

"I get 18% more feed from the same acreage and the feed lasts three times as long. I used to clean my bunks after three days, now I only need to clean them after 10 days."

Roland Rasmussen of Blair, Nebraska

"In addition to everything else, it's a management tool"... says rancher, Roland Rasmussen of Blair, Nebraska.

Roland farms 350 acres west of Blair, Nebraska, and fattens about 650 cattle from 600 lbs. to finish.

"By labeling every bag as to date and kind of feed, I can mix my feeds and eliminate the guess work in making a ration. I feed alfalfa silage, corn silage and ground ear corn stored exclusively in the bags, purchasing only my minerals and vitamin supplements."

"The AG-BAG system has enabled me to increase carrying capacity per acre at a reduced cost of gain."

Bert Anderson of Sceptre, Saskatchewan

"At least 30% more feed... I can guarantee at least that"... says rancher, Bert Anderson, of Sceptre, Saskatchewan.

"I've been able to cut my grain feeding costs in half since converting to the bagging. It's just like feeding grass. I've also eliminated the need for a liquid supplement that we always fed before going to the AG-BAG System..."

HERE'S WHAT THE AG-BAG SYSTEM CAN DO FOR YOU

And, notes this soft-spoken, highly regarded Lycoming county breeder, the Ivanhoe influence is largely the basis for the success of Pennsylvania-bred cattle, sought today by both domestic and world-wide top Holstein cattleproducers.

On the foundation of a second Ivanhoe brood mother, Orchard Dairy Ivanhoe Sugar, Poust built the second of his three prominent Mun-Cre families.

Sugar was purchased by Poust from his brother-in-law, who'd bid last on her at the First Pennsylvania ABC sale, forerunner to today's Sire Power sales.

Poust also acquired her daughter by Irvington Pride Admiral, Pride Reburke Sugar, later scored 4E-91 with lifetime milk credits over 200,000 pounds. Her daughter, by Black Eagle, is 3E-91 with lifetime milk over 106,000 pounds. A grandaughter by Standout is 2E-92 with over 142,000 pounds lifetime.

Ivanhoe Sugar gave Poust several other daughters. Sunrise, by Woodbourne Inka Reflector, is 4E-93, with lifetime credits to date of 163,551 pounds milk. She has four maternal sisters scored VG.

While smaller in overall progeny numbers, the Lassie family is of equally outstanding of quality. Poust developed this third family from a purchase at the 1960 Bradford County Club sale.

Winsome Reflection Bridget, by Woodbourne Lass Reflection, brought her own brand of the ABC Reflection Sovereign "strength" influence to Mun-Cre.

Most outstanding this family until her death earlier this year due to complications following calving, was Bridget's great grandaughter by Elevation, Mun-Cre Elevation Lasso. Scored 2E-95, Lasso was one of five daughters by Elevation that Poust bred from a Citation M, out of Bridget's daughter Lassie by Lakefield Fond Hope. Lasso had records over 30,000 pounds milk and 1,200 fat, and her embryo transplant heifer by Glendell topped the 1981 Pen-Col ET sale at $30,000.

Merchandising at Mun-Cre is as critical as milking, and gets daily attention from Poust as he welcomes hundreds of domestic and foreign visitors each year.

It was from Mun-Cre that the first registered Holstein cattle were exported from Pennsylvania. And world-wide customers continue to return to the Muncy farm, first for heifers, but now more regularly for young bulls. Offspring have found homes in numerous European countries, including France, Germany and Italy, as well as Russia, Japan, Mexico, and various South American nations.

Few females are being exported now, and import restrictions by the European Economic Community are being blamed as part of the reason. Overseas buyers are instead shopping for a new cattle commodity-fertilized eggs.

Although the space-age technology of embryo exports is still rough around the edges, industry leaders speculate the practice will someday be as accepted as frozen semen. And again, Mun-Cre is in the forefront of the latest in genetic advances, shipping some fresh and frozen fertilized embryos overseas for transplanting into recipients waiting halfway around the world.

Through his three decades-plus of breeding top-pedigree, high producing purebreds, Poust has remained rock-solid in his breeding aims.

"A cow has to have a good udder and feet. If she has sore feet and swelled hocks, she just can't work right. I like a little set to her legs, but a cow's feet shouldn't have to be trimmed all the time is she's walking correctly."

A stickler for that udder and leg requirement, Poust is quick to admit he's sent some typey cattle out the road because they didn't meet his rigid standards. And low-fat testers go the same route, unless they excel in some other quality that earns them a rare second chance.

Nor will a neighbor likely take home a Mun-Cre cull. If it doesn't meet Mun-Cre quality, Poust refuses to foist a problem on another dairymen.

"Those come back to haunt you," he says simply.

Poust is equally particular about any individual he'll offer in a sale, and Mun-Cre sale entries have earned a reputation at top area consignments.

Three bulls from the Misty family earned special attention. Mr. Mun-Cre Mistyman, a chief son, sold at the 1981 World Premiere for $66,000, and his brother Mr. Mun-Cre McCauley by Glendell topped the 1980 All-American at $51,000. And just last year, an ET maternal brother to Mistyman and McCauley topped the Willsholm ET Invitational. Mr. Mun-Cre Mandolin, a Valiant son, brought $21,000. The bull stands at Tri-State Breeders.

A daughter from Lasso brought $11,500 in a recent Holstein state convention sale, and an ET heifer calf from Lasso's sister, Looper, brought $8,600 at the Willsholm ET Invitational last October.

A devoted student of pedigrees, Poust continues to do his reading homework, constantly updating hid knowledge of the purebred industry. it's an avocation he's continued from when, as a young man, he spent a good deal of time traveling, just looking at cows and talking with established, successful breeders.

He recommends that young dairyfarmers do the same, acquainting themselves with the

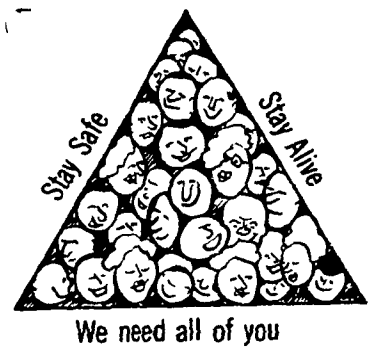
Chester Co. plans emergency farm rescue program



WEST CHESTER — On September 28 and 29, the Extension Service in conjunction with the Chester County Emergency Services Board, the Chester-Delaware Chapter of the Pennsylvania Farmers Association and the Southeast Farm Credit Service is sponsoring a Machinery Accident Rescue Program for Chester County Fire Rescue Squads and the general public.

The program on Tuesday evening will be directed to members of the County Rescue Squads and will give them actual experience in running farm equipment and rescuing trapped "victims" from the equipment. The program will be conducted outdoors and will be limited to firefighters and rescue squads who are requested to sign up through the Emergency Services Board.

The program on Wednesday evening, September 29, is open to all residents of Chester County. The program will include a slide presentation which will cover tractor overturns, silo rescues, manure storage rescues and grain bin entrapments. Along with this will be a discussion on rescuing a farm accident victim when you are alone. The program will be held at the East Brandywine Fire Hall in Guthriesville and will begin at 7 p.m.

Dennis Murphy, Farm Safety Specialist at Penn State University, will be the instructor for both sessions of the Agricultural Safety Program.

Everyone connected in some way with farming should have an idea on how to rescue a person involved in a machinery accident. This program will give you some idea on the events involved and may help you save a life or limb someday, maybe that of a loved one.

Farmers make fatal mistake

LANCASTER — At least three Missouri famers were killed in each of the last five years by making the same fatal mistake:

They relied on their combines' hydraulic system to hold up the combine header while they were servicing or adjusting the header.

"You just can't rely on the hydraulic system, so you should take precautions," said Dave Baker, University of Missouri-Columbia extension safety specialist.

"Most new combine headers are equipped with header stops or jacks. With headers in the raised position, the stop can be locked in place, thus protecting those working under the header.

"If the header is not equipped with stops, operators should use a jack stand and/or block to hold the header up."

bloodlines of the breed and just "getting lots of knowledge."

"Breed the top cows with the best bulls you can get" encapsulates the Poust philosophy. That means knowing your cows, and pairing them with the sires that best complement them, while not being swayed by "everyone coming up the road" when it comes to bull selection.

Always keeping merchandising in mind, Poust further demands that a bull be marketable. Sires such as Valiant, Glendell, Bell, Conductor, and Sexation are adding their influence to the herd of milkers now heavy with Elevation on top of the Ivanhoe-Chief-Reflection Sovereign background.

Always visitor-oriented, Poust has planned an open house and ox roast the afternoon and evening before the Sept. 21 sale. That offers perspective buyers and friends a chance to socialize while taking a final look at the Mun-Cre herd in their home barn.

"Tell everyone to come," he grins.

Beacon honors Rudisill

Food Council honors Weaver

AURORA, Col. — Victor F. Weaver, President of Victor F. Weaver, Inc., New Holland was among seven individuals receiving the Distinguished Service Award presented by the National Food and Energy Council (NFEC).

Weaver began his enterprising career in the 1930s with a small farmer's market in the Sharon Hills section of Philadelphia, specializing in fresh poultry products. Forty-five years later this small market has developed into a major corporation employing over 1,500 people, marketing food products internationally, with sales of over $100 million.

The chairman of the awards committee, when presenting the award said, "Mr. Weaver has been described by his peers in the poultry industry as an innovator and popularizer of frozen prepared chicken products, setting a standard of high quality for the entire industry."

Weaver has been active in futhering the development of the poultry industry; championing new broiler house techniques in conjunction with Penn State. He is

Rothrock to hold open house Wednesday

KEMPTON — An open house of one of Pennsylvania's newest and most modern dairy operations is planned at Rothrock Golden Holstein Farms, R1 Kempton, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Wednesday.

The new facilities are located in the picturesque Kistler Valley of western Lehigh County, about 20 miles west of Allentown.

The U-shaped building complex, surrounding a central exercise yard on three sides, includes a 40-cow tiestall dairy barn with 12 box stalls, which comprises the shorter leg of the structure. This portion of the complex is completed and will be open.

Across the front of the structure are located two apartments, three offices and a conference room, which resemble the European farm dwelling concept of adjacent living quarters for humans and livestock. This section is in the final stages of construction.

The longer leg of the U-shaped complex, which is just being started, will include a loose-housing heifer barn. It will hold 125 to 150 head. It is expected to be completed in about a month.

Other facilities include a trio of 25 by 65-foot Harvestores for haylage, silage and high moisture shelled corn. The manure handling system features a Slurrystore.

Approximately 18 to 20 cows are already located on the farm as acquisition of additional stock continues. A number of heifers also have been stocked.

Manager of the 160-acre farm is Jim Shrawder. Herd manager is Jack Miller.

It is owned by Bruce Rothrock, of Rothrock Motors, Allentown car dealership. Participating in the open house are Longacre Electrical Service, Inc., of Bally, Agri-Inc., R4 Ephrata, and Penn-Jersey Harvestore, New Holland.

Hesston unveils new products

HESSTON, Kan. — Hesston Corporation unveiled five new diesel tractor models, plus additions to their lines of hay equipment, forage equipment and tillage tools at a sales meeting Sept. 7-9 in Wichita and Hesston.

More than 150 people, including territory managers from throughout North America, branch personnel and factory marketing representatives attend the meeting.

A new 66 series of utility, straddle-mount tractors includes the 45-horsepower Model 466, the 51-horsepower Model 566 and 62-horsepower Model 666.

Als introduced are 62- and 88-horsepower compact crawler tractors, the Models 665C and 955C, designed for orchard work, oil field jobs and heavy tillage work.

Hesston also introduced its new Model 5530 Open-Throat Round Baler for the first time. It is sized and priced for the smaller farm, and can be used with as low as 30-horsepower tractors. It builds compact 39-inch by 54-inch round bales.

Other new hay equipment in the Hesston line is a Model 1014 Hydro Swing Center-Pivot Windrower.

A new eight-knife cutting cylinder called TurboVane with patented knife adjustment system is standard on two new pull-type forage harvesters, the Model 7165 for tractors to 250 horsepower and the Model 7155 for tractors to 175 horsepower.

Tillage tools, including a new smaller size tandem disc and a smaller version field finisher have already been announced, and were presented at the meeting.

ABS picks N.J. bull

DE FOREST, WISC. — A young Holstein bull, Peticote Fore Quincy-ET, bred by William H. Pettit Jr., Peticote Farm, of Vincentown, N.J. has been selected by American Breeders Service to enter their Progeny Testing Program.

He has been moved to that company's facilities at DeForest, Wisconsin, where he will join approximately 150 other bulls being tested this year. During testing, Peticote Ford Quincy-ET will be mated to 700 cows in herds associated with ABS in their testing program, from all across the United States. After a four year wait, during which his progeny will be evaluated, a decision will be made as to whether or not he enters into regular semen production.

Peticote Ford Quincy-ET was sired by 1—O—State Chief Ford, +$294, +2,664M and +63BF out of Mars-Haven Queen Rocket. His dam has production records to 25,440 lbs. of milk, with a Cow Index of +1,080M. She is classified VG-85 and is sired by Whirlhill Kingpin.

Roth assumes NAAB presidency

LANCASTER, PA. — Harry Roth, operations director of Atlantic Breeders Cooperative, was named president of the National Association of Animal Breeders during the 36th annual NAAB Convention held at the Host Farm Resort near Lancaster, Aug. 31 - Sept. 3.

Roth served as vice president of NAAB last year and is in his sixth year on the board of directors. At Atlantic Breeders Cooperative, Roth is in charge of sire selections and analysis, semen production, and care of the bulls and facilities.

Atlantic Breeders Cooperative hosted the event with over 500 people from across and the United States attending the convention. Between business sessions, convention guests toured the rich agricultural area and learned about local culture and history.

The National Association of Animal Breeders is the trade organization for the artificial insemination industry which establishes standards, exchanges ideas, and assists in research projects to better the AI industry.

During the Friday morning business session, NAAB delegates voted to recommend to USDA a change in the genetic base for computing semi-annual sire summaries.

Harry Roth

A highlight of the convention was the annual banquet where two awards were presented. Receiving the NAAB research award was R.P. Amann, of Colorado State University and formerly a faculty member of the Dairy Breeding Research Center at Penn State, An award for Distinguished Service to the AI industry was presented to Dr. Jack Webb, DVM, retired from Midwest Breeders Cooperative at Shawano, Wisc.

Wolff gets Agway board nod

SYRACUSE, NY — Christian F. Wolff Jr. of Millville, has been nominated for election to the 18-member Board of Directors of Agway Inc.

He was selected at a district nominating meeting of local Agway committeemen at Williamsport on September 9. He will stand for election to a three-year term at the Agway Annual Meeting Oct. 28-29 in Syracuse, N.Y.

Lewis R. Barden of Mansfield, who has served on the Agway Board since 1967, had previously announced his plans not to seek reelection.

Wolff purchased his Pen-Col Farms in 1951. He has operated in partnerhsip with his son, Dennis, since 1971. They milk 115 registered Holsteins and farm 550 acres. Principal crops include alfalfa and corn.

C.F. Wolff Jr.

Wolff has been an Agway member throughout his farming career. He is chairman of the Eyers Grove Agway Committee, a member of the Valley Grange, Pennsylvania Farmers Association, Keystone Milk Marketing Council, and is a past director of the NEPA Bull Stud and Chairman of sire selection.

Active in many other groups, Wolff has been a 4-H leader, member of DHIA, County Extension, and his church.

In 1978, Wolff received the Pennsylvania Master Farmer Award.

Asgrow develops high yielding sorghums

KALAMAZOO, Mich. — Asgrow Seed Company's grain sorghum hybrids are showing consistent high yields in state performance tests.

Four of Asgrow's hybrids, Corral, Mustang, Topaz and Colt, have been entered in state tests for two to four years, and yields have been averaged over those time periods.

In four years of Kansas state tests, Corral averaged 94.3 bushels per acre compared to the average of 91.8 for all hybrids tested. In three years of testing (1979-81) in Nebraska, Corral's advantage was 2.5 bushels per acre higher with Corral yielding 113.8 bushels per acre compared to an 111.3 average of all hybrids.

Mustang has recorded high yields in Kansas (1978-81) of 108.3 bushels per acre — 6.0 bushels higher than the average yield of the 1,946 hybrids tested. In a two year test in Missouri, all hybrids averaged 91.1 bushels per acre, while Mustang's average was 94.7 — a 3.6 bushel advantage.

Nebraska's sorghum tests from 1978-81 showed a 5.1 bushel per acre advantage with Mustang, as it yielded 112.1 bushels per acre.

In four-year tests in Kansas and Nebraska, and a two-year test in Missouri, Topaz averaged 8.3 bushels per acre more than the average for all hybrids tested. In 4,000 hybrid comparisons, it averaged 109.2 bushels in the tri-state area.

In Kansas, with 758 comparisons, Colt averaged 134.3 bushels per acre compared to the average 116.1 bushels per acre for all entrees.

In a three-year test in Nebraska, Colt yielded an average of 141.6 bushels per acre compared to average yields of 124.6 for the 722 hybrids entered in tests. Colt has an overall 17.7 bushel yield advantage compared to the average of all hybrids in the two-state area.

PFA offers money market fund

HARRISBURG — The FBL Money Market Fund is now offering shares for purchase in Pennsylvania, according to Keith W. Eckel, president of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association (PFA). FBL Money Market Fund is one of the Iowa Farm Bureau Mutual Funds with offices located in West DeMoines.

"The objective of the FBL Money Market Fund," Eckel said, "is maximum current income consistent with liquidity and stability of principal."

The mutual fund invests in short-term money market instruments maturing in one year or less, including securities issued or guaranteed by the U.S. government or its instrumentalities, bank certificates of deposit, bankers' acceptances, commercial paper, and other corporate debt and repurchase agreements. Interest is accrued daily and applied to accounts monthly.

The minimum initial investment in the FBL Money Market Fund is $1,500, which includes a one-time-only $100 sales charge. Subsequent investments may be in any amount of $100 or more and without any additional sales charges. A constant net asset value of $1 per share will be maintained.

There is no penalty at any time for withdrawal, and funds may be withdrawn instantly by writing a check against the account or by telephone or mail. The minimum withdrawal is $500 by check and $1,000 by wire. Any amount may be withdrawn by mail.

Eckel pointed out that the yield on a money market fund varies both up and down daily with current market conditions.

"Because of their nature," he said, "money market funds are at this time an attractive alternative for short-term investments.

"We believe that the fund will be of great help to farmers, who so often realize their income in lump sums and need a vehicle for managing their cash for indefinite periods at a good rate of return."

The fund offers a variety of retirement investment programs, including Keogh plans (for the self-employed), Individual Retirement Accounts, Tax Deferred 403 (b) plans, corporate pension and profit-sharing plans, and public employer deferred compensation plans.

A periodic withdrawal plan is available for shareholders who own in a single account $5,000 or more of fund shares. This plan provides for regular monthly, quarterly or annual payments of a fixed dollar amount (minimum $100).

Biologics firm surrenders bovine vaccine license

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Burroughs Wellcome Company of Kansas City, Kan., has voluntarily surrendered its U.S. Department of Agriculture licenses to produce bovine virus diarrhea vaccines because of potency and procedural problems, a USDA official said.

John K. Atwell, deputy administrator of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, said the company is recalling remaining inventories of the vaccines produced under the surrendered license. These products are not considered to represent a health or safety hazard, Atwell said.

The vaccines are widely used to immunize cattle against a disease which can cause abortion, respiratory problems, gastroenteritis and severe anorexia.

Atwell said the firm had experienced potency problems with their bovine virus diarrhea-containing products and that USDA inspectors found procedural problems during a recent inspection of Burroughs Wellcome's production facility in Kansas City, Kan. The company surrendered the licenses after an Aug. 26 meeting between company officials and USDA veterinarians.

The Burroughs Wellcome Company has completely reorganized top production and management personnel at its Kansas City facility and plans to initiate relicensing of a completely new bovine virus diarrhea product line that will meet USDA veterinary biologics standards, Atwell said.

USDA licenses veterinary biologics that are distributed interstate under the Virus-Serum-Toxin Act of 1913. The act requires products be proven safe, pure, potent and effective. USDA personnel license and inspect producing firms.

USDA publication on small farm available

BELTSVILLE, Md. — Thinking about a family farm as a side business? Or, just want to brush up on producing fruits, vegetables, livestock, or specialty plants and animals on a small scale? Perhaps a new U.S. Department of Agriculture publication can help you.

"Research for Small Farms" is a highly comprehensive presentation of the latest research and technology for small-scale farming, encompassing a range of commodities from the traditional fruits, berries and vegetables to herbs; from standard livestock to rabbits and dairy goats. It is a 300-page proceedings of a special symposium on small farms held last year at the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center, a unit of USDA's Agricultural Research Service.

The book contains more than 50 papers presented by experts from the USDA, State universities, private institutions, and industry. Each paper begins with an abstract of its contents and ends with a list of references for further information. Authors describe trends in horticultural and livestock markets as well as the nuts-and-bolts of growing and marketing comodities for profit. Others delve into such subjects as by-product feeds for cattle and sheep, organic farming methods, and small woodlots.

Research for Small Farms opens with a short history of the American small family farm — its growth, decline, and resurgence — and closes with a major computer data company executive's detailed plans for a network of training centers aimed at revitalizing the family farm in the U.S. and abroad.

Interested persons can obtain a copy by sending a check or money order for $7.50 to the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, DC 20402. Please specify the title and series number: Research for Small Farms - MP1422.

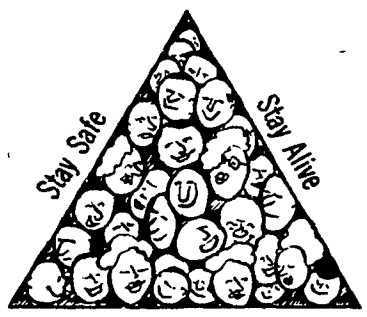
Poison ivy poses danger on the farm

LANCASTER — Poison ivy and farm safety? You may not think that a discussion on this nasty plant is conducive to painting the complete farm safety picture, but it is!

Every year people suffer from mild to severe cases of poison ivy. Most of these people contact the poison while walking innocently through the woods or pastures on their farm. One Bedford County woman suffered swollen, itchy, puffy legs for over two weeks because she brushed against the ivy while simply scooting under a fence to go round up the herd of grazing cattle.



Poison ivy is without a doubt one of nature's nastiest plants, found almost everywhere. If left uncontrolled, it will crowd out more desirable plants and soon render an area unfit for human activity.

This ivy is typically a woody vine, consisting of three easy-to-recognize, large, glossy green leaflets. These turn a deceptively attractive yellow and orange in the fall. Clusters of white, waxy berries are sometimes found along the stems. These help to identify the plant during its leafless winter stage. Remember, all parts are poisonous, including the roots and fruit.

People differ in their sensitivity to poison ivy. Some individuals are practically immune while others may be seriously affected, requiring a doctor's attention and possibly even hospital care.

Learn to recognize and avoid this noxious weed at all times of the year. If you do happen to come in actual contact with it, wash the exposed skin immediately and thoroughly with soap.

The simplest and safest way to kill poison ivy is with a chemical weedkiller. Do not try to control the pest by hand because you'll expose your skin to the plant and you'll also probably inhale it. Inhaling poison ivy can be dangerous to the lungs. Don't try to burn the ivy as even the smoke is poisonous.—DK

Did you receive a farm safety questionnaire?

LANCASTER — Questionnaires for the Farm Accident Safety Program survey being conducted by PFA were mailed at the beginning of the year to 1,500 randomly-selected PFA members.

The response from the questionnaires has been less than favorable, so PFA would like to remind farmers who received them to return them soon. They need your cooperation to make the survey a success.

Data collected will be used to develop a profile of a typical farm operation in Pennsylvania. Later, accident information will be compared with survey findings to develop useful safety suggestions and programs.

Long-term goals of Farm Accident Safety Program are to reduce frequency and severity of farm accidents, and to lower farmers' insurance costs.

U.S. - China grain talks indicate record trade likely

WASHINGTON, D.C. — U.S. grain shipments to China are likley to reach a record level in calendar 1982, according to Melvin E. Sims, general sales manager and associate adminstrator of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Foreign Agriculture Service.

Sims made the statement following the Aug. 27 conclusion in Beijing of the second annual consulations under the four-year U.S.-China grains agreement.

"The United States officially advised the Chinese that for the calendar 1982 shipment year, the normal prior notice to the United States as required under the agreement will not be necessary should China want to purchase more than 9 million tons of wheat and corn," Sims said.

"Under the terms of the agreement," he said, "the Chinese each year will buy at least 6 million tons of wheat and corn, and must give prior notice before purchasing more than 9 million tons. The agreement calls for regular, annual consultations but provides for additional consultations whenever requested by either side."

As of Aug. 29, purchase of U.S. wheat and corn for shipment in calendar 1982 totaled about 9,463,000 tons, including 6,897,000 tons of wheat and 1,566,000 tons of corn, according to officials of the China National Cereals, Oilseeds and Foodstuffs Import and Export Corporation (Ceroilfood Corp.). About 5,780,000 tons were shipped during January-July, including about 685,000 tons of corn and about 5,095,000 tons of wheat, almost entirely soft red winter.

For the second consecutive calendar year, China is likely to be the largest single overseas market for U.S. wheat, Sims said. Ceroilfood representatives indicated, however, that purchases in coming months for 1983 shipment likely would show an increased volume of U.S. corn.

"In reviewing China's overall import program, including grains from other origins, it appears that with commitments already in place, China's total imports may approach 16 million tons for calendar 1982," said Sims.

He added that this was a sizeable increase over last year's level of less than 13 million. Port and handling facilities currently are strained by the heavy import pace. Further significant purchases for calendar 1982 shipment were therefore said to be unlikely.

The Chinese noted that because of increased emphasis on cash crops, their grain crop area has declined slightly, although yields are steadily increasing. They also reported that livestock product output is being encouraged, and that a 26.9 percent increase was registered between 1978 and 1981.

Sims headed the U.S. delegation for the regular session of annual consultations. The leader of the Chinese delegation was Tong Zhiguang, deputy manager of Ceroilfood Corporation.

SCS seeks improved farm resource conservation

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A symposium aimed at finding better ways to conserve resources on the nation's farms is scheduled for Dec. 5-9 at the National 4-H Center here.

"Farmers, agricultural scientists, agribusiness leaders and others concerned with natural resource management are invited to express their views at the symposium," said Peter C. Myers, chief of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service.

Myers and Earl O. Heady of the Center for Agriculture and Rural Development, Iowa State University, Ames, will be the principal speakers at the event, which will be conducted by Iowa State as part of an agreement with the USDA agency.

Deadline for registration is Oct. 1.

Myers said his agency will use the recommendations of the work groups at the meeting to improve USDA conservation programs under the Soil and Water Resources Conservation Act of 1977.

Six objectives of the symposium are to:

Determine current technology and assess future propects in agricultural food and fiber production systems.

Determine how scientific agricultural technology can be blended with farm management practices.

Identify factors limiting the adoption of conservation practices.

Determine the present status and assess the future of adopting conservation practices into existing farm systems.

Assess the status and use of the soil and water resources available for agricultural production.

Evaluate other soil and water conservation issues identified by USDA and symposium participants.

Further information is available from the Center for Agriculture and Rural Development, Iowa State University, 578 East Hall, Amos, Iowa 50011. Telephone (515) 294-1183.

Don't fall from farm machinery

LANCASTER — Falls cause one-fourth of farm work injuries according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture. More people are hurt in falls connected with machinery than by any other kind of work falls on the farm.

How do people fall?

—Jumping on or off moving equipment.

—Riding on drawbars.

—Slipping while trying to mount or dismount a tractor or machine.

—Not using available handrails, steps, or other safeguards.

—Being thrown when the machine strikes an obstacle, hits a deep rut, bump, or groundhog hole, makes a sudden start or stop or fast turn, or is driven on a steep slope.

—Being thrown off moving equipment while standing or not holding on tight.

—Wearing muddy shoes or the wrong kind of shoes for the job.

—Falling while loading or unloading wagons.

—Slipping on muddy, frozen or icy ground while servicing or repairing equipment.

—Riding on top of loaded wagons, especially baled hay or straw.

—Jumping or climbing from one machine to another — as from a combine to a wagon.

—Becoming suddenly dizzy or ill, extremely fatigued, or having a heat stroke.

To not only protect yourself but the safety of your loved ones, the best thing you can do for them is to say no when they request a ride on the tractor.

Tractors are for work, not for recreation or transportation. Notice that your tractor has one seat — this seat is, obviously, for the operator only.

Make sure no one has climbed aboard the tractor or trailing equipment without your knowledge. Be certain everyone is out of the way before you move.

And don't use your tractor for baby-sitting purposes. Arrange for suitable child care if necessary.—DK

'Half-n-Half' owners wholeheartedly approve of dairying

BY DONNA TOMMELLEO

COCHRANTON — "It seems so strange to have the State Show right here."

Carol Freyermuth McCurdy probably echoed the feelings of most western Pennsylvania Holstein breeders after last week's State Championship Holstein Show held near Meadville.

The Crawford County Fairgrounds, for years, have been the stomping grounds of both Carol and husband Bryan. Much of their 4-H showing careers was spent within in the borders of the Meadville facility, just minutes from their home.

While all the cattle at Bryan's home farm, Jan-Air, were dispersed several years ago, temporarily ending his tanbark trips, Carol continued at halter of father Robert Freyermuth's Maplesrow Holsteins.

"I like helping Dad out," said Carol, who has made the trip east to past State Championship shows with the Maplesrow show string.

Earlier this summer, the Maplesrow black and whites provided the grand champion for the Western Region Championship Show. Freyermuth's 3-year-old Glen Valley Star daughter, Auchso-Lenno Star captured Grand Champion honors.

Carol explained that her father activated his showing career about the time she and and her siblings joined 4-H. One of his first show animals, said Carol, was a bull.

"Bulls are easy to start with," she explained. "You don't have to spend time milking them." The extra time saved; noted Carol, can be spent tending other show animals or, if the show is local, allows exhibitors to spend more time on the home farm completing chores.

Given that hindsight, it almost seemed fitting that Carol and Bryan would enter their first State Championship Show with Christopher, their junior bull calf.

"He was supposed to be a heifer when he was born," Bryan laughed. "There's also a little bit of a market around here for bulls, so we decided to keep him.

Nevertheless, the Cochranton couple agreed their S-W-D Valiant son was fancy from the start.

Apparently so did State Show judge Jimmie Eustace. Christopher won the first class of the show and then came back to claim Reserve Champion Bull honors. The title added to his successful summer when he also collected Champion Bull honors at the Western Championship Show and the Crawford County Fair.

"He does real well for a bull. He's alert but not excitable," Carol offered.

Even the thrill of owning and exhibiting a Reserve Junior All-Pennsylvania intermediate calf, such as Carol experienced a dozen years ago, couldn't match the excitement of the McCurdys' 1982 show season.

"I was probably too young to appreciate it then. But to start out this great in the State Show...I still can't believe it. It still hasn't sunk in," said Carol.

And although the McCurdys have been married and farming on their own for four years, Christopher's wins marked the baptism of Half-n-Half Holsteins into statewide fame for the remainder of the year.

A visitor strolling through the Crawford County show barns, last week, may almost have overlooked the lone bull calf, with an unpretentious cardboard barn sign, sandwiched inbetween scores of fancy wooden signs, bedecked with professional lettering.

But amid entries from Lancaster, Newville and other points east, Half-n-Half Christopher definetly was no stranger to these western facilities. Even his maternal roots were spiced with local flavor.

His dam, Jan-Air Christine carried Bryan's orignal home prefix. Currently bred to Tempo, Christine is projected at 17,412 pounds of milk and 733 pounds of fat. Bryan explained a second mating to S-W-D Valiant is planned.

Christine's sire, Round Oak Rag Apple Cheeko was purchased as a yearling bull by another Cochranton breeder, Jack Rynd, said Bryan. The McCurdys, as well as other western Pennsylvania breeders introduced the Cheeko bloodlines into their herd.

"The Cheeko bull is one of very few Elevation sons that is plus on type," Bryan explained. Christopher's dam, Cheeko's 3-year-old daughter is the first McCurdy black and white to break 90 points and score Excellent, which she did last month.

In all, the McCurdy's 29-head herd includes one Excellent, 17 Very Goods, nine scored Good Plus and two Goods for an unofficial BAA of 106.1.

The mostly homebred herd represents the efforts put forth by both Bryan and Carol, hence their official moniker – Half-n-Half Holsteins.

"They're half his and half mine. I figure I work just as hard," Carol replied.

But the couple found that choosing a prefix can be a lengthy and sometime disappointing process.

"We had sent several choices in, but they were all sent back because they were already taken," Bryan explained.

Among their picks, the McCurdys tried for Harmony Holsteins, Mount Hope Holsteins and Hopeful Holsteins to name a few."

"We liked the sound of the H in the name. Each time we sent one in we kept thinking that it was going to be the one," recalled Carol.

Finally, the national Holstein office gave "Half-n-Half" its blessing.

Although the herd is half Carol's, Bryan provided most of the foundation stock. Following his father's dispersal, years ago, Bryan took a job as herdsman on a nearby farm. His home farm included young heifers which the McCurdy family would show and finally sell as springers.

Eventually, Bryan moved back, kept the heifers and began milking. When Carol became Mrs. McCurdy in 1978, she moved in with two cows. Most of her 4-H animals, she explained were prolific bulls mothers.

The McCurdys currently own all the animals and most of their equipment but still rent the buildings and about 160 acres.

While Carol and Bryan supply the bulk of the Half-n-Half work force, Bryan's father Blair steps in for the morning milking each day.

The 100 percent registered herd is maintained on a daily diet of corn silage, haylage, and a soybean mix. They push an average 16,777 pounds of milk and 599 pounds of fat per head through the around-the-barn pipeline.

Both Carol and Bryan admit they work toward a higher herd average without increasing cow numbers. They simply want to get better, not bigger.

"Around here, milk prices have

(Turn to Page D15)

Just as they share the workload, the couple also share the fruits of victory such as the numerous trophies and plaques that Christopher helped amass in his 1982 outings. Their champion bull is pictured at left adjacent to his 90-point dam at right.

Away from the show ring, with its glamour and glitter, Carol rolls up her sleeves and pitches in for evening chores. The Crawford County woman dabbled with outside employment by working in a department store but realized after a short stint that cows were the only merchandise she wanted to peddle.

Christopher comes home. After a long but successful stay at the State Championship Holstein Show, Carol leads her ribbon-winning S-W-D Valiant son back to the herd. The Young bull may show up again on the All-American tanbark next week.

Bryan offers the evening repast of haylage to his Half-n-Half herd. McCurdy moved back to his homestead in 1976 after serving as herdsman on a nearby dairy.

ASCS announces '83 wheat reduction program

HARRISBURG — Pennsylvania wheat farmers are urged to consider participation in the 1983 Wheat Acreage Reduction Program, says Jesse Wood, chairperson of the Pennsylvania State Committee for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, USDA.

"Current high supplies of wheat and low farm wheat prices make this program necessary," Wood explains.

Wheat farmers may help solve supply and price problems by taking advantage of program benefits as follows:

—Price support loans will be available for wheat at $3.65 per bushel (national average). The Pennsylvania rate will be approximately $3.62 per bushel.

—Deficiency payments - The 1983 wheat target price is set at $4.30 per bushel. The maximum farm deficiency payment will be 65 cents per bushel. Actual payment will be the lesser of the 65 cents or the difference between $4.30 target price and the average market price per bushel for the first six months of the 1983 marketing year.

—One-half the expected deficiency payment or 32.5 cents per bushel on expected wheat production may be advanced when producers enroll in the program.

—Land diversion payments will be made for eligible cropland acreage equal to 5 percent of the 1983 wheat base. Payment will be made at the rate of $2.70 per bushel based on ASCS farm yields.

—Participants will be eligible to place 1983 wheat in the Grain Reserve program.

Voluntary program sign-up will start Oct. 1, 1982, and continue through March 31, 1983, Wood says.

Participation will require producers to reduce 1983 wheat planting by 20 percent of the farm ASCS 1983 wheat base acreage. The 1983 wheat base acreage is the same as the 1982 wheat base acreage. A diversion payment computed by multiplying $2.70 per bushel times the ASCS farm wheat yield times 5 percent times the farm 1983 wheat base will be paid by ASCS. No diversion payment will be made on the remaining 15 percent acreage reduction.

The acreage of cropland reduced by participation will be maintained in a conservation use and not harvested in 1983. Producers who plant less than 80 percent of the farm wheat base may determine the total conservation use acreage needed multiplying the 1983 wheat acres by 18.75 percent, plus 5 percent of the 1983 wheat base.

ASCS will not mail 1983 wheat base acreage notices to producers prior to Sept. 24. Producers who plan to plant prior to that date may obtain their wheat base by referring to the 1982 Notice of Yields and Acreage Bases mailed in March 1982 or by calling their county ASCS office.

Each farm will participate separately in 1983 with no cross compliance between farms. There will be no offsetting compliance between wheat and other crops. A farm may participate in wheat only.

Complete program provisions for the 1983 Wheat Program are available at County ASCS offices.

Bicycle rules apply on the farm

LANCASTER — A reminder of all the safe bicycling laws are in order to complete the farm safety picture. After all, most farms have two or three bicycles that adults, as well as children, ride to the fields, around the driveway and more importantly on the road.

Here are some tips from the Pennsylvania Governor's Traffic Safety Council. Remember, the rules of the road for bicyclists are the same as they are for other vehicles.

— Ride on the right side of the road moving in the same direction as the rest of traffic. Use a bike lane or path if there is one available — if not, you are entitled to use a reasonable portion of the roadway, but be cautious.

— Obey all traffic signs and signals including stop signs, speed signs, yield signs, and traffic signs. These are posted for your safety as well as the safety of cars and trucks. If you are walking your bike through an intersection, you are a pedestrian and must obey pedestrian signals.

— Be sure you always use hand signals when stopping or turning.

— Ride defensively. Avoid busy roads and intersections, and use extra care when crossing an intersection. Be sure to watch for obstacles — sewer grates, farm tools left scattered about, railroad crossings, debris, and loose gravel along the side of the road can make you lose control of your bike.

— Make sure your bike is in good condition and all your safety equipment is operating. That means your brakes and pedals work properly, your tires are pumped accordingly, and that you have lights, reflectors, and a bell or horn. For extra protection, wear brght colored clothing.—DK already dropped about thirty cents in the past few months," Brian said. "There's no doubt times will get tougher before they get better."

There's also no doubt that the Half-n-Half owners wholeheartedly want to stay with dairy.

"Sure, there are days when you wish you were somewhere else," Carol conceded, "but it doesn't last long. I really like the work and it's nice doing things together."

Sharing their first State Show victory, or watching a cow score excellent for the first time may be among the McCurdy's 1982 highlights.

And scattered amid the trophies and plaques earned on the tanbark, Bryan added a few personal landmarks as well. In his first year of competitive canoeing the Cochranton man along with a friend paddled to three first place victories.

Although proud of her husband, Carol, a confirmed "landlubber," said she prefers solid ground.

But on common ground — the love of registered Holsteins — Bryan and Carol can work toward establishing a future of ribbons, records and recognition completed by a "Half-n-Half" herd.

The Dairy Business

CORN ARITHMETIC
FIGURES DON'T LIE, TREAT THEM RIGHT

It's the old story all over again. We are faced with a bumper crop of corn, which is good news in any year, but brings us up short with the bad news of lower price per bushel.

Of course, for dairymen it can mean that their feed costs could be somewhat lower also. It all depends on which side of the fence you are standing come harvest time.

About a year ago, Roland Freund, Capitol Region farm management specialist, published a list of alternate strategies for marketing the corn crop. Assumins a 100 bushel yield, the alternative return per bushel looked somethins like this:

RETURNS PER BUSHEL - 100 BUSHEL/ACRE
CORN WORTH $2.80/BU.

METHOD OF SELLING	RETURN/BU.
shelled out of field	$2.30
store 6 months & sell	$2.21
government reserve	$3.10
market hogs ($48/cwt)	$2.38
market steers ($65/cwt) return for shelled corn	$1.86
market steers ($60/cwt) return for silage corn	$2.59
dairy cow (13500# milk $13.50/cwt-less overhead	$2.33
laying hens	$2.15

Of course we've skipped a lot of the details in figuring the above returns, and arguments could be put forth to show much higher or lower values, depending on your level of efficiency or production. However the comparative values are significant for last years events. They will be slightly different this year due to more favorable livestock prices the last few months.

We know that lower grain prices will encourage higher levels of grain feeding to livestock and dairy animals. With hay selling at more than $100 a ton, it makes sense to utilize the high energy and reasonable price of corn to feed our cows. Of course, it will also add to the burden of over-supply in both milk and meat.

Well, I'm going to let you draw your own conclusions on what to do with the big corn crop. Here are some facts you can use in bargaining with the elevator, the government of your neighbor:

VALUE OF CORN IN THE FIELD

The value of a bushel of corn is always tempered by the moisture content. Consult a table that shows the weight of corn to equal 56 pound (one bushel) at 15.5 percent moisture. There is good one in the Penn State Agronomy Guide, page 13.

Notice that there is a great deal of difference in the ratios used to determine the wet weight of shelled corn versus ear corn. Whole ear corn generally runs from 3 to 5 percent higher in moisture than the kernel moisture percent. If the kernel moisture is 28 percent, the ear moisture will be 33 percent.

If buying or selling high moisture corn, divide the total weight by the specified bushel weight for the percent moisture at delivery time. If you don't, the price of water gets awfully high! A bushel of shelled corn loses 11.6 pounds of water when dried from 30 percent moisture down to 15.5 percent!

GRAIN STORAGE

Storing corn as high moisture ear corn, shelled corn or silage are all well documented and most dairymen have access to information on how

Indiana Co. posts dairy winners

INDIANA — The Nesbit family of March and last week swept both Grand and Reserve Grand Championships of the Indiana Co. Fair Holstein competition with their home-bred cows.

Beth Nesbit showed 4-year-old Bra-Mar Astro Eve VG to the Grand Championship slot of the 4-H and Open shows.

Eve, sired by Bra-Mar Astro Apollo, completed a lactation of 16,210 pounds of milk and 640 pounds of fat as a 3-year-old.

Nesbit's 2-year-old Ivanhoe Star daughter was named Reserve Champion Holstein of 4-H and Open shows.

Darlene McConaughey of Smicksburg swept all Jersey championships in 4-H and Open competition. Her 5-year-old, sired by Golden Faithful and out of Lauxmont Advancers Sleeping won Grand Champion honors while her Reserve Champion Jersey was a 3-year-old daughter of Lauxmont Advancers Sleeping and out of Jester Sleeping Dream.

The Junior and Reserve Junior Champion awards also were won by granddaughters of Lauxmont Advancers Sleeping and were both sired by Advancer Sleeping Milestone.

The Grand Champion Guernsey of both 4-H and Open shows was a 4-year-old bred and exhibited by Ethel Coleman.

Reserve Champion Guernsey was a 3-year-old daughter of Sniders Lassies Dairy Lad bred exhibited by Robert Beatty of Indiana. In open Guernsey competition, Galen McDonald of Imler swept nearly all awards in group classes.

The Ayrshire competition found the Sam Diehl Family of Bedford County taking top awards in the open classes. The 4-H Champion Ayrshire was exhibited by Nathan Baker and bred by Ralph and Patricia Shank.

Kim Murphy exhibited the Champion Milking Shorthorn, bred by James A. Scott.

First-year 4-H member Penny Farmery of Rochester Mills claimed the Champion Junior Fitter title. Greg Edwards of Indiana earned Junior Champion Showman. Heidi Edwards worked hard to top both the Senior Dairy Showman and Fitter contests.

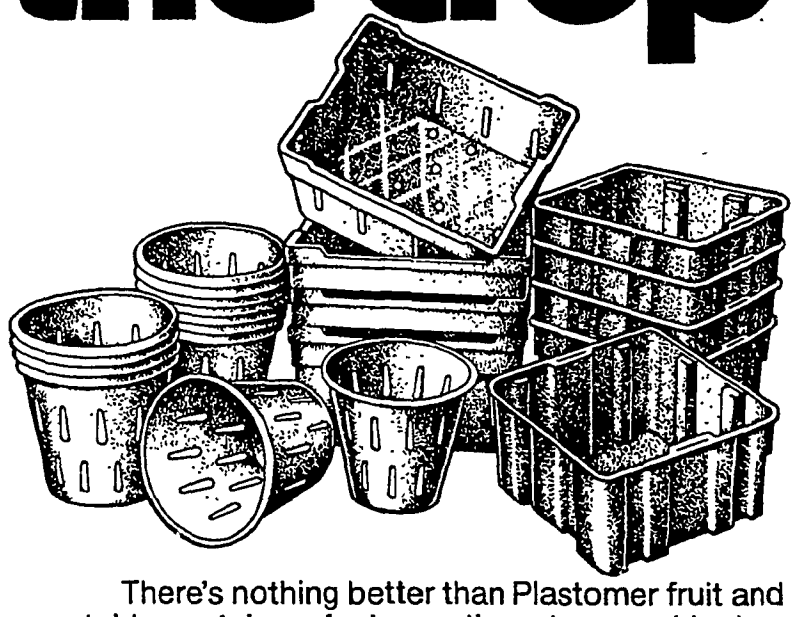
to benefit from these types of storage. However, there will be a lot of temptation to store surplus corn in unconventional storage.

For example, we have had enquiries about storing government reserve corn in the silo. Yes, it can be done but with caution.

If you are considering the use of a conventional silo to store dry corn, please contact your Extension Office for a copy of the Mimeograph from Perdue University on "Adapting Silage Silos for Dry Grain Storage." It contains the full outlines of procedures to make the operation safe. It can be doomed to failure if you don't do it right.

Well, we'll just have to count our surplus as a blessing and try to handle it as profitably as possible. We may succeed at that better once we learn that successful farming means profitable marketing as well as high production.

Pick of the crop



There's nothing better than Plastomer fruit and vegetable containers for harvesting, storage, shipping, roadside, and pick-your-own.

Our plastic containers are light and remarkably strong. They won't rot, crack, or put splinters in your fingers. They're washable, nest for storing,and come in a variety of sizes – for any crop.

Ritchie Fountains deliver. Even in the dead of winter they are out there working. You're not.

Weatherproof. You bet they are. Heating systems and efficient insulation keep water ice-free... just set the Watt Watcher™ thermostat for minimal energy use. Big-throated, non-stick plastic valves keep water gushing in. Each of your cows get all the water they need to promote peak production.

Ritchie Fountains are tough, too. Quality-built with rugged heavy galvanized steel and CD-50® epoxy finish to stand up to weather and barnlot abuse.

Why take chances on anything less than a red and yellow Ritchie Fountain? Call your Ritchie dealer for water that won't quit.

Thomas family keeps Del. dairy farm growing

NEWARK, Del. — John Thomas is one growth-oriented executive who still manages to spend plenty of time with his family. That's because Thomas' business is a dairy farm, and he works at home.

As he travels about his 1,500-acre, 600-animal spread in Marydel, Delaware, he stays in constant communication with his wife and five children via a two-way radio he wears on his belt. Often one or two of the youngsters accompany him on his rounds.

Admittedly ambitious in his business affairs, Thomas also is the consummate family man. He's usually there with comforting words and Band-aids when one of the kids stubs a toe.

And although the baby of the family is just a year old, Carolyn Thomas is as involved with the business as her husband is with the children. She keeps the books; meets the weekly payroll, which ranges from about 10 employees most weeks to about 16 during haymaking; drives the truck when needed; feeds the calves; and prepares hearty suppers for a dozen or more hungry workers.

The older kids are expected to help out, but they also have plenty of fun. Their doting parents have provided a swing set, above ground pool, and even a trampoline. The family also owns a small power boat, but they don't get to use it quite as often as they'd like. Even though there are three young men to take care of the milking, Thomas finds it difficult to leave so much responsibility in the hands of assistants.

When he does manage to get away, it's often to attend an educational program sponsored by the Delaware Cooperative Extension Service. And where John goes, the whole family goes, whether it's to a Dairy Day meeting in Kent County or a week-long agricultural exploration of Puerto Rico.

Thomas claims the whole family benefits from the Extension tours and meetings. "To keep up in agriculture today," he says, "farmers — and the next generation of farmers — need specialized information. When we go to these meetings, we all learn something we didn't know before something that will pay off."

When Thomas wanted to expand him operation three years ago, he turned to Extension building specialist Ernie Walpole. Walpole helped him draw up the plans to turn his father's old stanchion barn into calf pens and to create a totally modern, quarter-million-dollar milking parlor capable of handling 400 cows. Together they selected a well-drained site and worked out the arrangement of barns, shed, silos, and manure storage pit.

Thomas family

The gleaming new parlor is in operation now, though it's not yet being used to maximum capacity. Presently Thomas is milking about 200 cows. The remaining 400 animals he owns are calves, heifers, and bulls, which he saves for breeding and beef.

Though Thomas has inherited his father's desire to keep the farm growing, he doesn't spend money without a good reason.

For instance, Thomas spends extra money to have his milk tested in Philadelphia instead of Dover. The Philadelphia lab can conduct certain quality tests that can't be performed in Dover because the equipment is not yet available. The tests are not required by law, but Thomas wants to keep an extra-close eye on the quality of his milk.

Thomas also is willing to spend a little extra to keep his cows comfortable. He installed water misters to keep the cows cool — and production up in summer.

When it comes to storing feed and manure, though, Thomas looks for ways to save. He built a manure storage pit that is nothing more than a 130 by 50 foot rectangular wooden box, 10 feet deep, set into a raised mound of earth. The building plans had called for a roof, but Thomas couldn't see the need for it so he didn't put it on. The manure is pushed in via Thomas' automatic scraper system, and twice a year he spreads it onto the fields.

The farm was thriving when John took it over from his father, Isaac, and it's even bigger now. Thomas believes in continuing to move forward. He's already using computer rations for his cows, and Delaware Extension dairy specialist Dr. George Haenlein predicts he'll be one of the first local farmers to buy his own computer to help manage his large operation.

Thomas realizes it's only a matter of time before the next generation of Thomases takes the farm into the twenty-first century. And if all goes according to plan, it will be even more technologically advanced, larger, and more profitable than it is today.

Cole supports Farm Crisis Act

HARRISBURG — State Rep. Kenneth Cole (D-Adams) has gone on record in full support of Congressional efforts to enact a Farm Crisis Act to protect farmers from the current economic situation.

In a letter to U.S. Rep. Thomas Daschle (D-S.C.) author of the federal legislation, Cole called the proposal "the best hope for relief and survival of the family farm."

Earlier, Daschle had written to Cole asking for his suggestions and support for the plan to provide incentives for reduced farm production, loans for on-farm input on government decisions regarding loan rates on crops in return for idled land.

In his letter Cole said, "I do not believe farmers prefer to idle their productive capability...But under present conditions, this seems to be the only way to keep surplus supplies from becoming even more burdensome. Farmers must maintain certain income levels...and the Farm Crisis Act would help them by providing incentives for participation in acreage reduction.

"(The Reagan) Administration has failed to even indicate the establishment of consistent agricultural policy so that we could once again be considered a reliable source of supply for agricultural products," Cole continued. "Also, the matter is further complicated by the State Department's apparent attitude that food supplies should be part of an international 'football game.'

In supporting the proposal Cole said recent efforts of the Reagan Administration to encourage farmers to hold back on production are "doomed to failure as long as there are no incentives." He explained even though farmers are receiving less for their products than the cost of producing them, current economic realities force them to produce more.

"We have a viscous circle which will not be broken until someone provides the incentive to the individual farmer to reduce his production," Cole said. In our current situation, farmers must produce or sell the farm.

Over the past 15 years, the Pennsylvania General Assembly has made a concerted effort to protect the family farm. The success of these efforts could be ended immediately if the economic crunch on agricultural producers continues.

"Congress and the president have an obligation to act now to protect the independent farmer. Failure to meet this obligation will push the nation's agricultural production into the hand of big business and the impact on both farmer and the consumer will be far more burdensome."

Jersey genetic improvement stirs breed controversy

COLUMBUS, Ohio — In the Executive Secretary's report at the 114th Annual Meeting of the American Jersey Cattle Club which convened in Wichita, Kansas this past June, J.F. Cavanaugh noted, "Jerseys have made a greater percent increase in production than any other breed... and the average predicted difference of Jersey sires available in A.I. is the highest of any breed at +$154.

The Jersey breed's growing popularity is evidenced by an increase in the demand for jerseys on the auction block. Jersey cattle sold in 1981 brought over $5.6 million, a $2 million increase over record-breaking 1980 prices.

What accounts for the Jersey's rise in popularity? The answer from dairy producers and bull studs attributes profitability through improved genetics. The American Jersey Cattle Club estimates with only a 5 percent annual increase, by 1990 the Club will register 75,000 animals, transfer 35,000, and enroll 60,000 cows in production testing programs. They also predict that with only a 2% annual increase in production, the average Jersey would be milking 14,175 pounds with 675 pounds of fat.

The road to these projections will probably not be any smoother than the trails that were pioneered to obtain the Jerseys' present day genetic status. In 1965, according to R. Dean Plowman of USDA-ARS, Jersey cows averaged 8,593 pounds of milk on a mature equivalent basis, and yearly changes were very small. Two year olds averaged about 7,000 pounds of milk.

In 1968, 34 percent of the Jersey cows were bred to average or less than average bulls and only 48 percent were bred to "breed improvers." Eighteen percent were bred to bulls of unknown genetic merit. As late as 1968, the average predicted difference of active A.I. bulls was only plus 144 pounds. One-third of all active A.I. bulls in use had minus proofs. The ten bulls siring the most registered sons had an average P.D. of negative 280 pounds, according to Jersey Club records.

In contrast, in 1981 the U.S. averages for all official DHIR Jersey Records was 11,862 pound of milk and 567 pounds of fat on a mature equivalent basis.

As of July 1982 the average statistics on Jersey bulls in active service, according to the Cattle Club, was plus 1159M, plus 39F, plus $141 and plus 189 PTI. These are the requirements for nomination to the AJCC Young Sire Program. If a young bull is to meet this level for Pedigree Index, he needs to be sired by a bull that is at least plus 1600 PDM, and hsi dam needs to be sired by a bull that is plus 1200 PDM.

The dramatic changes in the breed were catalyzed by decisions made by the Club's Board of Directors in 1967, according to Executive Secretary James F. Cavanaugh. At this time, according to Cavanaugh, the Board of Directors shifted the emphasis in the breed away from promotion and into breed improvement in order to rejuvenate the Jersey cow's potential to commercial dairy producers. Two major factors in this transition were the adoption of the USDA sire summary procedure as their official bull-proving method and the change to a more functional type classification.

Prior to the use of USDA sire summaries, daughter averages were used to obtain proofs. Bulls were given sire awards based on a select number of daughters who, inturn, had a select number of records — all of which could have been made under selected environmental conditions. During the period of 1955-65 when daughter comparisons were in use, the Jersey official Lactation Average 2x-305 M.E. increased by 670 pounds. In the period from 1965-78, after the adoption of USDA summaries, the lactation averages increased by 1953 pounds, according to USDA figures.

Of course, not all breeders were in agreement with these changes, Cavanaugh recalls. "Naturally there was some opposition from well-meaning people who did not understand the proposed changes. There was vigorous, organized opposition from a small group of Jersey owners who bred Jerseys that did not measure up to the new standards," he remembers.

Jersey genetics

Wilderness Jerseys, Hamburg, Berks County, look with retrospect to those changes and laud their results in their 12-year Jersey herd. Helene states, "A lot of credit for this breed's genetic advancement goes to the leadership of Jim Cavanaugh. I'm sure there were a lot of people who thought we were just going to have a brown Holstein, but Jim Cavanaugh saw the way to go and pushed the breed in that direction."

Cavanaugh is quick to recognize the leadership of staff and breeders as the real driving force behind the breed's advancements. He states, "At the staff level we had the same Executive Secretary and Assistant Secretary, Maurice E. Core, during this 15-year period. We also were fortunate to have as superintendent of records three exceptional young men who had training in genetics: Ray Schooley, Evans Wright, and now Eugene Barton. They worked closely with the staff at USDA and the universities. Stanley Chittenden, Fair Weather Farm, New Lebanon, N.Y., served as Club president and provided strong leadership for change from 1966-68."

A measure of the success of the programs which directed the Jersey breed toward increased performance through the identification and extensive use of superior sires is perhaps best expressed through the cow's profitability to her owner.

One satisfied breeder is J. Howard Stiles, Littlestown, Adams County who comments. "What's exciting for me is that my two year olds are milking as much as my mature cows. One of our best producing mature cows only made 6,000 pounds as a two year old. Her two year old daughter is projected at over 11,000. I think its a combination of improved genetics and improved management."

"A good manager can expect excellent returns from his investment in Jerseys," says Leonard Bill, head of the Dairy Science Department at the University of Maine. According to DHI figures for 1981, The Northeast Improver publication summarized that in comparison to Holsteins (the most populous breed in the United States) Jerseys average a three-month longer herd life, a 0.6 percent higher protein test, have a 5 percent lower culling rate, calve at least two months earlier as two year olds, and have shorter calving intervals with fewer days open.

As the demand for Jersey cows increases, the demand for high-indexing Jersey sires also increases. Bull studs now commonly join with syndicates at national sales to purchase promising young sires for five-digit prices. Examples of this were the sales of Valention in the 1980 Jersey All-American Sale for the all-time record selling price of $72,000, and again in 1981 with the sale of Top Saint for $32,000 to a syndicate of breeders and an A.I. unit.

With registrations and transfers exceeding other breeds by the two times, the Jersey cow appears to be reaching the goal expressed by the American Jersey Cattle Club — making Jerseys more profitable to own than any other breed of dairy cow. — GSM

"They've ruined the Jersey cow," claims breeder John Stiles

BY GINGER SECRIST MYERS
Staff Correspondent

WESTMINSTER, Md. — Mention the name John T. Stiles to anyone related by profession to the dairy industry and you are sure to strike a chord of recognition, not only for the man but for his herd of Jerseys. Stiles, owner of Spring Valley Jerseys, Westminster, Maryland is the patriarch of the family whose name is historically linked with the Jersey breed.

The Montgomery County, Md. native was not raised with the "Island Cattle." Stiles and his father milked solely grade Holsteins until 1923. That's when their milk company give them an ultimatum to either ship higher testing milk or don't ship at all. The Stiles family purchased their first Jerseys and in less than a decade later all their Holsteins were gone. Stiles recalls that during World War II, he got more for his surplus Jersey milk than Holstein shippers recieved for their Class A milk.

The emphasis on test that got Stiles into the Jersey business still concerns him today. While strolling past his herd, he points out several of the family's show winners, always adding their testing credits. Stiles' herd averages 8,510 pounds milk with a current fat record of 412 fat on 72.6 cows for a 4.8 test average.

Stiles claims the American Jersey Cattle Club has led breeders away from the Jersey's ability to produce high test milk.

He exclaims "They've ruined the Jersey cow. Cows that test 4.2 percent butterfat aren't good Jerseys. That's Holstein milk. They're trying too hard to make the Jersey cow into a Holstein."

Alan, John's youngest son who, with brother Wayne, farms with his father, adds, "The Equity Program for component pricing that the Club is promoting is good but what will component pricing do for us if we lose our test?"

Wayne, who handles the reproductive management of the Stiles herd, breeds only to high test bulls. Three bulls in heavy service in the 60-cow herd at Spring Valley jerseys are Canadian bulls: Bright Spot, Title, and Sleeping Jester. John explains his preference for these bulls and the farm's own homebred bulls, stating, "We use these bulls because they throw more test and type. Besides, if you're going to use the bulls in this country, you can stop showing."

The Stileses have been veterans of the show circuit ever since John started exhibiting at the Maryland State Fair in 1924. A 4-H leader for 52 years, John has had a hand in the dairy education of not only his own six children but practically every active dairyman in Carroll County. To further promote the Jersey breed and to provide show calves to Carroll County youngsters, John and his sons contribute a registered Jersey calf every year to the Carroll County 4-H Fair Raffle. They also furnish the herdsman and the transportation for the Maryland state Jersey Herd to the National Jersey Show in Louisville, Kentucy.

Stiles has served on the board of directors of the Maryland Jersey Cattle Club for more than fifty years. He also served a term as an

Morton Buildings Do Double-Duty

BUY AND BUILD NOW — BE READY FOR HARVEST
A Morton Machine Shed with bulkheads installed is the most innovative idea in government approved flat grain storage. The sidewall bulkheads are 8' high designed to withstand pressures with grain peaked to trusses. The sliding door bulkheads withstand grain pressures when in place, yet are easily removed for access to building by equipment and machinery. Regular grain storage bins cannot be used for machine storage when empty, but your Morton Machine Shed can it does Double-Duty!

TYPICAL EXAMPLES OF BUILDING CAPACITIES (With 12'6" Sidewalls)
42' x 72' holds 18,600 Bu. +
48' x 81' holds 27,050 Bu. +

(Grain height at sidewall 8' — Capacities will vary depending on moisture content, test weight and other variables.)

Wayne, John, and Alan Stiles, Spring Valley Jerseys, Westminster, Maryland, pose with one of the matrons of their registered Jersey herd, Apicreviver Sherry. This fifteen-year-old Jersey has made over 100,000 pounds of milk and 6,000 pounds of fat. Stiles purchased his first Jersey in 1924 to help raise the fat level of milk produced by his grade Holsteins.

John Stiles and wife Charolette stand by a small collection awards John has received for his service to agriculture.

John Stiles

American Jersey Cattle Club board member during the mid-1950s when the breed's present Executive Secretary James F. Cavanaugh was hired.

Stiles points out the Club, under the direction of Cavanaugh, has an excellent youth program and field service staff, but Stiles strongly disagrees with the type of Jersey cow now being promoted. He states, "The Jersey breed in this country is actually two different breeds. One is 'smooth' breeding, like Marlu blood. The other is 'rough' breeding like High Lawn Farms has done. Cavanaugh is trying to mix the two and that just doesn't make for a good Jersey."

Stiles' interest in cows and agriculture has led him to many service positions and earned him the recognition of his peers. He is a retired director of the Frederick Production Credit Association, served as president of both the Maryland Dairy Shrine and the Maryland Purebred Dairy Cattle Association. His collection of honors and citations reads like a paragraph in "Who's Who in the Dairy World." His latest recognition came directly from Maryland's Govenor Hughes when Stiles received the governor's Citation for 51 years of service to agriculture at the first State Volunteers Recognition Day held at Cole Field House last April.

With all these awards and recognitions, when asked what the highlight of his dairying career has been Stiles puckers up with fatherly pride and replies that it was having all four sons on national 4-H teams representing Maryland. Sons Howard and Alan went on to international judging competition and was high individual the year he traveled to Europe.

It is his sense of dedication to family and service to agriculture that leads John Stiles to remark that he simply tries to be a fair man who is willing to help others. But, along with those traits, most people still think of John Stiles as a man who promotes the Jersey cow.

ASCS committee system under legislative review

WASHINGTON, D.C. — U.S. Senator Jesse Helms announced last week his intention to review the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Stabilizaton and Conservation Service Committee System for possible legislative adjustments.

Helms serves as chairman of the Senate Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry, which has jurisdiction over the laws and programs of the Department of Agriculture and its agencies.

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service is the principal agency which administers the nations' farm commodity programs. The ASC Committee System organizes thousands of farmers into county and state advisory groups to provide citizen input into administrative policies practiced by ASCS. In recent months there has been concern expressed that USDA intends to abolish the Community Committee systems.

Helms said, "I have been assured by officials of USDA that they never have had plans to do away with the ASC Committee System, and the study I have directed the staff of the Senate Committee on Agriculture to undertake will assure that."

Senator Helms said that legislation being studied in the Congress would modify the manner in which ASC county and community committees are established and elected to streamline, strengthen and assure the continuance of the Committee system.

"In the meantime," said Senator Helms, "I have the understanding ASCS is instructing its State Committees to make no major changes, except that county committees may, under already-existing regulations, review and establish and communities and boundaries for 1982 elections which will be held this fall.

"I have thoroughly discussed this matter with ASCS officials on several occasions," Senator Helms said, "and strongly expessed my concern for and support of the committee system. I have found ASCS to be receptive to my views and they promise full cooperation and full consideration of all aspects of this matter, as they review this pending legislation.

"ASCS fully understands and shares with me the values of its committee system. It is the most extensive and professional network operating at the grassroots of any U.S. Government agency, and is of great importance to all American agriculture."

Sindt is deputy mgr. of Fed. Crop Insurance Corp.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block recently announced the appointment of Robert H. Sindt as deputy manager of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Federal Crop Insurance Corporation.

Sindt moves to the crop insurance agency from the USDA Office of General Counsel, where he served for the past year as executive assistant to General Counsel A. James Barnes.

This appointment, said Block, completes the crop insurance management team at the USDA.

Earlier this year, responsibility for the agency was transferred to Under Secretary for Small Community and Rural Development Frank W. Naylor. At that time, Merritt W. Sprague was named manager of the agency.

Sindt was reared on a family farm in Franklin County, Neb. He holds degrees in agricultural economics from the University of Nebraska. He served as the agricultural aide to former U.S. Sen. Roman Hruska and was a counsel to the U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee.

USDA extends testing period for Canadian equine imports

WASHINGTON, D.C. — U.S. Department of Agriculture officials have extended from 60 to 180 days the official period during which horses about to be imported from Canada must be tested and found free of equine infectious anemia.

"Our adoption of the 180-day rule recognizes the low incidence of equine infectious anemia in Canada and that country's excellent control program," said John K. Atwell, deputy administrator of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service. "The relatively smaller horse population in Canada and the short season for biting insects that transmit the disease further reduce the danger of undetected infection in horses imported into the United States.

Alwell said 180 days is the time required by Canada for testing horses that are imported from the United States. Most state governments also require testing for the same period before interstate movements.

USDA proposed adopting the 180-day rule in March. All comments received supported the action.

Equine infectious anemia is a viral disease of horses that is transmitted by blood-sucking insects or by unsterilized contaminated surgical instruments. Both Canada and the United States require that infected horses be destroyed or permanently quarantined.

This action was published in the Sept. 2 Federal Register.

CSU club is top in nation

FORT COLLINS, Colo. — Colorado State University's horticulture club received the Outstanding Club Award at the recent annual meeting of the American Society for Horticultural Science.

The award recognizes exceptional planning and carrying out of club projects and activities. It is given to a student horticulture club affiliated with the Association of Collegiate Branches of the ASHS.

Last year the CSU horticulture club arranged to have seed companies donate vegetable seed to the Peace Corps. The club paid for the seed's shipment to Peace Corps headquarters in Washington, D.C.

The CSU club also staged the Future Farmers of America state horticultural contests for high school and vocational schools throughout Colorado.

CSU was judged against 30 other schools from across the country.

185 COWS • 20 YEARLING HEIFERS • 25 BRED HEIFERS
•30 HEIFER CALVES

MONDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1982

10:00 A.M.

DIRECTIONS TO FARM:

East Malta Farm is located just east of Malta, PA on Mahantango Creek Road, which is 2 miles East of Rt. 147. The farm is 25 miles South of Sunbury, 7 miles North of Millersburg.

The East Malta herd was founded over 50 years ago. Until recent years the farm was a producer-distributor of Golden Guernsey milk. After the milk business was discontinued the herd was enlarged and they are now milking 150 Guernseys and 35 Grade Holsteins.

The best of sires have been used. Sires represented will be Welcome Flash's Hollirex (11), Housleys Dari Fayvor (14), McDonalds Darimost Titan (10), Kellogg Minnies Choice (14), McDonalds Top Marine (5), Woodacres Sultan (7), Eber Lea Farms Winston (4), Sande Hill Double Emory (4), Big Tex (7), McDonalds Top Pilot (3).

The herd is predominantly late summer and fall freshening with 20 head due in August, 22 in September, 17 in October, 20 in November and 21 in December.

The herd is in excellent physical condition - the herd having been closely culled any unsound or problem cows will be eliminated.

The heifers are well grown with a group due in Sept.-Oct. - another in September and about 20 head ready to breed this fall.

The herd is TB and Bangs accredited - will be tested for both plus anaplasmosis prior to sale. Calfhood Vaccinated.

ESTATE SALE

Will offer for sale. Very valuable picturesque farm of John R. and Fannie Bell Fridinger (deceased) Known as Rocky Spring Farm. Located two miles west of Hagerstown, Maryland. Along U.S. Route 40. Close to Interstate 81 and 70. In front of Washington County Courthouse.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 21

Between the hours of 1:00 & 3:00 P.M.

All that farm with the improvements thereon. Lying in Election District #24. Washington County, Maryland. Farm is located two miles west of Hagerstown, Maryland. Fronting one mile on U.S. Route 40. With city water line running entire length of farm. Farm contains 135 acres of land, more or less. More particularly described in Liber numbers 217 and 377, Folio numbers 608 and 158 among the Land Records of Washington County, Maryland. Improved by two houses. Main house is a two and one half story baronial stone house. Containing four rooms, reception hall and enclosed porch on first floor and large front porch on first floor. Four bedrooms, bath and hall on second floor. Full attic. Breezeway, with a two car stone garage attached. Partial basement, divided into three rooms, with concrete and dirt floor. Oil fired steam heat. Heat only on first floor. Fireplace in every room. Slate roof. Tennant house is two and one half story weather board house. Containing three rooms and bath and enclosed porch on first floor. Three rooms on second floor. Attic, basement with large spring. Concrete floor. Large fireplace in basement. Oil fired hot air heat. Metal roof. Large bank barn, hot pen, wagon shed, shop, chicken house. Metal roof on all out buildings. Water is supplied by large spring. Stream also runs through pasture land. Many researchers believed the original home site to be the home of Elizabeth Kershner, who became the bride of Jonathan Hager, founder of Hagerstown, Maryland. All growing crops will be reserved until harvested.

PURINA DAIRY MINERAL

16% CALCIUM
16% PHOSPHORUS

Plus: Sodium, Chlorine, Magnesium, Sulphur, Potassium, Iron, Copper, Cobalt, Iodine, Zinc, Manganese, Selenium.

Purina Dairy Mineral is formulated especially for cows on grass pasture, hay or haylage and for cows on a heavy feeding program of corn or sorghum silage. All of these roughages are low in calcium as well as phosphorus. It is very important to feed with them a mineral mixture with a 1:1 calcium-phosphorus ration, to supply both elements.

PURINA DAIRY HI-PHOS MINERAL

0% CALCIUM
16% PHOSPHORUS

Plus: Sodium, Chlorine, Magnesium, Sulphur, Potassium, Iron, Copper, Cobalt, Iodine, Zinc, Manganese, Selenium.

Purina Dairy Phos Mineral is formulated to provide cows with the phosphorus they need when they are getting a high calcium, low phosphorus forage such as alfalfa, clover or other legume pasture, hay, haylage or citrus pulp. Dairy Phos Mineral contains 0% calcium, 16% phosphorus and all the rest of the essential trace mineral elements. Dairy Phos Mineral is the product of choice whenever the calcium to phosphorus ratio in the total ration is greater than 2.2:1.

Purina is offering a free pair of Wells-Lamont pigskin gloves, a $10.50 retail value, to farmers/feeders/ranchers who purchase a minimum of 500 lbs. of Purina Minerals per purchase from September 1 - November 30, 1982.
